SMITH BURIES HATCHET; OUT FOR ROOSEVELT

Thousands Cheer as They Shake Hands.

The New York Republican state convention at Buffalo nominated Col. William J. Donovan for governor, F. Trubee Davison for lieutenant governor, and George Z. Medalie for United States senator.

Albany, N. Y., Oct. 4.—[Special.]—Al Smith and Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt were reunited in friendship tonight at the climax of a victory both achieved in effecting the nomination for governor of New York of their mutual friend, Herbert H. Lehman.

Smith and Roosevelt, the former Damon and Pythias of New York politics who had parted company when both became enamored of the presidency of the United States, shook hands publicly on the platform of the state convention.

They had worked together, against a combination headed by leaders of Tammany Hall, to obtain the nomination of Mr. Lehman, but until Al Smith came from the floor of the convention to go to the platform to make the speech of nomination for Lehman he had not made known any sign that he had forgiven Roosevelt.

Thousands Cheer Them.

With the cheers of thousands of delegates and spectators creating a riotous din, Al Smith strode to where Gov. Roosevelt sat on the platform and held out his hand. The governor, showing his happiness, grasped it vigorously and while the crowd yelled with deafening effect the two men pumped arms energetically.

"Hello, Frank," Smith said as he grasped Roosevelt's hand.

In this extravagant setting, Gov. Roosevelt said to former Gov. Smith, while they were still hand in hand:

"Al, this is from the heart."

And Al replied:

Pose for Photographers.

Photographers asked if Gov. Roosevelt and former Gov. Smith would pose together.

"Why not?" Smith said, turning to Roosevelt and again clasping his hand.

Former Gov. Smith then went to the rostrum and in booming voice started his speech nominating Mr. Lehman.

The nomination of Lehman was seconded by his only rival for the post, Mayor John Boyd Thacher of Albany, and then the convention, without the necessity of a roll call, nominated Lehman by acclamation.

In the same manner M. William Bray of Utica, N. Y., was nominated for lieutenant governor. United States Senator Robert F. Wagner also was renominated by acclamation. John Fitzgibbon and Elmer E. Studley were nominated for congress at large.

Defeat for Tammany.

The nomination of Lehman was a complete defeat for Tammany Hall, which, with some up-state leaders, had fought bitterly to achieve the nomination of Thacher. During the last two days John F. Curry, Tammany chief, has used all his political arts and wiles to stop Lehman, the personal choice of Gov. Roosevelt and of Al Smith.

But he was unable to keep the Tammany allies loyal to his camp and when Veteran John H. McCooey, Brooklyn leader, announced that he would be with Lehman, the Tammany lines crumbled and Curry went down to an ignominious surrender.

An eleventh hour effort to effect a compromise was made by Curry. He sought to have Senator Wagner accept the gubernatorial nomination, giving the senatorship place on the ticket to Lehman.

Roosevelt Refuses to Budge.

Gov. Roosevelt learned of this attempt and he communicated with both Wagner and Lehman on the telephone, advising both of them to sit tight and refuse any compromise. When the two men were called into the headquarters at the De Witt Clinton hotel, where Curry, McCooey and other New York leaders were in conference, they each refused to consider the Curry proposals.

A few minutes later Curry emerged to go to the convention hall, where the delegates had been kept waiting more than an hour while the conference was waging. He appeared a beaten man and it was with obvious effort that he summoned a smile to his face as he told newspaper men the news. He personally gave out the slate, as he had been forced to agree upon it.

BULLETIN.

Des Moines, Ia., Oct. 4.—(AP)—President Hoover's special train left the Union station here at 11:04 p. m. on the return trip to Washington.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]
(Pictures on Back Page.)

Des Moines, Ia., Oct. 4.—[Special.]—President Hoover, opening his campaign tonight in the heart of the corn and hog belt where farmers are reputed to be shot through with political discontent, declared that the Democratic party program, expounded by Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York, would mean ruin to American agriculture, while as to the general depression it would "disturb every possibility of recovery."

In the coliseum here the President stirred an audience of 10,000 into shrieking spasms of delight by remarking that he was not coming before the farmers peddling any "economic patent medicine." He laid down a twelve phase agricultural program. It embraced other national issues interlocked with the agrarian situation and he brought them up with another shout with the remark:

"I refuse to offer counterfeit currency or false hopes. I will not make any pledge to you which I cannot fulfill."

All in Same Boat.

As far as solving the problem of economic recovery goes, the President pictured the farmer, the factory worker, the white collar man, the business man, as all in the same boat, and the tariff as the life belt for all. Business, he reported on the "upward spiral" and said the "unprecedented measures" put in motion by the Republicans are winning.

"The battle against depression is making progress," he said. "We are still faced with forces which render ten million men idle and agriculture prostrate.

"We have forged new weapons. We have turned the tide from defense to attack."

Two policies to which he pledged himself were first, amelioration of the farm mortgage situation, to check foreclosures and to enable men to keep their homes. The second was that annual payments on the foreign debt be used to advance foreign markets for American farm products.

"I do not approve cancellation of war debts," he said, bringing down the house.

Offers 12 Point Program.

The 12 point program to aid the farmer enunciated by President Hoover was as follows:

1. Maintenance of high protective tariffs on farm products.

2. Repeal of the price stabilization provisions of the farm marketing act.

3. A national program of land utilization "to divert land from unprofitable to profitable use."

4. Completion of a vast inland waterway system, including the great lakes-St. Lawrence seaway.

5. Relief for recipients of drought feed and seed loans who are unable to pay under the stress of the times.

6. A call for a conference of experts to work out a coördinated system of federal, state and local taxation whereby farm land might be relieved of extra burdens for public revenue.

7. Expansion of credits to make available ready short term loans for planting, harvesting, feeding live stock and other "production necessities."

8. Extension of loans, through the Reconstruction Finance corporation, to processors of agricultural products in order to relieve the farmer from carrying over his stocks.

9. Relief of farm owners from pressing long term mortgage payments.

10. Participation by this government in such measures as would insure world stability and expansion of agricultural markets such as the promotion of good will and disarmament; the appointment of a representative of agriculture as a member of the forthcoming world economic conference.

11. A recommendation that "any annual payment of the foreign debt be used for the specific purpose of securing an expansion of the foreign markets for American agricultural products."

12. Continuation of the efforts of

THAT'S THE TROUBLE WITH MAKING TOO MUCH NOISE

JUDGE HITS DRYS WHO SPEND $7.50 TO TRAP WOMAN

South Bend, Ind., Oct. 4.—[Special.]—Federal Judge Thomas W. Slick is anxious to know how much liquor a dry agent has to drink to make a "buy."

Mrs. Margaret Coleman, operator of a speakeasy in the country near here, told the court today that two agents spent four hours in her place one afternoon last summer and their liquor bill was $7.50 at the rate of 25 cents a "shot."

Amazed by the testimony the court remarked: "That is quite a snap; spend four hours in a comfortable speakeasy drinking up $4 or $5 worth of liquor."

Assistant District Attorney George H. Rullson protested that it was an exaggeration and produced the affidavits of the agents to show that they only spent $1.50 each on liquor.

"Well," replied the court, "that's $3. That would buy twelve drinks—enough to put either you or me under the table."

As a result the agents in question will be recalled from St. Louis on Oct. 11 to tell the court how much liquor they did have to buy, straight and in highballs, to make the case against Mrs. Coleman.

WOMAN OBJECTS TO HIS WORK; HE STABS HER

New York, Oct. 4.—[Special.]—Four times Frank Scerbo, an interior decorator, worked over the rearrangement of Mrs. Etta Gaynes' apartment at 115 Central Park west, and four times she told him she was not satisfied.

This morning, for the fourth time, she exclaimed:

"I don't like it at all."

Scerbo, screaming hysterical anger, snatched up an upholsterer's knife with a four-inch blade, stabbed Mrs. Gaynes three times in the chest, right arm and left shoulder and fled from the house.

That was his story when, a few minutes later, he walked into a police station and laid the knife before Detective Nicholas Campo.

"I know you're looking for me. Here I am," he said.

Mrs. Gaynes, meanwhile, had been taken to a hospital, and two maids and a butler told the police they had witnessed the attack upon her.

Chaplin, Ptomaine Poison Victim, Reported Better

Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 4.—(AP)—Believed to have been the victim of ptomaine poisoning, Charles Chaplin, film comedian, was reported today as improved after a three day illness. Studio officials said his condition was not serious.

Cermak Says He'll Expose Tax Dodgers

As Mayor Cermak yesterday announced plans to publish the names of wealthy tax dodgers, a letter was brought to his attention which, he said, spoke for itself in revealing whether the movements started by several organizations to delay the collection of taxes had been sincere in motive.

The letter was mailed out by the Roseland National bank, 10833 South Michigan avenue, on Sept. 16. The letterhead carried the names of officers of the bank, including the name of Cornelius Teninga, vice president and large stockholder, and former president of the Association of Real Estate Taxpayers.

Under Investigation.

The association was under investigation by the state's attorney's office last July to determine if officials were guilty of conspiracy to obstruct tax collections. Teninga was among those questioned. No action was taken. Mayor Cermak yesterday again voiced a demand that an investigation of associations urging and advising citizens not to pay their taxes be made by the special grand jury.

The letter, signed by C. C. Wood, secretary of the real estate loan division of the bank, was addressed "To our investors." It outlined the bank's actions to protect purchasers of first mortgage investments and pointed out that one of the most important features for the protection of such investments was to ascertain the status of taxes and special assessments.

A Breach of Contract.

"In cases where there are any delinquencies on taxes," the letter read, "it is our purpose to call the owners in and see that arrangements are made to take care of these items, advising them at the same time that their failure to pay up their taxes will constitute a breach of their mortgage contract and we can by our option declare the whole mortgage due and payable at once."

"That, of course, is excellent banking practice," commented the mayor. "It is noticeable, however, that Mr. Teninga's views on the collection of taxes apparently differ when he is a banker from his opinions when he was head of the Association of Real Estate Taxpayers."

The mayor then outlined his plan to have prepared a list of wealthy men and women who are refusing to pay their taxes and indicated that this list would be published, thus holding those on the list up to shame because of their nonpayment of taxes.

Might Have Wholesome Effect.

"Publication of these names might have a wholesome effect," the mayor said. "Something must be done to make those who are able to pay their taxes 'come through with what they owe the city.'"

"I hear now that efforts will be made to reopen one of the long drawn out tax suits before Judge Jarecki, which would delay the collection of taxes another year or so. If such efforts should be successful the city might just as well quit now. I repeat that I believe the criminal laws have been violated by those who are at the head of organizations urging and advising the citizens not to pay their taxes."

New Zealand Reduces Deficit 50%, Budget Shows

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WELLINGTON, N. Z., Oct. 4.—New Zealand's budget reveals a prospective deficit this year of £5,000,000 instead of £10,000,000 as anticipated. Prime Minister G. W. Forbes said that the dominion's economic and social organization had stood the strain remarkably well. New Zealand is still a "going concern, and although she is not out of trouble yet, the worst has passed and the outlook is brightening," he said.

Slight Discord Mars Greeter Gaw's Song Hit

BY VIRGINIA GARDNER.

City Greeter George D. Gaw sat behind his highly polished desk in his suite in the Hotel Sherman yesterday and discussed the claim of Mrs. Margaret McHale Wright of 4306 West Congress street that the greeter had borrowed her inspiration for his song, "Greetings: Chicago Welcomes You," now Chicago's official song.

Mrs. Wright, co-author of the song "The Windy City," or "The Song of Chicago the Beautiful," which she dedicated to the Century of Progress fair, asserts that she can detect in some of the lines of the Gaw song a strong influence of "The Windy City." Moreover, she says, she sent the city's greeter a copy of her song last June and she thinks it "odd, extremely odd," that he did not acknowledge it.

Greeter's Smile Fades.

The natural expression of happiness and faith in the human race which Greeter Gaw habitually wears upon his rotund, beaming face faded as he was told of the doubts which one of his fellow citizens entertained against him.

"That makes me feel real bad," he said. "It hurts me. What I hate worst is to think how she must feel. I don't blame her. I understand. The poor woman doesn't realize that I never saw her song."

It was impossible, he continued, to attribute his production to anything other than his own inspiration.

Gets an Inspiration.

"I was down home in Owensboro, Ky.," he said, "picking out tunes on an old organ one night last spring. Suddenly I got the inspiration to write a Century of Progress song. The tune came to me—tum-te-da-da-da, tum-te-da-da-de—and I thought, 'My gosh, that's a good tune,' and I could just see a band a-swingin' away at it.

"That tune stuck with me. I came home and wrote the words. That was easy. I took the history of Chicago and added the gist of the speeches I always make about our boulevards and churches and skyline and our hospitality. It came natural to me because I really feel all that is so. Of course, I had the music arranged, but the tune was mine.

"Now take my first verse," said Mr. Gaw.

Face Becomes Stern.

His face became almost stern, his voice rang with sincerity, and the white carnation in his lapel rode up and down gently on his heaving bosom as he recited the following:

"In eighteen-thirty-three as if by destiny
When men were brave beyond compare—
They made their axes ring
Where winds and waves could sing
A welcome to a new born city fair—
And for a hundred years
Through many smiles and tears
With a sturdy, steady sympathetic hand,
Its people struggled on Till their laurels won
THE FAIREST CITY IN OUR LAND."

"Now, that first line I got from the story of the early father—who was it?—wasn't it Joliet?—who thrust his sword in the ground and said, 'Here is a city of destiny,'" Greeter Gaw went on.

"Those early fathers must have been brave, too. Just think of all the hurdles and obstacles they had to jump over—the fire, and everything. But somebody had to pave the way, didn't they?

"Well, then I jump over 100 years. The idea for the part about the skyline I got from the Italian ambassador who wrote me a wonderful letter about our skyline. I got in something about the lake in the first stanza 'Where winds and waves' — that means the lake.

"In the last stanza, where I speak

Demand for the immediate arrest of Samuel Insull and his brother, Martin J. Insull, was made yesterday by State's Attorney Swanson following the return of three indictments charging embezzlement, larceny by bailee and larceny, by the October grand jury. Following the formal issuance of the capiases, the prosecutor sent a telegram to Gov. Emmerson asking him to take immediate steps to bring about the arrest of Samuel Insull in Paris and Martin Insull in Orillia, Ont., Canada.

The state, however, promptly notified the prosecutor that such action would depend on the assurances from the Cook county board that funds for the expensive extradition proceedings would be voted. Prosecutor Swanson's next move is again to ask the Democratic county board, which has twice refused him funds, for an appropriation to defray the expenses of the Insull litigation. The state's attorney estimated that the total cost of extradition proceedings for both Insulls would be about $10,000.

Bonds Are Fixed.

Samuel Insull was named in two of the three indictments returned by the jury. His bond is fixed at $50,000. Martin Insull was named in all three indictments. His bond is $75,000. Two of the indictments name the brothers together.

The first indictment names Martin Insull alone, charging that he abstracted by means of embezzlement, larceny, and larceny as bailee $377,720 from the treasury of the Middle West Utilities company and used the money to protect his personal brokerage accounts.

Involves Flexner Account.

The second indictment charges Samuel Insull and Martin Insull jointly with using $66,000 of the funds of the Middle West Utilities company to protect brokerage accounts carried in the name of Washington Flexner, president of the Lincoln Printing company.

The third indictment names the brothers jointly on a charge of abstracting $104,222 from the treasury of the Mississippi Valley Utilities Investment company for the same purpose.

The last two indictments cover the same transaction, but two separate indictments had to be returned because the money was taken from two separate companies. Both these transactions were involved in the deal wherein Martin Insull's private brokerage accounts were protected with company funds.

Six Witnesses Testify.

Six witnesses were taken before the grand jury by the special Insull staff consisting of Prosecutors Charles Bellows, John Hampton, John O'Hora, and Voyle Johnson.

The witnesses were Washington Flexner, whose name was used by Martin Insull in some of his stock trading accounts; Oliver McCormick, treasurer of Middle West Utilities company, who paid out the money on the "authorization and sanction of Samuel Insull" to protect these accounts; Andrew B. McCaughey of the brokerage firm of Jackson Bros., Boesel and company, who handled the Insull accounts; Paul H. Davis, a broker who handled some of the accounts; Frank Webb, former chairman of the Terminal National bank and John J. Bailey, auditor and financial expert of the state's attorney's office.

Ready to Vote by Noon.

The prosecutors apparently were using every means to speed the Insull indictments and extradition. Presentation of evidence started after 10 o'clock in the morning and by noon the grand jury announced itself ready to vote. The actual indictments were drawn up and presented to Chief Justice John Prystalski by 12:40 p. m.

George Seif, clerk of the Criminal court, docketed the indictments at once and issued the arrest order. This was placed in the hands of the sheriff at 1 o'clock. Assistant State's Attorney Euclid Taylor, extradition expert, had the necessary exemplified copies of the legal papers made and then wired Gov. Emmerson for the arrest order. The telegram to the governor follows:

"Will you request the secretary of state of the United States to request the French government to arrest and detain Samuel Insull Sr., who is residing at the Prince de Galles hotel, Paris, France? Said Samuel Insull Sr. was today indicted by the grand jury and stands charged in this jurisdiction with the crime of larceny and embezzlement of property of the value of $66,000. Extradition papers are being prepared and will be forwarded to you forthwith.

"JOHN A. SWANSON,
"State's Attorney, Cook County."

Gov. Emmerson's office sent back word that the request would gladly be complied with if the necessary funds were guaranteed by the county. The state, in making the request to the Washington government, must guarantee the payment of necessary fees.

"It is now up to the county board to say whether the Insulls should be extradited and prosecuted," said Prosecutor Swanson. "I have done my duty; it is up to them to do theirs."

State and federal authorities were unanimous yesterday in expressing the opinion that Prosecutor Swanson would have no difficulty in extraditing the Insulls if he gets the necessary funds. Word even came from Washington that treaties between the United States, France and Great Britain fully cover the charges set up in the indictments.

Might Delay Extradition.

The only possible hitch, it was pointed out, would be the health of Samuel Insull. Because of ill health the utility magnate could temporarily delay, but could not permanently elude, extradition.

Edmond Meyer, French vice consul in Chicago, said on this point:

"In the case of Samuel Insull, the request for extradition would go before the Superior court of the department of the Seine. The court could hold Mr. Insull in custody pending the disposition of the extradition request, or allow him liberty, as it chooses. The court might be influenced, of course, by the recommendation of counsel for the United States government.

"In the event Mr. Insull produced a medical certificate stating that a sea voyage might endanger his life the court would merely hold its decision in abeyance. If, at any time, Mr. Insull's health improved, counsel for the United States would have the right to renew the demand for his extradition. If his health continued to fail there would be no opportunity, of course, to extradite him."

Franklin R. Overmyer, attorney for the British consul in Chicago, said the fact that Martin Insull is a British subject would make no difference in an extradition proceeding.

Defendant Just a "Person."

"Extradition treaties between the United States and Great Britain speak of the defendant in an extradition hearing as a 'person' and make no distinction as to whether he is a subject of the British crown or a citizen of the United States," he said. "The case holds true for all British dominions, including Canada."

Assistant State's Attorney Taylor, who has handled several foreign extradition proceedings, said the charge of embezzlement and, more particularly, larceny, is covered in the treaties both with France and Great Britain. This same opinion was expressed by district attorneys in the federal building and in Washington.

It was announced in Washington that the first disclosure that extradition proceedings are under way will come from Paris or Canada, inasmuch as the state department refuses to discuss extradition proceedings until action has been taken.

The usual procedure in extradition cases is for the governor of Illinois to request the state department for a presidential warrant. The legal papers are then submitted to the solicitor general for his technical approval and if satisfactory a presidential warrant is issued to the officer designated to bring the fugitive back to the United States.

Arrest Is Requested.

In the meantime the state department communicates with the foreign government and asks that the fugitives be placed under arrest pending the arrival of the presidential messenger. If the fugitive elects to fight extradition he may go into court and demand that the state produce a prima facie case against him. The prosecution usually does this by means of depositions.

Government attorneys pointed out yesterday that if the Insulls are extradited by the state, they cannot be tried on federal charges, should any be made, without a second extradition proceeding. Inasmuch as mail fraud charges are not believed extraditable the government is not concerned over the prosecutor's action.

It was pointed out that should the Insulls be acquitted on the state charges they could return to their respective havens of refuge within 30 days after the acquittal without molestation from the government.

Asks Investors to Aid.

State's Attorney Swanson made it plain that he has not finished with the case. He said he will start work on charges of blue sky law violations Thursday evening when investors in the Insull enterprises have been asked to appear at his office. Each investor will be requested to fill out a questionnaire telling of his purchase of stock. The state's attorney's staff is trying to find out whether any sales were made after the corporations became insolvent. Such violations are punishable the same as embezzlement or larceny by sentences of 1 to 10 years in the pentitentiary.

"We have no announcement to make as to Samuel Insull Jr. at this time," said the prosecutor when asked the status of the son. "We haven't progressed far enough in our investigation."

INSULL IS SHAKEN BY INDICTMENT, BUT STILL SILENT

Locks Himself in Room with Son and Wife.

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]
[Copyright: 1932: By The Chicago Tribune.]

PARIS, Oct. 4.—The granite mask of mystery and silence which Samuel Insull has worn since his departure from America remained intact tonight despite news from Chicago that the grand jury had indicted him.

It was from THE TRIBUNE correspondent that Insull first learned of the verdict—over the house telephone in his hotel, for since early afternoon Insull, his wife and his son, Samuel Jr., who arrived last night from Chicago, were barricaded in their rooms and refused to open the door for any one.

"Well—" a cool, self-possessed but slightly harsh voice queried after I had read off the brief dramatic message which had just arrived by cable, "Insull indicted."

Has Nothing to Say.

"Haven't you anything to say?" I asked.

"Not a word."

Insull Jr. likewise refused to come down from his rooms and echoed his father's refusal to talk.

Earlier in the evening it had looked as if Insull's iron control were cracking. At a mere reference to the probability of an early indictment, his self-assurance had gone out of his voice. After he had been informed that he had been indicted, he commenced:

"Well, I don't know. I—I—"

"Be careful!" a woman's voice, clearly recognizable over the phone as that of his wife, broke in before he could go further.

Son May Make Statement.

"Excuse me. My son will talk to you a little later," he said. "I will have him call you. I don't know where he is at the moment but I will have him call you. You had better see him."

There was the sound of genuine panic in his voice as he hung up.

It is understood that no effort was made to keep the news of the indictment from Mrs. Insull despite her recent illness and weakened condition. The whole family went into a huddle in Insull's room immediately on receiving the news and remained closeted all evening, receiving no visitors, but answering all phone calls.

The younger Insull hinted late tonight that he might have a statement to make tomorrow afternoon after further consultations with his father.

It is learned that the Insulls are paying $2.40 daily apiece for their hotel rooms. They seldom eat at the hotel, but go to little restaurants in the neighborhood.

Martin Insull Also Silent.

ORILLA, Ont., Oct. 4.—(AP)—Martin Insull, former official of the vast Insull utilities, now in receivership, today declined to comment on news that he and his brother, Samuel, had been indicted on three charges of embezzlement, larceny and larceny by bailee. To all questions he answered, "I have nothing to say."

While he previously had said he would be willing to go voluntarily to Chicago to face investigation into affairs of the corporations of which he was a director it could not be learned today whether or not he had changed his mind.

AWARDED DAMAGES.

Valparaiso, Ind., Oct. 4.—[Special.]—Hugh Stark, Racine, Wis., salesman, was awarded $15,000 damage by a jury today against the Interstate Transit company in a bus accident.

B. E. F. TO FIGHT FOR RELIEF WITH BALLOTS; WATERS RE-ELECTED

Uniontown, Pa., Oct. 4.—(AP)—In one of the strangest conventions the nation ever has seen, tattered delegates of the bonus expeditionary force turned today to the ballot as their major weapon in a new campaign for relief.

Following the keynote address of their national field commander, Hoke Smith, W. W. Waters, leader of the bonus army march on Washington, D. C., was reelected national commander of the bonus expeditionary force.

The election of Waters came unexpectedly after the delegates heard the national commander attacked in a speech by Jack Coffin, "rank and file" contact officer, who led a drive against Waters.

Coffin was booed and shouted down and immediately the convention suspended the regular order of business and declared Waters reelected. Waters, who was unable to attend the convention, is said to be in Florida.

"The permanent organization we are going to form this week," Smith said in his address, "will be pledged to support honest candidates in both political parties, pledged against dishonesty no matter what party is concerned and pledged 100 per cent against the administration now in control in Washington."

Smith told the convention it must take the veterans from the hands of "organized charity which was meant primarily for the down and outer."

HIGH WIND FANS FOREST FIRE IN FAR NORTHWEST

Vancouver, Wash., Oct. 4.—(AP)—Fanned furiously forward by a high east wind, a forest fire tonight was biting swiftly through the north and east sections of Clark county and had all but ringed the town of Amboy, five miles north of Yacolt.

Oregon Town Destroyed.

Portland, Ore., Oct. 4.—(AP)—Roaring in from all sides a forest fire today destroyed the town of Cochran in the mountain timber country, about fifty miles west of Portland in Washington county.

The loss in the town, two mills, railroad and timber, was estimated at more than 2 million dollars. The 200 inhabitants escaped.

At Enright, three railroad tunnels, a rail incline and trestles of the Southern Pacific were destroyed.

The only death reported was that of a logger killed yesterday by a falling tree.

Defendants in Bond Fraud Case to Surrender Today

Defendants named in the indictment of Halsey Stuart & Co., Chicago and New York bond house, will surrender to the United States attorney's office in Chicago today and put up bonds for apearance in Milwaukee, according to arrangements completed yesterday. Following their surrender the defendants will be arraigned before United States Commissioner Walker. The indictment, charging use of the mails to defraud in connection with the sale of $13,500,000 in bonds on Washington, D. C., realty, was returned last Thursday in Milwaukee.

AUDITOR CHARGES STONE OFFICIALS CONCEALED LOSS

Testifies in Trial of 9 for Mail Frauds.

Officials of H. O. Stone & Co., defunct real estate investment concern, sought to certify a fraudulent statement of the company's financial condition in 1928, according to testimony yesterday in Federal Judge Charles E. Woodward's court. Henry F. Norcott, president of the company, and eight associates are on trial before a jury on charges of using the mails to defraud.

Paul C. Johnson, an auditor, testified that in December, 1928, when he was employed by Arthur Andersen & Co., he was sent to the Stone offices to make an audit.

Refuses to Sign Audit.

When he had completed the work, Johnson said, the company officials showed him a profit and loss statement prepared by themselves and asked him to certify it. He refused the witness said, and pointed out that the Stone prepared audit showed a profit of $812,000 for the year. His own audit revealed a loss of $500,000 Johnson said.

"The officials tried to write off company losses on buildings, subdivisions and contracts without affecting the profit and loss statement," Johnson said.

"I told them that there was a method of bookkeeping by which this could be done, but it had not been followed by the company. In good years they could have set aside part of the profits to offset expected losses during the next year. I told them that they had not done this; that they had taken the big profits and would have to take their losses also."

After he had refused to certify the Stone audit four conferences were held, Johnson said, at which the executive committee of the Stone company tried to get him to change his mind.

"Bennett [Harold D. Bennett, a vice president of H. O. Stone & Co. and a defendant] told me that they had hired Andersen & Co. to certify their audit, 'not to make a new one,'" Johnson testified. On his continued refusal to certify the Stone statement the executive committee disregarded the Andersen audit and issued a statement of their own to stockholders, the witness said.

A bill of $6,500 presented by Andersen & Co. for the auditing work was not paid, Johnson testified, and Andersen & Co. sued for payment. He was not permitted to state the outcome of the suit. One of the items to which the executive committee objected, the auditor said, was his statement that the firm had bonds in default.

"Give me another phrase that means the same and I'll change it," Johnson said he told the Stone officials. After discussion, the phrase "bonds partly in arrears" was substituted, according to Johnson's testimony.

138 SPANISH EXILES FORCED TO GO HUNGRY ON VOYAGE TO AFRICA

CADIZ, Spain, Oct. 4.—(AP)—A story of how hunger, suffering and humiliations were the lot of the flower of old Spanish aristocracy—the 138 noblemen, army officers and their families exiled to Africa by the republic—was told today when their exile ship returned.

Officers of the Espana V., the ship which took the monarchists to Villa Cisneros, reported terrible storms during the first few days of the voyage. Nearly everyone was seasick.

The deportees maintained their observance of rank and title, the greatest respect being shown to the duke of Seville, the former King Alfonso's cousin, and Gen. Justo Sanjurjo, who led the uprising against the republic.

Because storms delayed the vessel, 23 meals were canceled during the trip so rations could be made to last through the trip. The deportees ate the same food served to the soldiers who accompanied them.

Officers of the ship said one man on board was ostracized by other deportees because they considered him a spy. His name was not obtained.

KANE COUNTY'S TAX VALUATIONS CUT $21,030,000

Property in Kane county this year will be assessed at a total of $84,655,000, a $21,030,000 reduction from the figure of last year, $105,835,000. The county board of review cut realty about 21 per cent and personal property valuations about 20 per cent.

Last year the realty valuations were $81,572,000, the personal property assessed $24,813,000. The corresponding figures under the new assessment are $63,214,000 and $19,641,000.

It is expected that the reductions will decrease taxes paid next year, particularly in Aurora, Elgin, Batavia, Geneva and other cities and towns of the Fox river valley.

TWO ROBBERS SENTENCED.

Monticello, Ill., Oct. 4.—(AP)—Earl Aguilar and Ora Kelley were each sentenced to serve two terms of one year to life on a charge of robbery with a gun when they pleaded guilty today to indictments returned yesterday by the Piatt county grand jury.

N. Y. BROKER IS FOUND A SUICIDE IN HOTEL HERE

J. E. Morehouse, 47 years old, a New York broker, was found shot to death in his room in the Bismarck hotel late last night. Chief Deputy Coroner Stephan Kolanowski informally pronounced his death a suicide.

Morehouse's body was found in bed by a maid, his head buried beneath a pillow. He had shot himself in the right temple, using the pillow to muffle the explosion. On the dresser police found a few coins and six letters.

One of the notes was addressed to "the authorities, coroner or what have you." It said: "No one else is responsible for this. No autopsy is necessary. Just another victim of the depression." Other letters were addressed to his wife, a Chicago undertaker, two New York friends, and William L. O'Neill, 4250 Kenmore avenue, former president of the Stromberg Carburetor company.

Morehouse lived at 35 Arleigh road, Great Neck, L. I., with his wife and two sons, Robert and Elwell. One of the sons is a Princeton student. The family could not explain Morehouse's suicide. Friends said Morehouse was considered a prosperous broker. At one time he was New York manager for the Stromberg company.

$4,000,000 CASH FUND DEADLOCKS TAX LEVY PARLEY

Citizens' Committee and City Officials at Odds.

The parley between city officials and members of the citizens' committee on public expenditures over reductions in 1931 tax levies demanded by the committee ended in a deadlock yesterday over the $4,000,000 levy for the working cash fund.

The committee wanted the $4,000,000 fund abolished entirely. The city officials refused to give it up. The amount involved is nearly half the savings which the committee demanded before it would recommend further purchases of city tax warrants by banks to meet back pay rolls. Other reductions in tax levies, totaling $4,761,332, were agreed to by Mayor Cermak and other representatives of the city. The working cash fund is to be the subject of another conference Friday.

Despite the city officials' resistance to part of the committee's demands, two members of the committee, D. F. Kelly and Ernest R. Graham, accompanied Col. A. A. Sprague, commissioner of public works, in making an appeal to loop bankers for immediate loans for city pay roll purposes. The trio received no definite promises, but Col. Sprague expressed hope that the city would get some money this week.

Set Up Under Strawn Plan.

The $4,000,000 working cash fund which the city officials insisted on retaining was set up under the Strawn plan which gave the city government a temporary respite from its financial troubles in 1930. Even before the reassessment and slow tax collections brought Cook county governments to their present fiscal distress the governments had to operate on borrowed money, obtained by the sale of tax warrants, for five months each year.

This was because tax collections were not made until May of the year for which the levies had been appropriated. Under the Strawn plan the city and other local governments were to accumulate working cash funds by yearly levies until such time as they had a cash reserve sufficient to carry their governmental expenses up to the time of tax collections without resort to borrowing.

Ald. John S. Clark [30th], chairman of the council finance committee, was unable to attend the conference yesterday with the citizens' committee, of which Fred W. Sargent is president. He sent a telegram, however, protesting against elimination of the levy for the working cash fund.

"The fund was the best provision of the Strawn legislation of 1930," Ald. Clark stated. "If we don't continue to build it up we must continue to burden taxpayers with interest charges on tax anticipation warrants."

Mayor Becomes Excited.

Ald. Oscar F. Nelson [46th] said that he believed the taxpayers would rather pay the levy for the working cash fund, which is 10 cents on each $100 valuation, than bear the continued burden of tax warrant interest. Mayor Cermak joined the discussion, thumping the table with his fist and speaking in a voice which was audible outside the conference room.

"The aldermen are right," he declared. "I'm sick and tired of all this. I've coöperated to the fullest extent in the matter of reducing governmental costs. I even helped you get the school board to cut its levy. But now you are holding out $1,900,000 for city employés that the controller should have had yesterday. I'm for retaining the working cash fund levy."

The tax levy cuts which the city's representatives agreed to yesterday were elimination of the $365,035 levy for the library building fund and the following reductions in other levies: Library fund, $390,210; municipal tuberculosis sanitarium, $537,763; judgment fund, $400,000; and police, firemen and municipal employés' pension funds, $3,068,324.

Ordinances Before Council.

The library and sanitarium board already have presented ordinances for approval by the city council, embodying the cuts recommended in their levies. Representatives of the pension board assured the citizens' committee that they would not institute mandamus proceedings to compel council appropriations to the full amount set up by statute for those funds.

President Whealan of the county board and Michael J. O'Connor, deputy county controller, agreed to action by the county board which would prevent an increase in the 1931 assessments that would bring about a corresponding increase in the 1931 levies for county corporate and highway purposes.

In its 1931 budget the county board fixed a 28 cent rate for corporate purposes and a 5 cent rate for the highway fund. This was done in the expectation that the 1931 assessed valuations would total approximately 4 billion dollars, a reduction of $338,000,000 from the 1930 valuations. On a 4 billion tax valuation basis, the 28 cent and 5 cent rates would yield levies of $10,080,000 and $1,800,000, after allowances for loss and cost of collection.

Would Lower Rates.

President Whealan and Mr. O'Connor agreed that at its next meeting the county board would adopt a resolution instructing the county clerk that in the event the assessments for 1931 total more than 4 billion dollars that the corporate and highway tax rates be reduced sufficiently to keep the expected levies within the figures estimated on the basis of 4 billion dollars in assessments.

The county is trying to borrow about $500,000 from banks on tax warrants to meet pay rolls

Tax Appeals Board Is Ready to Receive Complaints Today

The recently created board of tax appeals of Cook county will be open to the public for the first time today to receive complaints concerning the 1931 personal property assessment. The members of the board are George F. Nixon and Fred W. Brummel.

County Assessor J. L. Jacobs yesterday turned over to the board of appeals the personal property assessment books of ten country towns. The board immediately announced that it would receive complaints from property owners in the ten towns from today until Oct. 14 when public hearings on the complaints will be heard.

Valuation Shows Increase.

The ten towns are Barrington, Elk Grove, Hanover, Leyden, Northfield, Palatine, River Forest, Riverside, Schaumberg and Wheeling. The assessed valuation of personal property in these towns showed an increase of $1,134,130 over the 1930 valuation fixed by the old board of review, Assessor Jacobs explained, however, that for the first time the personal property returns were equalized by his staff on the 37 per cent basis.

"Actually we have obtained, from the country towns alone, the filing of from three to four times as much personal property as was heretofore scheduled," the assessor declared. "And in spite of equalizing the personal property assessments by the 37 per cent equalization factor, we expect to show an increase of 50 per cent in the aggregate of personal property assessments in the country towns."

The new personalty assessment figures for the ten towns, compared with the board of review figures for 1930 follow:

	1930 Review.	1931 Assessor.
Barrington	$ 683,429	$ 681,542
Elk Grove	417,013	251,495
Hanover	367,468	217,149
Leyden	664,632	1,025,566
Northfield	468,118	538,055
Palatine	650,675	632,550
River Forest	1,077,858	2,013,760
Riverside	636,748	848,471
Schaumberg	253,204	127,442
Wheeling	685,998	883,143
Totals	$5,905,143	$7,219,273

Upon receiving these figures the members of the board of appeals issued the following statement:

"Any complaints against or appeals from the assessments may be filed with the board of appeals. These complaints will be heard and the assessments affirmed or corrected.

"On the receipt of additional books covering personal property assessments in towns or taxing districts, notices will be published notifying the taxpayers of the time within which they may file complaints."

WEATHER DELAYS EFFORTS TO FREE WINGED CAPTIVES

Rainy weather prevented efforts last night to rescue six small birds which are imprisoned within the well-like court of the Continental Illinois Bank and Trust company building at 231 South La Salle street. Their prison is seventeen stories deep. They have failed in repeated efforts to fly to the top, fluttering futilely against the four enclosing walls and the windows. Two of the captives are sparrows. The others are wood thrushes. If the weather tonight permits, efforts will be made to capture and free the birds, Nicholas Becker, building superintendent, said last night.

DEMOCRATS PICK F. H. BICEK FOR MUNICIPAL JUDGE

The Democratic city central committee yesterday chose Frank H. Bicek, of Mayor Cermak's ward, for a vacancy on the ticket for Municipal judge. Mr. Bicek takes the place of Municipal Judge James F. Fardy, who was given one of the nominations for a vacancy on the Superior court. Peter P. Jezierney was given the Democratic nomination for member of the legislature representing the 9th district. He takes the place of Ald. Henry Sonnenschein, who resigned the legislative nomination after being elected alderman.

Attorney Bicek has been a master in chancery for seven years and a member of the Chicago bar for thirty years.

No independent candidates had filed for municipal judge by five o'clock yesterday afternoon, the deadline for filing. Midnight was the deadline for withdrawals of independent candidacies ofr county and state offices, but there were no withdrawals among the independents.

MEXICO DEPORTS ENVOY OF POPE TO U. S. BY AIR

President Signs Order at Request of Chamber.

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 4.—(AP)—Archbishop Leopoldo Ruiz y Flores, papal delegate to Mexico, boarded an airplane today and started for the United States border in obedience to a presidential decree expelling him from the country on the ground that he was a "pernicious foreigner."

With the pope's representative went two agents of the department of interior and Carlos Corte, a relative.

The archbishop remarked only that it was the first time he ever had been in an airplane. Eduardo Vasconcelos, subsecretary of the interior department, tonight said he had information that the plane had landed about 6 p. m. at Matamoros, across the United States border from Brownsville, Tex.

President Signs Order.

The expulsion order was issued by President Abelardo Rodriguez in conformity with a resolution adopted by the chamber of deputies.

A delegation from the chamber called upon the president this afternoon to present formally the request that the pope's representative be compelled to leave and the president informed them that he already had dictated an order to that effect.

At 5 o'clock this morning Magr. Ruiz y Flores was awakened and taken by government agents to the office of the secretary of the interior. He was requested to remain there while the chamber's demand for his expulsion was being considered.

Archbishop Defends Encyclical.

The archbishop publicly interpreted that document as directing the clergy and the people not to rise up in arms against what the church looks upon as persecution, and he denied that the encyclical incited the Mexican clergy to disobey the law.

A contrary view of the pope's message was expressed in the resolution of the chamber of deputies adopted last night.

"The undersigned deputies of the federal congress have seen with displeasure the bad faith shown in the very rude, unjustified attack that the government of the papal state has directed against us in the papal encyclical which is under discussion here," the resolution said.

When the chamber delegation called upon President Rodriguez to present this resolution, the president said:

"I am very pleased at this demonstration of adhesion by the chamber. It demonstrates again the friendship of revolutionaries. We are proceeding together. I already have given the order that the papal delegate be sent from Mexico."

Overdue in Brownsville.

Brownsville, Texas, Oct. 4.—[Special.]—Archbishop Leopoldo Ruiz y Flores, ordered deported from Mexico, was overdue here tonight and no word had been heard from his plane along the route from Mexico City to this city. He left Mexico City at 1:10 p. m. The plane was due at Brownsville at 6:30 p. m. A strong north wind blew here today, accompanied by rain.

Vatican Ready to Protest.

VATICAN CITY, Oct. 4. — (AP) — Church officials withheld official comment tonight on the expulsion from Mexico of Archbishop Leopoldo Ruiz y Flores.

Has No Fuel

The City of New York, which Rear Admiral Byrd sailed to the Antarctic, was stuck in the lake a half mile off 26th street yesterday as tightly as it was ever gripped in a polar ice floe.

Early yesterday a high wind swept the ship away from its moorings at the World's Fair grounds, where it is to be an exhibit in the fair. Capt. Harry Adams and his crew of five quickly got the ship under control and dropped their anchors half a mile from shore.

Two tugs went out at daybreak to tow the vessel back to its moorings. When they got there, however, they discovered that there was no coal aboard the City of New York to run the donkey engine, and that consequently the anchors could not be raised. After breaking cables several times in efforts to drag the ship away, anchors and all, the tugs put back to the harbor, to wait for quieter seas to transfer coal to the ship.

Storm warnings were flown on all of the lower great lakes yesterday. Lake Michigan navigators were warned against high winds from the northwest.

CAPIAS ISSUED FOR ARREST OF BAIN OFFICIAL

A capias for the arrest of Edward C. Barry, a vice president of the defunct West Englewood Trust and Savings bank, was issued yesterday when he failed to appear before Chief Justice John Prystalski of the Criminal court to answer charges of receiving deposits while the bank was insolvent.

Barry was named in new indictments voted against John Bain, head of the 12 closed Bain banks; his son, John H. Bain, and his son-in-law, W. Merle Fisher. The Bains and Fisher appeared in court and were granted a delay until Oct. 10 on the plea that they had not obtained an attorney.

The elder Bain was president of the Englewood bank, his son was assistant to the president, and Fisher was cashier. John Bain is under sentence of one to five years in the penitentiary as the result of his trial on a general conspiracy charge. Fisher and John H. Bain were fined $1,000 in the conspiracy trial heard by Judge John M. O'Conner without a jury.

Storm Damage Repaired, Artists to Reopen Fair

Damage done by a wind storm late Monday night to tents and booths at the Outdoor Artists' fair at Michigan avenue and Chestnut street has been repaired and the exhibition will be reopened this afternoon. A number of canvases were ruined by the storm. More than 200 artists are represented in the show, which will continue for a week.

FARM BOY, 14, SHOT WHEN HE TRIES HIS FIRST CITY ROBBERY

A 14 year old farm boy who came to Chicago yesterday took up robbery last night. He was shot and seriously wounded by his first victim, Louis Stoney, 27 years old, owner of a gasoline station at 22d and Federal streets.

Accompanied by another boy in an automobile, the young bandit stopped at the station and compelled Stoney to hand over $17. As the boy was turning away to get into the car Stoney grasped a pistol and fired.

One of the station man's bullets struck his uncle, Frank Stoney, 59 years old, in the right arm. Two more bullets struck the young robber in the head and in the right shoulder. He fell and his confederate drove away. At the People's hospital, the boy said he was Joseph Demarco and that his home was on Route 1, Lisle, Ill.

His companion, he added, was a stranger who had invited him for a ride and then had given him the pistol and told him what to do with it.

AS BOBBE ARNST WEEPS DIVORCE IS GRANTED HER

Hollywood, Cal., Oct. 4.—[Special.]—Bobbe Arnst, dancer, today obtained an interlocutory divorce from Johnny Weissmuller, swimmer and movie hero. She went into the private chambers of Superior Judge Ira Shinn with tears streaming down her face and once out of sight of the courtroom watchers, fell sobbing into a chair. Reluctantly she took off her wedding ring. "It's the first time it ever was off," she said, "since Johnny placed it on my finger."

"I did all my own housework and every night I cooked dinner. I gave up my own professional work, but Johnny didn't even come home for his meals," she testified. She said the crowning burden came when Johnny brought his brother Peter, who also was a Chicago swimmer, to their apartment here to live, and Johnny and Peter occupied the twin beds while Bobbe was compelled to sleep alone on the sofa in another room.

Weissmuller did not contest the divorce, which was awarded on grounds of cruelty. Miss Arnst told the judge a property settlement had been arranged and "I have received everything in that way I had any right to."

JAPAN DECIDES NOT TO ALTER FAR EAST STAND

Cabinet Assails Lytton Report on Manchuria.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TOKIO, Oct. 4.—The Japanese cabinet met today and turned up its nose at the Lytton report on Manchuria to the league of nations. After a careful study of the report, the cabinet made this laconic announcement:

"The government has decided that the Lytton report does not constitute cause to alter its Manchurian policy."

The chief point of that policy is the separation of Manchuria from China and the maintenance of the independent state of Manchukuo, which the Japanese assisted in creating to replace the old regime which owed allegiance to the Chinese government.

War Chief Leads Criticism.

The criticism of the Lytton report was led by Gen. Sadao Araki, minister of war.

"The report is merely a diary of a fortnight's journey through Manchuria," the war minister said. "It shows an inability to grasp the fundamentals of the problem and it is unworthy of the serious attention of Japan."

Several other ministers joined in the attack on the league document.

Dispatches from Nanking today said that Gen. Chiang Kai-shek's blueshirted Fascists are in favor of dropping the Manchurian dispute for the present. Followers of China's dictator have issued a proclamation declaring that China is unable to wage war against Japan because her internal affairs are in a chaotic condition and foreign support is not available now.

"We must put our own house in order first," the proclamation reads, concluding that Italy succeeded because the Fascists supported the government and that China must do likewise.

Wreck Train; Kidnap Passengers.

TOKIO, Oct 5.—[Wednesday.]—(AP)—A Rengo [Japanese] new agency dispatch from Tsitsihar, Manchuria, today said Chinese irregular troops had wrecked a train from Anganchi, south of Tsitsihar, killing one Japanese passenger and kidnaping all the rest.

Japs Launch New Drive.

MUKDEN, Manchukuo, Oct. 4.—(AP)—Japanese military headquarters today said their commands were intent on the extermination of Chinese irregulars in the state of Manchukuo before the winter set in. This statement came after it was announced that 1,500 guerrilla followers of Gen. Li Hai-Tsing had been slain in a battle yesterday near Tahsing and Anganchi.

Bombing airplanes were reported still pursuing the remnants of a band of 3,000 insurgents who were trapped on high ground in the flooded Nonni river basin. Similar drives against the irregulars were reported progressing in several districts of Heilungkiang province.

The Japanese said the area of Changchun, the Manchukuo capital, had been cleared of hostile elements, and that further drives against guerrillas will be launched in Kirin province soon.

Russia Accuses U. S. Consulate.

MOSCOW, Oct. 4.—(AP)—A charge that the American consulate at Harbin, Manchuria, was "actively working among the White Russians" was made today in a Tass [official Russian] news dispatch from Khabarovsk, Siberia.

It was further alleged "American sources" in Harbin were spreading provocatory rumors in connection with the activity of Chinese troops against the state of Manchukuo on the western line of the Chinese Eastern railway. The dispatch added these rumors were aimed at straining relations between Japan and Russia.

MISS EITEL AND HER HUSBAND LOSE ROOM IN GERMAN HOTEL

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Oct. 4.—The former Mary Lou Eitel of Chicago and her Berlin husband, Karl Adlon, must live on $60 for the next two weeks while efforts are made to reconcile the newlyweds with the elder Adlon, Berlin hotel owner. Young Adlon testified in court today that he and his father became estranged after their wedding because his stepmother feared the social competition of his young American bride.

The court ordered Mary Lou and her husband to vacate the hotel room in the Adlon hotel pending negotiations. A representative of Adlon Sr. said that the hotel owner discharged his son in order to keep an unmarried employé who had been with the firm for 17 years. Young Adlon testified that this was not true since many unmarried men, who have been with the firm for less time than he, are on his father's payroll.

"My stepmother objected to my marriage because the advent of young Mrs. Adlon automatically made her 'old Mrs. Adlon,'" he said. "She talked my father into ordering me to ask my father-in-law for a job in Chicago. I refused. I had a good job when I married. "Everybody was satisfied with my work. I don't see why I should be deprived of my job just to please my stepmother and I refused to relinquish my post."

BRITISH PROPOSE LONDON PARLEY ON GERMAN ARMS

Ask Four Nations to Seek Solution of Deadlock.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Oct. 4.—Great Britain today took the initiative in an effort to iron out the disarmament deadlock created by Germany's demand for equality in armaments and her subsequent withdrawal from the Geneva disarmament conference when her demand was denied.

The British ambassador extended a verbal invitation to the German government to send representatives to a four power conference in London "to consider Germany's demand and pave the way for her return to the Geneva conference." The four power conference would be attended by France, Great Britain, Italy, and Germany. The United States would be invited to send an observer.

Germany Demands Guarantees.

Germany replied to the invitation immediately with the assertion that she must first receive certain guarantees that her demand for equality would really be fulfilled. Otherwise, Germany said, it would be futile to hold the London meeting.

Germany referred pointedly to the attitude assumed by France and Great Britain when the German arms equality memorandum was presented to the French government. The French and British at that time joined in opposing the German demand that the former allies fulfill the provisions of the Versailles treaty and disarm as being "inopportune."

"We do not want to be confronted with a united front of three nations directed against us, which would make it impossible to come to an agreement," Wilhelmstrasse declared. "If the conference fails, Germany, standing one against three, will be blamed for the failure. Therefore, before going to the conference we must be assured that we are to be given the same rights as the others."

France Insists U. S. Sit In.

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

PARIS, Oct. 4.—If Germany and the United States will agree to attend the proposed conference in London for a "study" of Germany's claim to arms equality, then France will join in, Premier Herriot replied today to Sir John Simon, British foreign secretary, when the latter, flying from Geneva to London, stopped here for three hours to discuss the proposal.

At first M. Herriot, it is understood, was insistent that if there was to be a conference on Germany's status, then all the interested signatory powers of the treaty of Versailles should be invited—that is to say, France's allies, Poland, Belgium and Czechoslovakia. Meeting this position, Sir John shifted ground and produced the argument that this was not a conference of the signatories of the Versailles treaty, but a conference to discover the best means of making progress with disarmament.

To that view of the situation M Herriot could not object, but in that case he insisted that the United States must be present, and to that added that the meeting must be for study only and that the decisions must be subject to ratification by the other interested powers.

Renew U. S.-British Naval Talk.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

GENEVA, Oct. 4. — Conversations aimed at leading to a new five power naval conference will be begun in London next week between the United States and Great Britain.

Norman Davis, acting chief of the American disarmament delegation, will leave here tomorrow for Paris and London, where he will talk with the British about fleet reductions proposed under the Hoover disarmament plan. On his way he will sound out the French on the Franco-Italian obstacle to making the London treaty a five power affair, and if he sees any hope he will invite them to London, too.

DE VALERA DISCUSSES PROBLEMS OF IRISH WITH BRITISH TODAY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Oct. 4.—Gov. Gen. James McNeil of the Irish Free State, who was notified yesterday of his discharge by the king at the request of President Eamon de Valera, left London today to return to Dublin.

De Valera, who arrived in London tonight on his way home from the league of nations' sessions at Geneva, will meet British cabinet ministers tomorrow. Among them will be J. H. Thomas, secretary for dominions; Lord Hailsham, secretary for war; Sir John Simon, foreign secretary, and Neville Chamberlain, chancellor of the exchequer.

The conversation, it is stated, will be confined to the economic quarrel between England and the Free State concerning the nonpayment by the latter of land annuities due Britain.

BODY OF WOMAN FOUND IN A WELL WIRED TO ANVIL

Autopsy Finds Bullet in Head.

Galesburg, Ill., Oct. 4.—[Special.]—The body of Mrs. Abel Boyer, 50, missing farm woman, was found in an abandoned well a block from her home today by Sheriffs Fred Porter of Warren county and Lou Wilson of Knox county. An anvil weighing about 75 pounds was wired about her waist.

A bullet was found in the woman's brain when an autopsy was performed. She had been shot in the back of the head.

Missing Since Sept. 6.

Mrs. Boyer, whose divorced husband lives here, vanished from her home four miles west of here at the Knox-Warren county line Sept. 6, a month ago today. She was the object of a search by posses and officers at the time, and although the old well was searched then the body was not located at that time.

Today the two sheriffs, with Deputy Sheriff Roy Frey, Charley Meechum, and Peye Roberts, neighbors, and the woman's son, Arvid Boyer, 20, as aids, used grappling hooks and made a systematic search of the 31 foot well. There was about ten feet of water in it.

The hooks first brought up a piece of her checked gingham dress, then the body.

Son Arrested and Released.

The son, Arvid, who did not report the mother's disappearance until she had been gone three days, and then left for a week-end visit with a girl while the search was on, was arrested six days after Mrs. Boyer had vanished. After being questioned for several days he was released. He has since lived at the farm home.

The body was found in Warren county and Sheriff Fred Porter ordered it removed to a funeral home in Monmouth, where an inquest is to be conducted by Coroner John Lugg. The son was not placed under arrest, but was ordered to appear at the inquest.

SIMIAN JULIET SIGHS FOR ROMEO OF GOTHAM PIERS

Call of the Tame May Trap Wild Jocko.

BY TOM PETTEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 4.—[Special.]—Jocko is a smart monkey who has been making his home among the rafters of pier 53, North River ever since he deserted ship a month ago after a trip up from the African jungles. He is a bachelor fellow, not above a bit of thievery now and then, and all in all pretty much of a rogue.

Now he is about to become a victim of sex and civilization. The fall of Jocko is being engineered by a society devoted to the safeguarding of animals, the more circumspect police having abandoned their efforts to arrest the young visitor from the south.

Enlist Aid of Juliet.

Two of the society's agents are trying to capture the bachelor Simian and are using as a lure the charms of Juliet, the belle of the Bronx zoo.

Attendants in Quill's refreshment stand made the first complaint against Jocko after he had raided the joint twice. Dock workers and other volunteers tried to catch him. The police came at intervals and with heavy feet climbed about the rafters. They were equally unsuccessful.

Banana-baited traps failed to interest Jocko, who preferred to forage for his food.

The society's agents were summoned as a last resort. They looked into the vast dimness of the raftered length of the pier. Then Bob, one of them, had an idea. Life, he reasoned, is reduced to its elementals along the waterfront. The female of the species always has been appreciated there.

Asks Hypothetical Question.

"What would make you come down if you were up there on a rafter and wasn't hungry and didn't have any place to go?" Bob asked his partner, William.

William thought.

"A blonde," he said finally, "a beautiful blonde."

So to appeal to Jocko they went to the zoo. There they got a cuddly little creature with soft eyes and even softer fur, but with a hard heart. Tonight she is chained to the top of Quill's refreshment stand and has been calling softly to Jocko. But her only visitor so far has been a large rough looking tom cat who dropped down from Pier 5.

Nabs Another Bandit

WALTER WALLINSKI.

WALTER PROVES HE STILL WANTS TO WEAR A STAR

Walter Wallinski, who for a year has been trying to be a policeman, demonstrated for the third time last night that he would make a good one. He captured an alleged automobile thief.

Walter is a butcher in his father's market at 5053 Fullerton avenue. Last year he took the police examinations. A week later he captured single handed two armed men immediately after they had committed a robbery.

Police Commisioner Allman praised Wallinski at the time and said he would do what he could to make him a policeman. Walter, however, is still a butcher. Not long after he captured the bandits he chased two automobile thieves and recovered a stolen car.

Last night Wallinski heard a police report on his automobile radio that two youths were stealing a car in front of a theater at 4025 West North avenue. Walter sped to the scene as the thieves drove away in the car. He pursued them two miles to Long avenue and Bloomingdale road, forced the car to the curb and captured one of them—Albert Anderson, 22 years old, of 1628 Kolmar avenue.

GERMANY, UNITE! VON HINDENBURG PLEADS IN CRISIS

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Germany, Oct. 4.—President Paul von Hindenburg today thanked Germany over the government controlled radio for 2,000 congratulatory messages on his 85th birthday last Sunday and seized opportunity to appeal to his countrymen to unite behind his government.

"We are confronted with difficult tasks," he said. "We are fighting for liberty and justice without and for work and bread within. It will be my goal to act as a fair administrator for the whole nation and to unite all Germans. I rely on the sound sense of the German people who history shows have backed their leaders in danger and misery, inspired by a strong national will. In this sense, forward with God."

Cabinet Attacks Labor Unions.

The Von Papen government put new teeth into its wage cutting decree today by ruling that labor unions encouraging or supporting strikes will be held liable for damages or economic losses resulting from their resistance.

The new rule provides that labor unions can be held responsible if even a single member hinders the enforcement of the government's program. Legal experts to whom labor unions have appealed contend there is no statute in Germany under which a union can be held responsible for acts of isolated members.

A tremendous wave of restlessness has seized labor elements. They assert that wage cuts enforced with the help of the government "make coolies out of free German workers." Small strikes are breaking out or being threatened all over the country.

Call in Wage Arbitrators.

The government has called together wage arbitrators for a conference in Berlin tomorrow to instruct them how to act in case the strike wave spreads.

HOLDING CONCERN GETS PLAIN DEALER AND THE CLEVELAND NEWS

Cleveland, O., Oct. 4.—(AP)—The Cleveland Plain Dealer and the Cleveland News today announced they have been placed under joint ownership through the formation of the Forest City Publishing company, a $9,000,000 holding concern.

The separate identities, policies and managements of the two newspapers will be maintained, it was announced. The News is an afternoon paper and the Plain Dealer is in the morning field.

The Forest City company will acquire all of the stock of the Plain Dealer Publishing company and of the Cleveland company, which publishes the News. The holding company is headed by B. P. Bole, president of the Plain Dealer company. With Bole on the Forest City board of directors are George M. Rogers, John S. McCarrens, Dan R. Hanna Jr., John A. Hadden, G. S. Holden and I. F. Freiberger. Hanna and Haddan are directors of the Cleveland company.

The Cleveland News has been a Hanna property since 1912, when the late Dan R. Hanna Sr. acquired the newspaper from Charles A. Otis.

The Plain Dealer traces its existence back to January, 1842, when its name was used to designate a new weekly newspaper then published by A. M. and J. W. Gray, brothers. It became a daily in 1845.

In 1865 it was purchased by W. N. Armstrong, who owned and edited it until 1885 when a group including L. E. Holden bought the paper. Elbert H. Baker became head of the paper in 1893.

41,280 GALLONS OF BEER SEIZED IN NORTH SIDE RAID

Federal prohibition agents led by Chief Investigator Eliot Ness seized 41,280 gallons of beer valued at $64,000 in a raid yesterday afternoon on an alleged Capone syndicate brewery at 2513 Carmen avenue.

The agents found the doors of the warehouse, which housed the brewery, locked and barred. They gained entrance by climbing a ladder to a second floor window. A platform inside the window, recently vacated by a lookout, explained the absence of workmen, Ness said.

The agents found 20,000 gallons of beer, iced and ready for delivery, in two 10,000 gallon pressure tanks. Another 20,000 gallons of beer was found in eight tanks of 2,500 gallons capacity each. Forty barrels of beer and 60 empty barrels also were seized. More than $20,000 in equipment was confiscated.

Dutch Farmers Threaten to Boycott German Goods

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

THE HAGUE, Oct. 4.—Dutch agricultural associations today threatened to boycott all German goods following the breakdown of negotiations between a German delegation and the Dutch government concerning Germany's imposition of further restrictions on Dutch agricultural and dairy exports. Dutch farmers contend that the new restrictions will have a damaging effect on agriculture.

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 4.—(AP)—A Chihuahua dispatch tonight said three children were injured and six were reported missing in the collapse of the roof over a school there today. Recent heavy rains were blamed.

COURT DECIDES JOYCE MUST PAY $16,738 GEM BILL

James Stanley Joyce, wealthy lumberman and one of the earlier husbands of Peggy Hopkins Joyce, must pay a $16,738 jewelry bill contracted by his present wife, Mrs. Nelle Joyce, the Appellate court ruled yesterday.

Mrs. Joyce instituted divorce proceedings shortly after she purchased the jewelry in question in October, 1928. E. M. Gattle & Co., New York jewelers, filed suit against Joyce for the unpaid balance of a bill which was originally about $24,000. They won a verdict a year ago before Judge Paul McWilliams in the Superior court, on the contention that they would not have extended credit to Mrs. Joyce had it not been for the financial standing of her husband.

"It seems clear from the evidence that the failure of the defendant to pay the balance due arose from his marital difficulties, but surely the plaintiff should not be made to suffer for that situation," stated Appellate Judge Kickham Scanlan in the opinion upholding the verdict of Judge McWilliams.

Danish Premier Outlines Plan to Put Idle to Work

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

COPENHAGEN, Oct. 4.—Opening a new session of the Danish parliament today, Socialist Premier Stauning outlined his program to reduce unemployment. He predicted a reduction in working hours, a limitation of overtime, and a program of public works and building, including shipbuilding. Increased revenues, he said, must be sought through taxation of wealth and reduction of military expenditures.

HOOVER SOUNDS CAMPAIGN CRY; GIVES 12 POINTS

Offers Trade and Farm Revival Plans.

Answers Attack on Tariff.

Without mentioning names, the President in a "fighting speech" sailed into Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt's onslaughts on the Hawley-Smoot tariff, and Speaker John N. [Cactus Jack] Garner's exploits with the postoffice pork barrel bill.

Countering on Democratic shrieks all over the west against the "Grundized" tariff, Hoover remarked agriculture finds its basis of safety in the protective tariff on farm products.

The Iowans fairly ate it up when he set forth that what the American farmer needs is two things: First, higher prices; second, measures to keep him from losing his farm and home.

"What the Democrats propose," he said, "is to reduce your farm tariffs. Aside from ruin to agriculture, such an undertaking in the midst of this depression will disturb every possibility of recovery."

As point for his argument, Hoover said:

"There are 2,000,000 cattle in the northern states of Mexico seeking market. The price is about $2.50 per 100 pounds on the south bank of the Rio Grande. It is $4.50 on the north bank —and only the tariff wall between."

Cheers Punctuate Speech.

With cheers for punctuation, the President attacked the action of the Democratic house under the leadership of Garner, Roosevelt's running mate, who is widely known as "postoffice Jack."

When the vital need was to balance the budget to preserve the stability of the government and of currency and bonds and bank deposits, President Hoover cited the action of the Democratic house in producing a $1,200,000,000 pork barrel and the $2,300,000,000 cash bonus bill, to be paid by fiat money, hot off the printing presses.

In reviewing the critical situation from which he said Republican policies had rescued the nation, he disclosed that at one time the secretary of the treasury warned that America could cling to the gold standard only two weeks longer. The administration, he said, averted this danger which would have meant moral, economic and social chaos.

As to schemes of currency inflation, the President said:

"That would have made our currency a football," stirring them to cheers again.

Further he pointed out that by the time the Hoover economy measures to save $300,000,000 in the budget had gone through the "Democratic filter" it amounted to only $50,000,000 of savings, while meantime the Democrats passed the "rubber dollar" bill.

Says Rivals Retard Progress.

The President charged the action of the Democratic house retarded business recovery.

"Had their program passed," he said, "it would have been the end of recovery. If it ever passes, it will end hope of recovery."

Mr. Hoover said at no time in the campaign has a Democratic candidate disavowed these "destructive acts."

"Do you propose to place these men in power and subject the country to that sort of measures and policies?" he asked, while from the corn fed audience came shouts of "No, no."

"By their acts you shall know them," said the President.

Taking up the operations of the federal farm board, which have filled the agricultural states with hearty cursing for more than a year, Mr. Hoover held the law needs revision. He held that the board has proved beneficial in expanding "co-ops," but that difficulties have arisen from the stabilization provisions. Under this was projected the great half billion gamble of the farm board and its subsidiaries in which the taxpayers were loser.

Government in business through the buying and selling of goods, he remarked, was contrary to his theory of government.

Hail Speech Victory Sign.

Republicans tonight held the Hoover speech is the turn in the tide.

Iowa gave its native son President and Mrs. Hoover, also a native, a warm welcome. In the seven cities en route from the Mississippi river to the state capital, Mr. Hoover was met by smiling, cheering crowds. The welcome reached its climax in Des Moines. There was staged a spectacular entry, with 100,000 visitors crowding a four mile line of march, the greatest turnout in the city's history. Tonight the Coliseum was packed to the girders with a receptive, noisy, almost demonstrative audience.

Another audience listened over the amplifiers at the Shrine temple. On the state house plaza, a throng, after getting the speech by air, shivered in the bleak October night until 10 o'clock. Then Mr. and Mrs. Hoover appeared for a few minutes.

To Speak En Route East.

Tonight the Presidential party left at 11 o'clock, bearing back to Washington a far different impression of politics of the corn belt than it seemed to entertain this morning in the 7 o'clock drizzle in Chicago at Englewood station. The reception was such that ten short back platform speeches have been set for today in Indiana, Ohio and Pennsylvania.

Vermont G. O. P. Demands Dry Law Resubmission

Montpelier, Vt., Oct. 4.—(AP)—The Vermont Republican state convention today adopted a platform which included a plank favoring submission by congress to constitutional conventions of a proposal to repeal or modify the 18th amendment. Return of the saloon was opposed. The Republican national ticket, the national platform, the members of congress and Gov. Stanley C. Wilson were commended by the convention platform.

PRESIDENT HOOVER'S SPEECH TO FARMERS AT DES MOINES

DES MOINES, Ia., Oct. 4.—(AP)—Following is the complete text of President Hoover's address delivered before a large crowd in the Des Moines Coliseum tonight.

"I am glad, a son of the soil of this state, to come back where I was born and where I spent the first 10 years of my boyhood. My parents and grandparents came to Iowa in the covered wagon—pioneers in this community. They lie buried in your soil. They broke the prairie into homes of independent living. They worshipped God, they did their duty to their neighbors. They toiled to bring to their children greater comfort, better education, and to open to them a wider opportunity than theirs.

"It was my destiny in the solicitude for an orphaned family to be taken by the old emigrant railway train westward to the Pacific coast and ultimately to fix my home and hopes in California. My sons fly these long journeys in a span of daylight.

Doors of Opportunity.

"My experiences of later years have in no way diminished my memories and my gratitude to my native state. It was here that the doors of opportunity were first opened to me. It was here that I was given that tender care of mind and body, those first steps in education, that knowledge of poverty and struggle for family betterment which contribute to understanding of American life.

"And with it all, even in those days a boy had his first contact with the wider life of our nation. Not that childhood grasps or understands these questions, yet great forces then, as now, touched every farm in our country.

"As a boy I walked alongside the torchlight procession in the Garfield campaign; I was awed by the whispered anxiety when the President was shot by an assassin, and by the genuine grief of every person in that village when the flag was placed at half staff on his passing.

"I have been accorded the greatest honor which my country can bestow—that is to lead it amongst the nations of the world in the paths of peace and to serve in the stern duty of the battle against the invisible forces of a great world calamity.

First Economic Depression.

"It was th this community that I came in contact with my first economic depression. I was born in the midst of the terrible times of the seventies, with their poverty and their difficulties. And only in that period has our nation had to meet a situation in any degree comparable to that with which we now contend. That was the economic storm which struck us when the aftermath of the civil war coincided with the wars in Europe. But in those days agriculture and industry were less dependent upon each other, there was far less interdependence among the nations of the world, and thus the violence of the storm in human suffering and loss was infinitely less disastrous.

"Not that I would suggest that at that age I knew what an economic depression was or that I had ever heard the words, but I vividly recollect a Christmas upon the farm when the sole resources of joy were popcorn balls, sorghum, and hickory nuts, when for a flock of disappointed children there were no store toys, no store clothes, when it was carefully explained that because of the hard times everything must be saved for the mortgage. The word "mortgage" became for me a dreaded and haunting fear from that day to this.

"I know now from reading history that that Christmas was also a time when the country was coming out of that great depression. The Democratic party was still coquetting with the great panaces of that time, "greenbacks." I did not know what greenbacks were, but I do know that the family tightened its belt and, with confidence, voted for James A. Garfield, a Republican president.

Problems of Today.

"My purpose tonight is to deal with some of the problems of the day. Seldom in our history have we gone through greater dangers or have the difficulties before the nation been of such gravity. They attain this gravity not only because of the unprecedented dislocation in our domestic life but because our problems are world-wide.

"Aside from the value of truth the causes and origins of this unparalleled storm are of importance only as they indicate the policies we must pursue for our safety. I say to you that a storm which embraces the whole world, which ramified to every village in China, every sheep ranch in Patagonia, every factory in Germany, every mine in Australia, every countinghouse in England, every farm in the state of Iowa, is the result of a terrific eruption in civilization itself.

"Something infinitely deeper and of greater portent has happened to the world than any reaction from our own reckless speculation and exploitation. We are contending today with forces at home and abroad which still threaten the safety of civilization.

AFTERMATH OF WAR

Whole World Upset by Effect of the Great Struggle.

"I know it seems a far cry to the village home of America from the effect of 40,000,000 people killed, starved, and maimed in the great war, with all its loss in skill and character. It seems a far cry from the increase in debt of governments from $20,000,000,000 to $200,000,000,000, an amount two-thirds the value of everything in the whole United States. It seems a far cry from the effect of an increase in the peace armies of the world in 20 years from 2,000,000 to 5,000,000 men with the hate and suspicion they excite. It seems a far cry from the last 12 years of frantic political and financial policies of foreign nations, with the ultimate collapse of governments, of revolutions, and dictatorships.

"You can test the part which the great war played in the difficulties in your home and their relation to the gravity of the situation today right at your own doors.

"You will recollect that the values of your land doubled and trebled under the transitory demands of the great war. You will recollect the expansion of mortgages, the collapse in values immediately thereafter, the doubling of taxation, the aftermaths of all which are still a part of your problems. You know the stifling of your markets from the collapse of other nations under the calamities they have inherited from the war.

"We have fought an unending war against the effect of these calamities upon our people. This is no time to recount the battles on a thousand fronts. We have fought the good fight to protect our people in a thousand cities from hunger and cold.

"We have carried on an unceasing campaign to protect the nation from that unhealing class bitterness which arises from strikes and lockouts and industrial conflict. We have accomplished this through the willing agreement of employer and labor which placed humanity before money through the sacrifice of profits and dividends before wages. We have defended millions from the tragic result of droughts. We have mobilized a vast expansion of public construction to make work for the unemployed.

"We fought the battle to balance the budget. We have defended the country from being forced off the gold standard with its crushing effect upon all who are in debt. We have battled to provide a supply of credits to merchants and farmers and industries. We have fought to retard falling prices.

"We have struggled to save homes and farms from foreclosure of mortgages, battled to save millions of depositors and borrowers from the ruin caused by the failure of banks, fought to assure the safety of millions of policy holders from failure of their insurance companies and fought to save commerce and employment from the failure of railways.

Maintain World Peace.

"We have fought to secure disarmament and maintain the peace of the world, fought for stability of other countries whose failure would inevitably injure us. And above all we have fought to preserve the safety, the principles and ideals of American life. We have builded the foundations of recovery.

"All these battles, related and unrelated, have had a single strategy and a single purpose. That was to protect your living, your comfort, and the safety of your fireside. They have been waged and have succeeded in protecting you from infinitely greater harm which would have to come to you.

"Thousands of our people in their bitter distress and losses today are saying that 'things could not be worse.' No person who has any remote understanding of the forces which confronted this country during these last 18 months ever utters that remark. Had it not been for the immediate and unprecedented actions of our government, things would be infinitely worse today.

Disaster Averted.

"Instead of moving forward we would be degenerating for years to come even if we had not gone clear over the precipice with the total destruction of everything we hold dear.

"Let no man tell you that it could not be worse. It could be so much worse that these days now, distressing as they are, would look like veritable prosperity.

"In all these great efforts there has been the constant difficulty of translating the daily action into terms of public understanding. The forces in motion have been so gigantic, so complex in their character, the instrumentalities and actions we must undertake to deal with them are so involved, the figures we must use are so astronomical as to seem to have but little relation to the family in the apartment, the cottage or on the farm.

"Many of these battles have had to be fought in silence without the cheers of the limelight or the encouragement of public support, because the very disclosure of the forces opposed to us would have undermined the courage of the weak and induced panic in the timid, which would have destroyed the very basis of success.

FOUGHT OUT IN SILENCE

Victory Stopped Panic and Saved Nation from Collapse.

"Hideous misrepresentation and unjustified complaint had to be accepted in silence. It was as if a great battle in war should be fought without public knowledge of any incident except the stream of dead and wounded from the front. There has been much of tragedy, but there has been but little public evidence of the dangers and enormous risks from which a great national victory has been achieved.

"I have every confidence that the whole American people know in their hearts that there has been but one test in my mind, one supreme object in the measures and policies we have forged to win in this war against depression—that test was the interest of the people in the homes and at the firesides of our country. I have had before me but one vision; that is, the vision of the millions of homes of the type which I knew as a boy in this state.

"I wish to describe one of the battles we have fought to save this nation from a defeat that would have dragged farmers and city dwellers alike down to a common ruin. This battle was fought parallel with other battles on other fronts. Much of what I will tell you has been hitherto undisclosed. It had to be fought in silence, for it will be evident to you that had the whole of the forces in motion been made public at the time there would have been no hope of victory because of the panic through fear and destruction of confidence that the very disclosure would have brought.

Danger Is Passed.

"Happily we have won this battle There is no longer any danger from disclosure.

"Our own speculative boom had weakened our own economic structure, but the critical assaults and dangers swept upon us from foreign countries. We were therefore plunged into a battle against invading forces of destruction from abroad to preserve the financial integrity of our government; to counteract the terrific forces of deflation aligned against us; to protect the debtor class, who were being strangled by the contraction of credit and the demands for payment of debt; to prevent our being pushed off the gold standard, which in our country would have meant disaster to every person who owed money; and, finally, to preserve the savings of the American people.

"We were fighting to hold the Gibraltar of world stability, because only by holding this last fortress could we be saved from a crashing world with a decade of misery and the very destruction of our form of government and our ideals of national life.

"When 18 months ago the financial systems of Europe were no longer able to stand the strain of their war inheritances and of their afterwar economic and political policies, an earthquake ran through 40 nations. Financial panics; governments unable to meet their obligations; banks unable to pay their depositors; citizens, fearing inflation of currency, seeking to export their savings to foreign countries for safety; citizens of other nations demanding payment of their loans; financial and monetary systems either in collapse or remaining only in appearance.

"The shocks of this earthquake ran from Vienna to Berlin, from Berlin to London, from London to Asia and South America. From all those countries they came to this country, to every city and farm in the United States.

"First one and then another of these 40 nations either abandoned payment in gold of their obligations to other countries, or restricted payments by their citizens to foreign countries, so as practically to amount to at least temporary or partial repudiation of public and private debts. Every one of them in a frantic endeavor to reduce the expenditures of their goods.

"These events were not as children playing with blocks. They brought revolutions, mutinies, riots, downfalls of governments, and a seething of despair which threatened civilization.

German Moratorium.

"In order to prevent total collapse of the German people and its inevitable effect upon us, I brought about the German moratorium and so-called German standstill agreements by which Europe was given a breathing spell in which to arrange and stabilize its affairs.

"But the shocks grew in violence and finally at the end of September a year ago the difficulties of Europe culminated with the suspension of gold payments by the Bank of England, followed by many other nations. With no stability to foreign currencies trade again slackened because merchants could not calculate the amount they might realize when they shipped their goods.

"An amazing statement was made a few days ago in this state that the passage of the tariff act of 1930 started such a drain on the gold reserves of the principal commercial countries as to force practically all of them off the gold standard.'

"The facts are that the tariff act was not passed until nearly one year after the depression began. The earthquake started in Europe; the gold of Europe was not drained; it has increased in total every year since the passage of the act and is right now $1,500,000,000 greater than when the act was passed, and the tariff is still on.

FOREIGN DUMPING

Markets Swamped by American Stocks Sold by Aliens.

"It has been my daily task to analyze and know the forces which brought these calamities. I have had to look them in the face. They require far more penetration than such assertions as this indicate.

"The shocks which rocked these nations came from profound depths; their spread gave fearful blows to our own system, finally culminating last October in what, had they not been courageously met with unprecedented measures, would, because of our peculiar situation, have brought us to greater collapse than even other countries.

"The first effect of these shocks on us was from foreign dumping of American securities on our markets, which demoralized prices upon our exchanges, foreign buying power stagnated because of their internal paralysis, and this in turn stifled the markets for our farm and factory products, increased our unemployment, and by piling up our surpluses demoralized our commodity prices.

"The frantic restrictive measures on exchanges and the abandonment of gold standards made it impossible for American citizens to collect billions of the moneys due to us for goods which our citizens had sold abroad, or short term loans they had made to facilitate commerce. At the same time citizens of those countries demanded payment from our citizens of the moneys due for goods they had sold to our merchants and for securities they had sold in our country.

Billion of Gold Drained.

"Before the end, foreign countries drained us of nearly a billion dollars of gold and a vast amount of other exchange.

"Then we had also to meet an attack upon our own flank by some of our own people who, becoming infected with world fear and panic, withdrew vast sums from our own banks and hoarded it from the use of our own people, to the amount of $1,500,000,000. This brought its own train of failures and bankruptcies. Even worse, many of our less patriotic citizens started to export their money to foreign countries for fear we should be forced onto a paper money basis.

"All this cataclysm did not develop at once; it came blow by blow; its effect upon us grew steadily; our difficulties mounted higher day by day.

"This is no time to trace its effect stage by stage. No statement of mine is needed to portray the effect upon you. No statement of mine could portray the full measure of perils which threatened us.

"Three of the great perils were invisible except to those who had the responsibility of dealing with the situation.

"The first of these perils was the steady strangulation of credit through the removal of three billions of gold and currency by foreign drains and by hoarding from the channels of our commerce and business. And let me remind you that credit is the lifeblood of business, of prices, and of jobs.

"Had the full consequences of this action been allowed to run their full extent it would have resulted, under our system of currency and banking, in the deflation of credit anywhere from 20 to 25 billions, or the destruction of nearly half the immediate working capital of the country.

"There would have been almost a universal call for payment of debt which would have brought about universal bankruptcy, because property could not be converted to cash, no matter what its value.

Federal Revenues Halved.

"And there were other forces equally dangerous. The tax income of the federal government is largely based upon profits and income. As these profits and income disappeared the federal revenues fell by nearly one-half, and thus the very stability of the federal treasury was imperiled. The government was compelled to borrow enormous sums to pay current expenses.

"The third peril, which we escaped only by the most drastic action, was that of being forced off the gold standard. I would like to make clear to you what that would have meant had we failed in that sector of the battle. Going off the gold standard in the United States would have been a most crushing blow to most of those with savings and those who owed money, and it was these we were fighting to protect.

"Going off the gold standard is no academic matter. By going off the gold standard gold goes to a premium and the currency dollar becomes depreciated. Largely as a result of fears generated by the experience after the civil war and by the Democartic free silver campaign in 1896 our people have long insisted upon writing a large part of their long term debtor documents as payable in gold.

Securities Based on Gold.

"A considerable part of farm mortgages, most of our industrial and all of our government, most of our state and municipal bonds, and most other long term obligations are written as payable in gold. This is not the case in foreign countries. They have no such practice; their obligations are written in currency. When they abandon the gold standard, and gold goes to a premium, the relations of their domestic debtors and creditors are unchanged because both he who pays and he who receives use the same medium.

"But if the United States had been forced off the gold standard you in this city would have sold your produce for depreciated currency. You would be paid your bank deposits and your insurance policy in currency, but you would have to pay a premium on such of your debts as are written in gold. The federal government, many of the states, the municipalities, to meet their obligations would need to increase taxes which are payable in currency, in order to pay the gold premium, provided of course they did not repudiate.

"I believe I can make clear why we were in danger of being forced off even with our theoretically large stocks of gold. I have told you of the enormous sums of gold and exchange drained from us by foreigners. You will realize also that our citizens who hoard federal reserve and some other forms of currency are in effect hoarding gold, because under the law we must maintain a 40 per cent gold reserve behind such currency.

GOLD STANDARD SAVED

Disaster Escaped by Margin of Only Two Weeks' Time.

"Owing to the lack in the federal reserve system of the kind of securities required by the law for the additional 60 per cent of coverage of the currency, the reserve system was forced to increase its gold reserve up to 75 per cent. Thus with $1,500,000,000 of hoarded curency, there was in effect over $1,000,000,000 of gold hoarded by our own citizens.

"These drains had at one moment reduced the amount of gold we could spare for current payments to a point where the secretary of the treasury informed me that unless we could put into effect a remedy we could not hold to the gold standard but two weeks longer because of inability to meet the demands of foreigners and our own citizens for gold.

"Being forced off the gold standard in the United States meant utter chaos. Never was our nation in greater peril, not alone in banks and financial systems, money and currency, that forbode dangers, moral and social chaos, with years of conflict and derangement.

Panaceas Ignored.

"In the midst of this hurricane the Republican administration kept a cool head and rejected every counsel of weakness of cowardice. Some of the reactionary economists urged that we should allow the liquidation to take its course until we had found bottom. Some people talked of vast issues of paper money. Some talked of suspending payments of government issues. Some talked of setting up a counsel of national defense.

"Some talked foolishly of dictatorship, any of which would have produced panic itself. Some assured me that no man could propose increased taxes in the United States to balance the budget in the midst of a depression and survive an election.

"We determined that we should not enter the morass of using the printing press for currency or bonds. All human experience has demonstrated that that path once taken can not be stopped, and that the moral integrity of the government would be sacrificed, because ultimately both currency and bonds would become valueless.

"We determined that we would not follow the advice of the bitter-end liquidationists and see the whole body of debtors of the United States brought to bankruptcy and the savings of our people brought to destruction. We determined we would stand up like men and render the credit of the United States government impregnable through the drastic reduction of government expenditures and increased revenues until we balanced our budget.

"We determined that if necessary we should lend the full credit of the government, thus made impregnable, to aid private institutions to protect the debtor and the savings of our people.

Federal Reserve Changes.

"We decided upon changes in the federal reserve system which would make our gold active in commercial use and that we would keep the American dollar ringing true in every city in America and in the world. That we would expand credit to offset the contraction brought about by hoarding and foreign withdrawals. That we would strengthen the federal land banks and all other mortgage institutions. That we would lend to the farmers for production. That we would protect the insurance companies, the building and loan associations, the savings banks, the country banks, and every other point of weakness.

"We determined to place the shield of the federal government in front of the local communities in protection of those in distress and that we would increase employment through profitable construction work with the aid of government credit.

"On the 3d of October last year I called to Washington the leading bankers of the country and secured from them an agreement to combine the resources of the banks to stem the tide. They pledged themselves to $500,000,000 for this purpose.

Calls Leaders of Parties.

"On Oct. 6 I called in the leaders of both political parties. I placed before them the situation at home and abroad. I asked unity of national action.

"We published a united determination to the country. The people drew a breath of relief, the ship swung to a more even keel, but by the 1st of December the storm had grown in further intensity abroad and the menace became more serious than ever before. With the opening of congress in December I laid before it a program of unprecedented dimensions to meet an unprecedented situation.

"The battalions and regiments and armies thus mobilized for this great battle turned the tide toward victory by July. The foreigners drew out most of their money, but finding that the American dollar rang honest on every counter, in new confidence they are sending it back.

"Since June $275,000,000 of gold has flowed back to us from abroad. Hoarders in our own country, finding our institutions safeguarded, have returned $250,000,000 to the useful channels of business. The securities held by our insurance companies, our savings banks, and our benevolent trusts have recovered in value. The rills of credit are expanding. The pressure on the debtor to sacrifice his all in order to pay is relaxing. Men are daily being reemployed.

"If we calculate the values of this year's agricultural products compared with the low points, the farmers as a whole are, despite the heartbreaking distress which still exists, a billion dollars better off. Prices have a long way to go before the farmer has an adequate return, but at least the turn is toward recovery.

"I have been talking of currency, of gold, of credit, of bonds, of banks, of insurance policies, of loans. Do not think these things have no human interpretation. The happiness of 120,000,000 people was at stake in the measure to enable the government to meet its debts and obligations, in saving the gold standard, in enabling 5,500 banks, insurance companies, building and loan associations, and a multitude of other institutions to pay their obligations and ease pressure upon their debtors.

"These institutions have been rendered safe and with them their 30,000,000 depositors, policyholders, and borrowers. More than half of all of them were in the midwest, 500 in your own state of Iowa. Had they gone down, the shock of their failure would have carried down with them every man and institution who owed money and the whole employment and marketing fabric of the United States.

"I wish I were able to translate what these perils, had they not been overcome, would have meant to each person in America. The financial system is not alone intrusted with your savings. Its failure means that the manufacturer cannot pay his worker, the worker his grocer, the merchant cannot buy his stock of goods, the farmer cannot sell his products. The great clock of economic life would stop. Had we failed, disaster would have translated itself into despair in every home, every city, village, and farm.

"We won this great battle to protect our people at home. We held the Gibraltar of world stability. The world today has a chance; it is growing in strength. Let that man who complains that things could not be worse thank God for this victory and make reverent acknowledgment of the courage and stamina of a great democracy.

Assails Democratic Leadership.

"Let us be thankful for the presence in Washington of a Republican administration. I say this with full consideration of its portent, for I wish to call your attention to the part which the dominating leadership of the Democratic party has played in this great crisis. I wish to bring before you the real doctrines and program of the men who then and now and in the future will dominate that party.

"You will recall that the congressional election two years ago gave the control of the lower house of congress to our opponents. They were also in a position to control the policies of the senate. After that election their leaders announced to the world that their party would present a program to restore prosperity. One year later, when the new congress assembled last December in the midst of this crisis, they presented no program.

"The administration did present a program which has saved the country from complete disaster. That program was patriotically supported by many members of the Democratic party, who joined in enactment of these measures; to these men who placed patriotism above party I pay tribute, but later in the session the opposition majority of the house of representatives could not restrain their real purposes and doctrines.

THE PORK BARREL

Democrats Slapped for Their Attempts at Raid on Treasury.

"It is of importance for the country to realize what that program was, for the American people are asked to intrust the future of the United States in the hands of these same men and to these policies.

"At a time when the most vital need was for reduction in expenditure and balancing of the budget to preserve the stability of the federal government as the kystone of all stability they produced a program of pork barrel legislation in the sum of $1,200,000,000 for nonproductive and unnecessary works at the expense of the taxpayers.

"They produced the cash bonus bill. They passed that through the house of representatives by their leadership. I opposed it. It failed to pass the senate. Under that bill it was proposed to expend $2,300,000,000. Worse still, the bill they passed provided the bonus should be paid through the creation of sheer fiat money. That would have made our currency the football of every speculator and every vicious element in the financial world at the very time when we were fighting for the honesty of American dollars.

"I can do no better than to quote Daniel Webster who, 100 years ago, made one of the most prophetic statements ever made when he said, 'He who tampers with the currency robs labor of its bread. He panders, indeed, to greedy capital, which is keen sighted and may shift for itself, but he beggars labor, which is unsuspecting and too busy with the present to calculate for the future. The prosperity of the work people lives, moves, and has its being in established credit and steady medium of payment.'

"The experience of scores of governments in the world since that day has confirmed Webster's statement, and yet the dominant leadership of the Democratic party passed that measure to issue paper money through the house of representatives.

"And further, the administration proposed economy measures to bring about reduction in specialized government expenditures by $300,000,000. When those recommendations had passed through the filter of the Democratic majority in the house only $50,000,000 of savings were left. Yet we hear many speeches from them upon economy. They passed a bill to destroy the effectiveness of the tariff commission. I vetoed that bill.

"They passed a price fixing bill creating what might be colloquially called the 'rubber dollar.' I opposed this. It was held up in the senate. They passed a provision for loans to corporations and everybody else whether they were affected and guarded by public interest or not. It would have made the government the most gigantic pawnbroker of history. I vetoed this measure. They passed other measures with this same reckless disregard for the safety of the nation.

Public Confidence Undermined.

"All this undermined public confidence and delayed all the efforts of the administration and the powerful instrumentalities which we had placed in action to save the country. These measures, representing the dominant Democratic control, brought discouragement and delay to recovery.

"That recovery began the moment when it was certain that these destructive measures of this Democratic controlled house were stopped. Had their program passed it would have been the end of recovery. If it ever passes it will end hope of recovery.

"These measures were not simply gestures for vote catching. These ideas and measures represented the true sentiments and doctrines of the majority in control of the Democratic party. A small minority of Democratic members disapproved these measures, but these men obviously have no voice today.

"This program was passed through the Democratic house of representatives under the leadership of the gentleman who has been nominated the Democratic candidate for Vice President and thus these measures and policies were approved by their party.

Democrats Are Silent.

"At no time in public discussion of the vital issues of this campaign has any Democratic candidate, high or low, disavowed these destructive acts which must emerge again if they come to power. I ask you to compare this actual Democratic program and these Democratic actions with the constructive program produced by the administration to meet the emergency.

"Do you propose to place these men in power and subject this country to that sort of measures and policies? It is by their acts in congress and their leadership that you shall know them.

"Of vital concern to you are the difficulties of agriculture. They have been of vital concern to me for the whole of these difficult years. I have been at the post to which the first news of every disaster is delivered, to which no detail of human suffering is spared. I have heard the cries of distress, and not only as a sympathetic listener but as one oppressed by a deep sense of responsibility to do all that human ingenuity could devise.

"I wish to speak directly to those of my hearers who are farmers of what is on my mind, of what is in my heart, to tell you the conclusions I have reached from this bitter experience of the years in dealing with these problems which affect agriculture at home and their relations to foreign countries.

"That agriculture is prostrate needs no proof. You have saved and economized and worked to reduce costs, but with all this yours is a story of distress and suffering.

NEEDS OF THE FARMER

Fighting Chance to Save Farm Is First Thing to Be Offered.

"What the farmer wants and needs is higher prices, and, in the meantime, to keep from being dispossessed from his farm, to have a fighting chance to keep his home. The pressing question is how these two things are to be attained.

"Every decent citizen wants to see the farmer receive higher prices and wants to see him hold his home. Every citizen realizes that the general recovery of the country cannot be attained unless these things are secured to the farmer. Every thinking citizen knows that most of these low price levels and most of this distress, except in one or two commodities where there is an unwieldy surplus, is due to the decreased demand for farm products by our millions of unemployed and by foreign countries.

"Every citizen knows that part of this unemployment is due to the inability of the farmer to buy the products of the factory. Every thinking citizen knows that the farmer, the worker, and the business man are in the same boat and must all come to shore together.

"Every citizen who stretches his vision across the United States realizes that for the last three years we have been on this downward spiral due to the destructive forces which I have already described. If he has this vision, he today takes courage and hope because he also knows that these destructive forces have been stopped; that the spiral is moving upward; that more men are being employed and are able to consume more agricultural products.

Policies Winning Out.

"The policies of the Republican party and the unprecedented instrumentalities and measures which we have put in motion, many of which are designed directly for agriculture, are winning out. If we continue to fight along these lines we shall win.

"The very basis of safety to American agriculture is the protective tariff on farm products.

"The Republican party originated and proposes to maintain the protective tariff on agricultural products. We will even widen that tariff further where necessary to protect agriculture. Ninety per cent of your market is at home, and I propose to reserve this market to the American farmer.

"Has the Democratic party ever proposed or supported a protective tariff on farm products? Has it ever given one single evidence of protection of the home market to the American farmer from the products raised by peasant labor on cheap land abroad?

Highlights in Hoover Speech

Des Moines, Ia., Oct. 4.—(AP)—"Three of the great perils (of the depression) were invisible except to those who had the responsibility of dealing with the situation. The first, the steady strangulation of credit. Another, federal revenues fell by nearly one-half. The third peril, that of being forced off the gold standard."

* *

"Thousands of our people in their bitter distress and losses are saying that 'things could not be worse.' No person who has any remote understanding ever utters that remark. Had it not been for the immediate and unprecedented actions of our government, things would be infinitely worse today."

* *

"Let no man tell you it could not be worse. It could be so much worse that these days now, distressing as they are, would look like veritable prosperity."

* *

"In order to prevent the total collapse of the German people and its inevitable effect upon us, I brought about the Germany moratorium and so called German standstill agreements by which Europe was given a breathing spell to arrange and stabilize its affairs."

* *

"Our own people, infected with world fear and panic, withdrew and hoarded $1,500,000,000. This brought its own train of failures and bankruptcies."

* *

"At one point the secretary of the treasury informed me that unless we could put into effect a remedy we could hold to the gold standard but two weeks longer. Never was our nation in greater peril."

* *

"If we calculate the value of this year's agricultural products compared with the low points the farmers as a whole are, despite the heartbreaking distress which still exists, a billion dollars better off. Prices have a long way to go before the farmer has an adequate return, but at least the turn is toward recovery."

* *

"We won this great battle to protect our people at home. We held the Gibraltar of world stability. The world today has a chance. It is growing in strength. Let that man who complains that things could not be worse thank God for this victory and make reverent acknowledgment of the courage and stamina of a great democracy."

"When the $300,000,000 administration economy measure had passed through the filter of the Democratic majority in the house only $50,000,000 were left. I vetoed the bill."

PRESIDENT GREETS HIS IOWA TEACHER ON SPECIAL TRAIN

West Liberty, Ia., Oct. 4.—(AP)—President Hoover today recalled "sliding down hill on one's tummy," when he met his third grade teacher, Mrs. Mollie Brown Carran, here.

Mrs. Carran, in turn reminisced about the time 10 year old Herbert was told by a school director that one day he might be President of the United States.

Their meeting—aboard the President's special train en route to Des Moines—was the first since Mrs. Carran was honored by being a guest at the first meal the President ate in the White House after he was inaugurated.

Today she sat beside Mrs. Hoover in the private car; she was told she would have a special automobile in the President's parade in Iowa's capital city and be in his party in the Coliseum, scene of a Republican rally.

"The devoted and self-sacrificing teacher of my first schooling," President Hoover said of Mrs. Carran to the cheering, pennant waving crowds of West Liberty, closest stop to his West Branch birthplace.

"No food will ever taste so good as the family supper of those days. No sport will ever equal the mud lined swimming hole. No speed will ever seem so great as sliding down hill on one's tummy."

HOOVER SPEECH TO U. S. FARMERS AT DES MOINES

Reveals Story of Fight on Depression.

in 1913 and placed them on the free list. A Republican congress passed the emergency farm tariff in 1921 and a Democratic President vetoed it.

G. O. P. Passes Tariff.

"The Democratic minority in the next congress in 1921 voted against the revived emergency farm tariff. The Republican majority passed it and the Republican President signed it. The Democratic minority voted against the increase of agricultural tariffs in the Republican tariff of 1922.

"Most of the Democratic members of congress voted against the increases in the tariff bill of 1930. Their platform enunciates the principle of 'a competitive tariff for revenue.' The competition that means is peasant labor and cheap lands.

"Their candidate states: 'We sit on the high wall of a Hawley-Smoot tariff'; 'Sealed by the highest tariff in the history of the world'; 'A wicked and exorbitant tariff'; 'A ghastly jest'; 'Our policy declares for lowered tariffs.' This is a promise of reduction of farm tariffs. They will reduce agricultural tariffs if they come into power. Since when have our opponents become the friends of the farmer?

"When you return to your home you can compare prices with foreign countries and count up this proposed destruction at your own firesides. There are this minute 2,000,000 cattle in the northern states of Mexico seeking market. The price is about $2.50 per 100 pounds on the south bank of the Rio Grande. It is $4.50 on the north bank—and only the tariff wall between.

Guardianship of Tariff.

"Bad as our prices are, if we take comparable prices of farm products today in the United States and abroad, I am informed by the department of agriculture that you will find that, except for the guardianship of the tariff, butter could be imported for 25 per cent below your prices, pork products for 30 per cent below your prices, lamb and beef products from 30 to 50 per cent below your prices, flaxseed for 35 per cent below your prices, beans for 40 per cent below your prices, and wool 30 per cent below your prices.

"Both corn and wheat could be sold in New York from the Argentine at prices below yours at this moment were it not for the tariff. I suppose these are ghastly jests.

"The removal of or reduction of the tariff on farm products means a flood of them into the United States from every direction, and either you would be forced still further to reduce your prices or your products would rot on your farms.

Question of Reprisals.

"The opposition party has endeavored to persuade you that increased tariffs abroad are reprisals against the United States. There are a half dozen suppressions of truth in this statement of profound interest to the farmer. This first is that many increases in tariffs abroad took place before, not after, our farm tariffs were increased.

"I wish to state frankly the difficulties that have arisen under some other portions of the act. They arise mostly from the so-called stabilization provisions, which never were and are not now the major purpose of the farm board. Even indirect purchase and sale of commodities is absolutely opposed to my theory of government.

"When the panic struck agricultural prices the board determined that unless the markets were supported hundreds of thousands of farmers would be bankrupt by the sale of their products at less than the money they had already borrowed upon them, that a thousand country banks would likely be closed, and that a general panic was possible.

Damaging Aftermath.

"As a result of these emergency purchases the prices of farm commodities were temporarily held and their fall cushioned. The farmers secured hundreds of millions of dollars of income which they would not otherwise have received.

"Experience has shown that the patent weakness of such actions is the damaging aftermath which accompanies disposal of these products. I am convinced that the act should be revised in the interest of the farmer in the light of our three years of experience and this proposal should be repealed.

"The second is that the restrictions on imports in most cases are not directed at the United States. They are for the purpose of reducing all expenditures of their people during their financial crises.

"The third is that if we survey the growls of some nations when our tariffs were changed we find their objections in overwhelming majority were directed at the increase in our agricultural tariffs. American farmers are entitled to know this. The very object of our increases was to protect you in the home market.

"The main thing these foreign countries want is entrance for their surplus agricultural products into our markets. Many of these countries would decrease their tariffs against our industrial goods tomorrow in exchange for reduction on their farm products, but that is no help to our farmers.

FLEXIBLE TARIFF

Victory Won After Twenty-five Years of Struggle for It.

"The Democratic party proposes that they would enter into bargaining tariffs to secure special concessions from other countries. They represent this to be in the farmers' interest. But I may tell you here and now that the largest part of the whole world desires to make only one bargain with the United States. The bargain these countries wish to make is to lower our tariff on agricultural products in exchange for lowering their tariffs on our industrial goods. American industrial leaders realizing the needs of the American farmer do not want to be a party to such bargains.

"All tariff acts contain injustices and inequities. That is the case with the last tariff bill. Some people get too much and some too little. But those of you who have followed the accomplishments of this administration will recollect that I secured in the last tariff act, 25 years after it had originally been advocated by President Theodore Roosevelt, the adoption of effective flexible tariff provisions to be administered by a bipartisan body. That authority to a bipartisan tariff commission is based upon a definite principle of protection to our people and it is one of the most progressive acts which have been secured in the history of all legislation.

"By maintaining that reform the country need no longer be faced with heartbreaking, log rolling selfishness and greed which come to the surface on every occasion when congress revises the tariff.

Revision Under Way.

"This bipartisan tariff commission has now been engaged for over 18 months in an effective revision of the tariff. It has heard every complaint. It has found that many rates were just, some were too high, and some too low. But if there are tariffs which are too high and result in some damage to the United States, those tariffs can be readjusted by mere application to the commission. That tribunal is open to all the people.

"Our opponents opposed this reform in tariff legislation. They passed a bill last session to destroy the independence of the commission. They promise in their platform to destroy it. The reasons for this action are obvious. The bipartisan tariff commission has proved a serious political embarrassment to them.

"Either house of congress has the right to call upon the tariff commission for reconsideration of any schedule. Notwithstanding their outcries against the 1930 tariff act the Democratic controlled house of representatives, after being in session for seven months, did not pass a single resolution requesting readjustment of a single commodity or a single schedule.

"What the Democratic party proposes is to reduce your farm tariffs. Aside from ruin to agriculture, such an undertaking in the midst of this depression will disturb every possibility of recovery.

Farm Marketing Act.

"Four years ago organized agriculture requested the passage of an agricultural marketing act. I called a special session of congress to pass such an act and increase tariffs on farm products. A distinguished board of men recommended by organized agriculture was appointed to administer the act. Those portions of the board's activities which directed themselves to the support and expansion of cooperative marketing organizations have proved of great benefit to the farmer. Today over a million farm families participate in the benefits which flow from it.

"For several years the United States department of agriculture has studied the complex social and economic problems which lie embedded in the general problem of land use. About a year ago these studies had reached such a point that the secretary of agriculture felt justified in calling a conference of economists, farm leaders, and agricultural college authorities, to formulate practical means of action.

"The broad objective of such a program is to promote the reorganization of agriculture so as to divert lands from unprofitable to profitable use, and to avoid the cultivation of lands, the chief return of which is the poverty and misery of those who live upon them. The Republican platform contains a plank which constitutes the first declaration upon this subject. I shall be happy to support a sound platform.

Recalls Waterway Pledge.

"Four years ago, in this state, I gave assurance to the farmers that one of the first policies of my administration would be the vigorous prosecution and completion of the inland waterway system and advancement of the great lakes-St. Lawrence seaway as a fundamental relief to agriculture by cheaper transportation. I am glad to report to you that more than twice the amount of work has been done on the waterways in the last three years than in any similar period in the history of the United States.

"I am also glad to report that after 20 years of discussion, examinations, and intermittent negotiation, a treaty has been signed with Canada which only awaits ratification of the United States senate and the Dominion parliament for us to undertake that great contribution to the strengthening of midwest agriculture in reaching out to world markets.

"We have suffered from unprecedented droughts both in the north and south of you. Some other sections were unable to obtain credit for seed and feed for live stock. Through various government agencies loans to the amount of $120,000,000 have been made to 900,000 of our families to rehabilitate their production and ameliorate these conditions. Some of these families are in difficulties in making immediate repayment because of demoralized prices. I have seen to it that they are not unduly pressed.

Land Tax Disproportionate.

"Last April I delivered an address to the conference of the governors of the various states. I stated in effect that the most inflexible tax in our country is the tax on land and on real property. It is the least adaptable to the varying income of the taxpayers. I stated that in the present situation the taxes upon farms and homes have become almost unbearable, that such taxes are wholly out of proportion to other forms of taxes.

"I stated then emphatically that there is no farm relief more needed today than readjustment of land taxes.

"The federal government collects no direct property taxes, but at that meeting I proposed that we should review the whole relations of our tax system between federal, state and local governments and seek a basis of taxation for each that would give opportunity for readjustments between our different forms of government.

"Such readjustments should be found which would enable the states to find other sources of tax revenue, and would more equitably distribute the burden over the whole people. I announced last April that I would call tax experts of the nation together to determine methods we should pursue. I shall do so as soon as the national election is out of the way, and I shall then recommend methods to congress.

Preserving Farm Credit.

"The very first necessity to prevent collapse and secure recovery in agriculture has been to keep open to the farmer the banking and other sources from which to make short term loans for planting, harvesting, feeding live stock, and other production necessities.

"That has been accomplished indirectly in a large measure through the increased authority to the federal reserve system and its expansion of credits, and indirectly through the Reconstruction corporation loans to your banks. It has been aided directly through the intermediate credit banks and through the ten new agricultural credit institutions which alone can command over 300 million dollars credit and which are now being erected in all parts of the country.

"We are thus rapidly everywhere restoring normal short term credits to agriculture.

"In another direction upon my recommendation the Reconstruction corporation has been authorized to make credit available to processors to purchase and carry their usual stocks of agricultural products and thus relieve a burden which was resting upon farm prices because the farmer was forced to carry these stocks.

Credit for Sales Abroad.

"But, even more important than this, at my recommendation the Reconstruction corporation has been authorized to make credits available for sales of farm products in new markets abroad. This is today and will with increasing activity extend immediate markets in relief of farmers and prices of products.

"The mortgage situation—that is, long term credits—is one of our most difficult problems. On Oct. 6 a year ago I secured and published an undertaking from the leaders of both political parties that we should extend aid to this situation. In December we appropriated $125,000,000 directly to increase the capital of the federal land banks, and we provided further capital through authority that the Reconstruction corporation should purchase the bonds of these banks.

"The purpose was to enable the federal land banks to expand their activities and to give humane and constructive consideration to those indebted to them who were in difficulties. In the large sense it has pursued this policy. A little over 1 per cent of the farms held under mortgage by the federal land bank system today are under foreclosure, and these mostly cases where men wished to give up.

Discusses Land Banks.

"The character of the organization of the joint stock land banks whose business methods are not controlled by the federal farm loan board has resulted in disastrous and unjust pressure for payments in some of these banks. The basis of that organization should be remedied.

"We have sought further to aid the whole mortgage situation by loans from the Reconstruction corporation to banks, mortgage companies and insurance companies to enable them to show consideration to their farmer borrowers. As a result of these actions hundreds of thousands of foreclosures have been prevented.

"But despite the relief afforded by these measures the mortgage situation has become more acute. There must be more effective relief. In it lies a primary social problm. I conceive that in this civilization of ours, and more particularly under our distinctive American system, there is one primary necessity to its permanent success. That is, we must build up men and women in their own homes, on their own farms, where they may find their own security and express their own individuality.

"A nation on such foundations is a nation where the real satisfactions of life and happiness thrive, and where real freedom of mind and aspiration secure that individual progress in morals, in spirit, and accomplishment, the sum of which makes up the greatness of America.

"Some will say this is a mere ideal. I am not ashamed of ideals. America was founded upon them, but they must be the premise for practical action.

Aid from Private Agencies.

"And for prompt and practical action I have, during the last month, secured definite and positive steps in coördination of the policies not only of the federal agencies but the important private mortgage agencies as well. These agencies have undertaken to give their help.

"But further and more definitely than this I shall propose to congress at the next session that we further reorganize the federal land banks and give to them the resources and liberty of action necessary to enable them

BANNERS GREETING HOOVER IN IOWA NOT ALL COMPLIMENTARY

Des Moines, Ia., Oct. 4.—[Special.]—Herbert Hoover, the West Branch farm boy who went out into the wide world to make good, came home to meet some Iowa farmers who were not so friendly. More than 2,000 men, women and children, dressed in overalls or working clothes, marched through Des Moines streets. They bore banners, some of which read:

"Hoover, Hyde, hell and hard times —The Republican 4-H Club."

"Mr. and Mrs. Iowa Farmer."

"In Hoover we trusted; now we are busted."

"Cost of production only will save our homes."

"Mr. Curtis: We are not too damned dumb in 1932."

improved prices was to stop the general deflation. By deflation, I mean the lessening of market values and prices for land, products of the land, manufacturers and all securities. That battle has been won.

"The next attack on this front is to reverse these processes of deflation and bring things back to their real values. That battle is in progress.

"The government is giving aid by its vast constructive program for agriculture, for commerce and for industry. Through the renewed flow of credit for industry and by direct measures of employment, by the great cooperative movements which we have instituted in commerce and industry, for attacks all along the line, we are returning men to work. Every new man reëmployed is a greater purchaser of farm products.

Promote World Stability.

"Wherever we properly can, without entangling ourselves in political difficulties abroad, we are joining for the rehabilitation of the world and thereby the foreign markets for agricultural products.

"I come to you with no economic patent medicine especially compounded for farmers. I refuse to offer counterfeit currency or false hopes. I will not make any pledges to you which I cannot fulfill.

"As I have stated before, in the shifting battle against depression, we shall need to adopt new measures and new tactics as the battle moves on. The essential thing is that we should build soundly and solidly for the future. My solicitude and willingness to advance and protect the interests of agriculture is shown by the record. Protection and advancement of this industry will have my continued deepest concern for in it lies the progress of all America. It was in this industry that I was born.

"The battle against depression is making progress. We are still faced with forces which render 10 million men idle and agriculture prostrate. We have forged new weapons, we have turned the tide from defense to attack. I shall continue the fight. It calls for that cooperation, that courage, that patience and fortitude with which our fathers conquered these prairies.

FARMER NOT SELFISH

Interested in the Welfare of Whole Nation and of All Peoples.

"In conclusion, my friends, there are many other subjects of vast importance to our country. The farmers of America are not selfishly interested in their own industry alone. They are Americans with the same concern for the welfare of the nation in its multitude of other problems, both at home and abroad. Time does not permit of their exposition tonight.

"The issues are grave, the stake is great. These issues rise above the concern of an ordinary campaign. Our cause is not alone the restoration of prosperity. It is soundly and sanely to correct the weaknesses in our system which this depression has brought to the surface. It is the maintenance of courageous integrity in political action and in government. It is the holding of this nation to the principles and ideals which it has had from the beginning. It is to make free men and women.

"Finally, let me deal for a moment with the ultimate realities. I have had to describe the complicated processes of currencies and taxation and other such dreary things. They are but the tools we use to manage the processes by which we answer the old, old question, wherewithal shall we live. They are necessary tools, but they are not an end in themselves.

25 Million Families.

"Our toils and cares are for a higher purpose. We are not a nation of 120 millions of solitary individuals, we are a nation of 25 million families dwelling in 25 million homes, each warmed by the fires of affection and cherishing within it a mutual solicitude for kinsfolk and children. Their safety is what we are really striving for. Their happiness is our true concern.

"Our most solemn hope for them is that they may share richly in a spiritual life as well, that puts them not only at peace with their fellows but also in harmony with the will of a beneficent Providence. Out of our strivings for material blessings must come safety for homes and schools and churches and holding of national ideals, the forming of national character. These are the real aspirations of our people. These are the promises of America, and those promises must be fulfilled."

SMITH BURIES HATCHET; OUT FOR ROOSEVELT

They Shake Hands While Thousands Cheer.

dricks announced that the first order of business would be the nomination of a governor he boomed out:

"I recognize the Hon. Alfred E. Smith of New York."

Mr. Smith began his speech nominating Lehman with an attack on President Hoover and the Republican administration. He charged the Republicans with having been responsible for the depression, through their high tariffs and manipulations of foreign credits, and then with ignoring the condition for many precious months.

The happy warrior was in great form tonight and with his characteristic force—and not a few wisecracks at the expense of the Republicans—Al Smith went his way for Mr. Lehman. Beads of perspiration fell unheeded from his face as the heat of the armory combined with his energetic delivery brought the sweat rolling from the warrior's brow.

"Four years ago," he said, "we were given to understand that our Republican brethren had some kind of a peculiar patent on prosperity, that there was something about Republican administration that could so bend itself as to meet economic conditions within our own lands as well as abroad. It was a kind of an Aladdin lamp proposition, all you had to do was to rub the mysterious lamp and to make some kind of a wish and under Republican auspices it was immediately granted.

The Old Full Dinner Pail.

"About this time four years ago the old full dinner pail was working overtime. The venerable old gentlemen with the cutaway coat brought it down from the garret and had it polished so that it would look like this new stainless steel that has been recently invented. And we had the rosy promise of nothing to eat but chicken, every laborer with an automobile, and, to cap the climax, something that he may not desire, that he may have no use for, something that he may not be accustomed to—he was supposed to go to work with silk socks on. Not only was that promised and claimed but it was also claimed that the Republican party had the men, that they were the party of force, that they were the party of intelligence, that they were the party of ability, and that they were the only party fit to govern.

"Now, as indicating that they had the man power, the present President of the United States was held up to the American people as the great example of public efficiency in office, a great engineer, a man familiar with our foreign problems, a man that knew the problems at home, a man that had sat in the problems of two Presidents and, therefore, was particularly qualified and particularly equipped to stand on the bridge of state and bring that state into a safe harbor.

"Well, what happened? In 1929, it must have been apparent to the department of commerce that the market collapse was due, because commodity prices early in that year had begun to fall. They had access to that information, but they ducked it and they relied on divine providence to secure it so that they might thereafter claim the credit for this cure themselves.

"And immediately after the October crash widespread unemployment was beginning to be felt. Nobody admitted it. Figures from the United States department of labor were at variance with the figures of the department of labor in this state, and it was denied."

Mr. Smith then ridiculed the efforts of the Hoover administration to cope with the depression. He declared that the new tariff bill passed by the Republicans, after many months of delay, "shook the markets of the world, intensified and added to the unemployment and to the industrial paralysis that had already set in in our local markets." He continued:

"Hoover said 'We are a self-contained nation and we did not need any outside help. We are able to take care of ourselves,' and he dismissed it with a single wave of the hand, until in the fall of 1930 when a large group of business men and financiers were compelled to meet, he well considered and listened to the reports that came from charitable agencies and imposed upon them eight million dollars to prevent suffering, sickness and distress that was bound to occur from unemployment.

Hoover Names Committee.

"Well, the President did do something; he did do something. Let us be fair; let us give him credit; he did do something: he appointed a large committee. And the committee went into executive session and they discussed the unemployment and the relief program, and they brought forth a report, and the report that they brought forth was that there was nothing the federal government could do about it; it was up to the localities, a good deal like the old farmer in Ohio who, when he died, left his son the whole state to make his living in.

"It would take more time than I feel I should give at a state convention to enumerate the treatment of all the rest of the problems. Suffice for me to say they all remain at this hour and at this minute unsolved; our foreign debts, the tariff, our national form of administration, our water power developments, reorganization of the government in the interest of efficience and economy. Upon all these subjects the Republican national administration has completely failed.

"I am going now, I am going to that death bed confession on prohibition and I am thinking that not even the confession is on the level. You cannot in a few moments in a national convention atone for years of neglect; it cannot be done. Opportunity was afforded to the administration through the instrumentality of the commission of its own creation and nothing happened."

Mr. Smith said relief from prohibition "can be accomplished by the victory of the Democratic party and election of the Democratic candidates in the coming election" and as he spoke, he half turned toward Roosevelt.

"Now, the people of this country vote negatively as well as affirmatively," Smith said, "and there is no use of trying to change that because it cannot be done. When a party makes a great and a glowing promise and fails in every inch of it, it has to be taken to account. We have a certain system of checks and balances, one party in this country is the controller of the other party, and for all of this failure the Republican party must take the responsibility. It cannot dodge it and it cannot duck it, and by that process of reasoning, after having had the party, after having had the dance, they must pay the fiddler.

"Now, the Democratic party enters the field not shackled by any false pride, with no apologies for past mistakes, but with a platform and a program of progressive reform that will permit this nation to go forward, that will bring it to a better day, that will solve its economic problems, its problems abroad, and lift from business the paralysis that is causing unemployment, and that can be accomplished by a Democratic victory, by the election of the Democratic candidates in the coming election."

Discusses New York State.

Mr. Smith then discussed New York state issues, said he had been happy to turn the state government over to Gov. Roosevelt four years ago and then formally placed Mr. Lehman's name in nomination.

Mayor Thacher seconded the nomination.

After the nominations for governor and lieutenant governor had been made, the chairman announced that Gov. Roosevelt would address the convention. The governor received another ovation, and then launched a speech in which he responded to the greeting he had been given by Al Smith, and praised the Smith public record.

The governor then sung the praises of Col. Lehman, and said he supported him not because of the friendship existing between them, but because of Lehman's great ability for the office of governor.

Gov. Roosevelt told the delegates of his campaign, and he gave them words of faith that the party would be successful in November.

Gov. Roosevelt said Smith as governor had made New York "a national criterion of good government."

"When I returned to this state in 1920," he declared, amid applause, "the state in the hands of Republicans had fallen to a low ebb.

"I knew the tasks my old colleague Alfred E. Smith faced when he resumed the reins of government.

"The man who would be governor must have had experience.

Of Lehman Roosevelt said:

"It is not just because he is my friend, but because I have watched him as lieutenant governor and governor," Roosevelt went on.

"He knows every nook and corner of this state. He has a heart. He has ability. He has courage.

"And you need lots of guts to be governor."

"After a little sojourn in 12 or 14 states I intend to come back here and work heart and soul for Herbert Lehman as governor.

"The swing to Democracy everywhere is due in part to the unselfish desire of leaders to avoid selfishness, individual desires, and I am glad to add the state of New York to that list."

SMITH HALTS CLICK OF MACHINE COPYING CONVENTION SPEECH

State Armory, Albany, N. Y., Oct. 4.—(AP)—While Al Smith was speaking before the Democratic state convention tonight, a mimeograph machine on the wings of the stage was grinding out copies of his address.

The steady click and clatter annoyed him. Several times he looked in the direction of the offending apparatus and its operator.

Finally, exasperated, he stopped abruptly and with a deep scowl said:

"Hey, young fellow, can that!"

The noise stopped. Several near Smith on the platform explained.

Taking a drink of water, the frown leaving his face, Smith remarked:

"When I was a young fellow I was used to talking against elevateds.

Buffalo, N. Y., Oct. 4.—[Special.]—The Republican state convention ended its labors this afternoon, nominating a ticket headed by Col. William J. Donovan for governor and adopting a platform in which tax reduction and retrenchment in governmental expenditures were stressed as outstanding issues.

Prohibition came in for the briefest mention it has received in any party platform since the eighteenth amendment was enacted.

The prohibition plank was only fourteen words in length, indicating a desire of Republican leaders to subordinate that issue in an effort to give offense to neither wet nor dry or embarrass candidates for congress and legislative office in either wet or dry districts. The plank reads as follows:

"We indorse President Hoover's position on prohibition as expressed in his speech of acceptance."

Col. Donovan spoke tonight at the notification ceremonies saying:

"It is because of my belief that a straitjacket regulation in our fundamental law impairs the flexibility of our government, and destroys respect for the Constitution itself that I have stated, and I do state now, that I am for repeal of the eighteenth amendment, but I am of the opinion that President Hoover has met this issue very squarely.

"His proposal affords a basis for all of us, whatever our views, to meet and together attempt to work out a solution which by proper guarantees will eliminate a condition which, in the words of President Hoover, is resulting 'in a degeneration in municipal government and an increase in organized crime violation.'"

The platform attacked the Roosevelt administration, pledged support to President Hoover and Vice President Curtis; it praised the legislature, which the party controls, for having cut $21,000,000 out of Governor Roosevelt's executive budget this year.

F. Trubee Davison of Nassau, now assistant secretary of war for aviation, was nominated for lieutenant governor. Moses G. Hubbard of Utica, former state commander of the American Legion, was named for attorney general, thus giving to ex-service men three of the principal places on the ballot. Col. Donovan commanded the 165th U. S. infantry, the old "fighting 69th New York," in the Rainbow division during the world war.

For United States senator the convention named George Z. Medalie, United States attorney for the southern district, New York City. The nominee for controller is Mayor Charles S. Owen of Rochester.

DEMOCRATS OPEN STATE FINANCE HEADQUARTERS

Group to Operate Under National Committee.

Headquarters for the finance division for Illinois of the National Democratic committee was established yesterday in the Congress hotel. The announcement followed a luncheon given at the Palmer house by Mayor Cermak, Democratic national committeeman from Illinois.

The luncheon was attended by a group of business and professional men who created a committee which will raise the funds to defray the expenses of the campaign.

Clearing House for Funds.

This committee, Mayor Cermak announced, will function as a clearing house in its solicitation of funds. Contributions may be made with explicit directions for their application, either to national, state, or county candidates, he said.

The finance committee has been authorized by the headquarters of the Democratic national committee in New York. Formal announcement of the selection of officers and members of the executive committee will be announced in a few days, the mayor said.

Form Independent Group.

Coincident with the announcement of the Illinois finance committee headquarters came that of the independent organization for Roosevelt and Horner, which will be located adjoining the finance division on the mezzanine floor. This is to be known as the National Business and Professional league, and will be headed by Mrs. George Bass and Wayne Chatfield Taylor, co-chairmen. Associated with them will be James L. Houghteling and Gen. A. F. Lorenzen. The committee for this group is to be named shortly.

The officers of the finance committee and those of the National Business and Professional league occupy the space formerly used for headquarters of the Republican and Democratic national conventions.

Seeks Discarded Jewelry for Church Collection

Columbus, O., Oct. 4.—(AP)—Wooden nickels will still be taboo, but most anything else, so long as it has a bit of gold, will be acceptable when the collection plates are passed in the fashionable Broad Street Methodist church next Sunday. The Rev. F. Howard Callahan sent out letters asking his flock to dig up those discarded watches, jewelry, trinkets and dental work. The gifts will be sent to a refiners' and the money realized will be placed in a "minister's permanent emergency fund.

MRS. F. N. MANN VISITS CHICAGO TO AID HOOVER

Another Republican woman leader joined the campaigning ranks of the women's division of the Republican national headquarters yesterday. She was Mrs. Frank N. Mann of Huntington, W. Va., one of the noted suffrage leaders of 20 years ago. She passed through Chicago to open campaign engagements in the northwest for President Hoover.

"I followed Mr. Hoover's war record closely," Mrs. Mann said. "Since that time I have had unbounded enthusiasm for the intelligent, stable policies he has pursued in directing the country's course throughout his years in the White House. The deep interest which I feel in advocating Mr. Hoover's reelection at this time is impelling me to talk with women in other parts of the country than my own and to bring them my heartfelt message: 'Work and Build for Hoover!'"

Mrs. Mann is a member of the board of the federal prison for women at Alderson, W. Va., and a trustee of Greenbrier college.

WALKER SAILS FOR U. S.; WEARY "DOING NOTHING"

CHERBOURG, France, Oct. 4.—(AP)—Weary from "the high strain of being idle," James J. Walker sailed for home today on the liner Europa. Before the vessel docks next Sunday he will have made up his mind, he hopes, about whether to become a candidate for mayor of New York in the event an election is held in November.

A band played "The Sidewalks of New York," but Mr. Walker did not feel gay. He said he was as tired on leaving Europe as he was when he left New York a few weeks ago.

"From high tension to doing nothing is too great a letdown," he said, "but I hope to get a few days of good rest aboard ship."

There was quite a demonstration for him when he left his hotel in the Place de la Concorde in Paris to catch the boat train. At the station platform there was another crowd of well wishers, many of them women.

Parents in St. Paul Seek Missing Girl, 16, Here

Marshall, Minn., Has First Snowfall of the Year

RITCHIE TO OPEN CAMPAIGN HERE FOR DEMOCRATS

Gov. Albert C. Ritchie of Maryland, who as a contender for the presidential nomination was popular with Chicago Democrats at the time of the Democratic national convention, was selected yesterday as the speaker to open the national campaign for Roosevelt here.

At a meeting of the Democratic committee it was announced that Gov. Ritchie would be here next Tuesday and a debate with some Republican speaker has been arranged in Patten Gymnasium of Northwestern university, each speaker to have an hour. Gov. Ritchie will then speak at another meeting, probably on the north side.

Another Democratic program schedules the appearance here of Congressman at Large William H. Dieterich, Democratic nominee for United States senator, who will arrive next week and campaign with Judge Henry Horner, candidate for governor, and Thomas J. Courtney, candidate for state's attorney.

MRS. WARREN C. FAIRBANKS

—daughter-in-law of the late Vice-President Fairbanks, member of a prominent Chicago family, and wife of the publisher of the Indianapolis News. Traveler and active participant in Chicago, Indianapolis and official Washington society. "It seems almost wicked to risk the beauty of precious silks in any but the purest of soaps—American Family Flakes."

MRS. ADLER STONE

—granddaughter of David Adler, leader of Milwaukee's smart set, judge and exhibitor at the country's leading horse and dog shows. Two large homes to manage, a reputation for brilliant entertaining, and two lively young sons to keep clean qualify her as an authority on the value of Kirk's American Family in plain and fancy laundering.

The money you spend for children's play clothes, undergarments, sheer silk stockings, table linens is too hard to get to waste it in the washtub! Yet that's exactly what happens to your money when you launder costly washables with cheapened soap flakes.

That's why so many Midwest women—a majority of all the housewives in Chicago, for example—use no other laundry soap or flakes but pure American Family. They know from long experience that "it's cheaper to buy good soap than new clothes."

In Chicago, Mrs. Warren C. Fairbanks says: "My laundress has positive instructions to entrust our treasured pieces only to the gentle fluffy suds of American Family Flakes and back come these lovely things with every thread as strong, every color as bright as the day they first came into our home."

In Grand Rapids, Mrs. Leonard D. Verdier confides: "Really we've noticed that our silk lingerie and chiffon hose—for that matter, all our sturdy washables—wear months longer when we dip them only in these pure, rich suds."

And in Milwaukee, Mrs. Adler Stone adds: "I should not care to trust my beautiful china and crystal, my fine woodwork and porcelains—or indeed any of my precious things—to any other soap but American Family Flakes."

Why take chances with misnamed "bargain flakes"..so often loaded with free lye and other harsh ingredients? Why see dainty colors fade and fabrics go to rack and ruin . . when American Family is not only safe but easily the most economical soap flakes you can buy?

Use it exclusively, and save the fresh new beauty of your clothes. . save those dollars thrown away in ruined garments . . save those hours of leisure stolen from you by sluggish soaps!

Created especially for the hard water of this Great Lakes region, American Family makes double the suds of ordinary soaps. And it's the pure, rich double-suds that makes the difference!

MRS. LEONARD D. VERDIER

—whose husband is Judge of the Circuit Court. She is a member of the Women's University Club, Art Association, the Alliance Francaise and a worker for the D A Blodgett Home for Children. "With four daughters and two sons, a woman comes to see a difference in soaps," she says. "I've never known a soap so safe and so helpful as American Family Flakes."

CITY CLUB HEARS SWANSONBACKER QUIZ COURTNEY

Democrat Chides Prosecutor on Bombings.

Answers to pertinent questions were given yesterday by Thomas J. Courtney, Democratic candidate for state's attorney, who had just opened his campaign with an attack on State's Attorney John A. Swanson, his Republican opponent, of whom he said: "The only industry that has prospered under Swanson is the bombing industry."

Courtney, a state senator for the last six years, spoke before the City club and, following a custom, agreed to answer questions of the members. Among the first to take up the offer was J. F. Cornelius, manager of a business men's committee supporting Swanson.

Welcomes Questioning.

He gave Courtney a chance to deny charges that he was on four pay rolls at the same time, and to tell of his rise from page for the city council to its seargent at arms and clerk of a committee, his election as state senator and his subsequent practice as a lawyer. Questions and answers were getting hot when a member arose and said he didn't consider it fair to heckle an invited speaker, adding that the attack appeared malicious. There was applause, but Courtney invited Cornelius to continue.

"Look in your own files and see if I ever committed an act of which I should not feel proud," Courtney challenged when Cornelius asked if he wasn't called before the grand jury in the sanitary district scandal. "The bar association and a legislative committee found no fault with me."

"Who sponsored you for the nomination for state's attorney?" Cornelius asked.

Indorsed by Committee.

"Twenty-one members of the Democratic managing committee unanimously indorsed me after they asked if I would consider running for state's attorney instead of attorney general. I saw an opportunity for greater service and agreed."

Dean Edward T. Lee of the John Marshall Law school asked if he would refrain from using the office of state's attorney to further his political ambitions. After saying his only ambition was to give the people the best possible administration, Senator Courtney added:

"When I come to select my assistants I will submit their names to the bar association to check on their ability, honesty and reputation and any one with a cloud on his reputation will be rejected."

Howard P. Castle, formerly a Republican member of the legislature, asked Courtney if he did not feel that his lack of experience in the trial of criminal cases would constitute a real handicap if he were elected.

Courtney said he had never defended a criminal and would not appear in the Criminal court, where it might be thought he was using his political influence to help a criminal defendant.

"I want to say to you, Senator Castle, that you have personal knowledge of the fact that when I became a member of the senate six years ago I was the youngest man there. Do you know of any more vigorous or courageous member of the state senate today than I am?"

"No, I do not," Castle replied, and the meeting adjourned.

State's Attorney Swanson at another noon meeting was telling of the accomplishments during the past four years. Speaking before the Bar association, he said there were 2,100 pending criminal cases when he assumed office four years ago. The number is now less than 800, he said. Affirmation of convictions has increased 20 per cent and his office has been able to improve criminal procedure, the prosecutor declared.

"The only pledge I ever made as state's attorney was that I would be on the square," he told the lawyers. "I have fulfilled this pledge and I shall continue to do so."

Seven Oil Stations Robbed; Attendant Shot in Leg

Two gunmen took $148 yesterday in robberies of seven gasoline filling stations on the near north and west sides. BORAH INDORSES CAMPAIGN TO CUT U.S. EXPENDITURES

Senator William E. Borah of Idaho, has informed George W. Rossetter, general chairman of the National Organization to Reduce Public Expenditures, that he is in accord with the organization's campaign to reduce national expenditures by $750,000,000. Discussing Washington bureaucracy, Senator Borah wrote:

"The amount to be saved the taxpayers by the consolidation of bureaus is comparatively small. In my judgment, we ought to eliminate a number of them."

Others who expressed approval of the organization's program were Karl C. Schuyler, Republican senatorial candidate in Colorado, and Congressman J. J. Manlove of Missouri. Mr. Schuyler said he favors the reduction or elimination of less essential government activities and their particular appropriations. He also favors immediate reduction of salaries of senators and representatives.

Mr. Manlove warned Conrad H. Mann, Missouri chairman of the National Organization to Reduce Public Expenditures, that those interested in securing government economy must give their support to candidates pledged to this. He said a large number of defeated members of congress are among those who supported economy measures.

Turkish tobacco sometimes runs hundreds of little leaves to the pound. In cigarettes it is used much as seasoning is in food, for flavor and better taste.

You know that seasoning has to be used right . . . just enough of it, not too much.

Chesterfield puts in just the right amount of Turkish tobacco—the best kinds—Xanthi, Cavalla, Smyrna and Samsoun. These are not merely blended, but cross-blended with ripe, mellow Domestic tobaccos.

Enough Turkish, not too much—that's one reason why Chesterfields taste better—why they have a delicacy of aroma you do not find in other cigarettes.

ASK ATTENDANCE OF 51 ABSENTEES AT LEGISLATURE

Leaders Want Members to Vote on Relief Bills.

BY PARKE BROWN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., Oct. 4.—[Special.]—Urgent appeals for better attendance were sent to absentees of both houses as the Illinois general assembly attempted to resume business in its fourth special session today.

A telegram sent to thirty absent representatives over the signatures of Speaker David E. Shanahan, Floor Leader Roger F. Little and Minority Leader Michael L. Igoe read as follows:

"It is imperative that all house members be here tomorrow as relief bills will be on third reading for passage."

119 Present In House.

Similar messages were sent to twenty-one senators who failed to appear. They were signed by Lieut. Gov. Fred E. Sterling as president of the upper chamber. Corporation Counsel William H. Sexton of Chicago telegraphed Mayor Cermak to request absent Cook county members to be on hand for tomorrow's business.

The house attendance fell slightly below last week's mark. There were, however, only 119 reported present and bills to take effect at once require 102 votes in this chamber. The small margin was considered unsafe. In the senate there were only 29 present on a test roll call late in the day that chamber thereupon quitting for the day after merely advancing some secondary bills.

Apparently, as has happened in previous sessions, the two houses have determined to go their own way, each acting on its own bills with little regard to what is happening at the other end of the hall. This was indicated by a conference of house leaders this morning in which it was agreed that this chamber would proceed to seek the passage of three measures aimed to bring some slight relief for the unemployed.

Senate Passes Meents Bills.

One of these is the Meents bill, already passed by the senate, which would permit a county to issue relief bonds without referendum, the bonds to be retired out of the county's share of the 3 cent gas tax or, if that is insufficient, by additional taxation. The second of the series is the county optional sales tax bill which struck rough going in the senate last week. The house has its own bill introduced by Homer J. Tice [Rep., Greenview], which applies to the entire state, and this may be up for passage tomorrow.

If it is passed by the representatives it will go over to the senate which last week amended an identical bill to limit the right to levy a sales tax to Cook county. If the house bill goes to the senate there will be a new battle to get 34 votes for the statewide idea. Last week the bill for Cook county alone received only 29 votes.

The third bill approved by the house conference was the Childers bill to permit counties to divert from road building to relief purposes their one cent share of the gasoline tax. This also probably will be up for passage tomorrow and, if acted upon favorably, then will go to the senate.

Take Final Action Friday.

This house program would throw the question of the success or failure of relief funds plans squarely before the senate which might hold in session until Thursday or Friday to take final action before the proposed five weeks' recess is taken until after the Nov. 8 election.

This morning the house amended the Tice optional county sales tax bill and advanced it to third reading. The figure denoting the maximum tax to be levied had been left blank and Tice moved that it be made 3 per cent. He said this would enable Cook county to raise $36,000,000 a year for its jobless. But a substitute motion by Igoe for a maximum of 1 per cent was adopted. The debate grew warm at times.

"The general assembly under the present conditions," said Elmer J. Schnackenberg [Rep., Chicago], "ought to do something heroic, something monumental to meet this crisis. Relief for the unemployed is more important than my election."

"We ought to go home and wait until we see how Cook county votes on the $25,000,000 bond issue," interposed Robert Whitely [Rep., Carlinville].

James T. Burns [Dem., Kankakee] moved to kill the sales tax bill by striking out the enacting clause. That motion was tabled by a vote of 90 to 4.

DECIDE WOMAN FOUND SLAIN IN HOTEL ROOM COMMITTED SUICIDE

New York, Oct. 4.—[Special.]—Puzzled for a time by a note that indicated murder, the police tonight concluded that Miss Marian Elliot Jennison, 25 years old, of Milford, N. H., who was found dead in her room in the Hotel Cadillac with a bullet wound behind her right ear, had committed suicide.

With a pistol clutched in her gloved right hand, Miss Jennison's body was discovered on the floor of her room. At the same time the hotel's manager was opening a letter from her which said that if she was found dead it would be a case of murder.

The letter, dated Monday, said:

"This morning when I was going out a tall dark man knocked on my door and attempted to enter. I took a .38 caliber revolver from under my pillow and pushed it under his nose and he went away very quickly. He said that he would get me.

"I have everything to live for and no reason for killing myself. If I'm found dead you know I have been murdered."

The murder theory was discarded when Dr. Charles Norris, chief medical examiner, after a cursory examination of the wound, declared it had been self-inflicted.

DEPOSED BULGAR KING IN VIENNA TO 'STUDY BIRDS'

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

VIENNA, Austria, Oct. 4.—Former King Ferdinand of the venerable house of Saxe-Coburg and Gotha, who was chased from his Bulgarian throne after the defeat of his country in the world war, slipped unnoticed into Vienna today and took a simple room in a second class hotel. Ferdinand, though declining interviews, opined that he was here to study birds. Today he participated in the annual congress of the German Ornithologists' society. This afternoon Ferdinand with associates journeyed to nearby mountains to observe birds there.

PRINCESS HELEN AND SON GUESTS OF KING GEORGE

LONDON, Oct. 4. — (AP) — Under orders from King Carol to return to Rumania tomorrow, Prince Michael spent a busy day with his mother, the former Queen Helen. The climax was a trip to Buckingham palace for tea with the king and queen. For the heir to the Rumanian throne, today was a happy and swift end to the two weeks' visit with Princess Helen, who yesterday charged that King Carol had cut the lad's stay short to "persecute" her.

Why Visit Was Cut Short.

BUCHAREST, Rumania, Oct. 4—(AP)—The Reuters [English] News agency said an official statment was issued today asserting that Prince Michael's stay with his mother, Princess Helen, in London, was rather shorter than was expected because the lad had been invited by his cousin, Princess Hohenzollern, to visit the Hohenzollern chateau in Sigmaringen, Germany.

King Carol further was reported anxious to have his son by his side on the king's birthday, Oct. 16.

BROR DAHLBERG'S EX-WIFE BARES WEDDING PLANS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PALMA, Majorca, Oct. 4. — Mary Dahlberg, divorced wife of Bror G. Dahlberg, Chicago Celotex magnate, announced today she will marry Thomas Roberts, formerly of Baltimore. She made the announcement in a little club in Palma, adding that she may go to Paris for the wedding to avoid Spanish legal difficulties.

A divorce was granted Bror Dahlberg on April 23 on grounds of desertion. Mrs. Dahlberg had been living on the island of Majorca, in the Mediterranean, for about a year at that time. Various reports declared that Mrs. Dahlberg would soon remarry. Among those mentioned prominently were Capt. Booth, a handsome Irishman who visited Palma; Prince Sapieka, financial adviser to the Polish embassy in Chicago, and "Dollie" Weisberg of 885 Rush street, reputed gold coast speakeasy proprietor.

Mr. Dahlberg remarried in New York less than a month after receiving his divorce. His bride was Mrs. Gilda Lichtie.

Let the C's prove

the immediate, practical value of the New BRITANNICA

Owners Say—

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt

"One of the first things we must have for ourselves as well as for our children is some kind of general reference library, and I find that the Encyclopaedia Britannica fills this need admirably."

Richard M. Baker,
Kent, Conn.

"It is the best investment in books I ever made. A public library in the home, and a lifetime of reading with pleasure and achievement combined."

George H. Bookwalter,
Attorney, Benton Harbor, Mich.

"Under no circumstances would we want to be without this valuable work, and you are to be congratulated for giving the public access to such a fund of information."

Milward E. Adams,
Chicago, Illinois

DO YOU realize how useful and valuable the new Britannica can be to you and your family right now? Glance down a single letter of the index—take the "C's" for instance and let them show you.

The C's of Business

There's Credit, for example—essential information for every one, concise, helpful. Capitalism, Commerce, Consumption and Currency, Company Promotion and Communism offer special information which not only business men but families need.

From Cotton to Call Money, from Carpets to Cattle-breeding—every business and industry finds its place in the Britannica. Coal, Copper, Canning and Cast-iron, Cement and Customs—no conceivable subject of human interest to the worker is neglected.

And yet C is only one letter of the alphabet. From A to Z, on business subjects alone, the Britannica gives you the equivalent of 64 good size volumes. It is a library no business man, no one who has any contact at all with industry, should be without.

The C's Extend Your Interests

Run down the list of "C's," remembering that every subject represents knowledge, authoritative, fresh and usable, and you find Cakes, Calico and Cats, Cooking, Clipper Ships and Cheese, Congress, Conjuring, Contract Bridge and Common Colds.

There are facts of the first authority on Child Psychology, Children's Diet, games and books. You deepen your understanding of events by studying such vital figures as Cleopatra, Cromwell, Casanova, Clemenceau, Cleveland and Nurse Cavell.

You catch the flavor of literature and other arts in Cervantes, Carlyle and Conrad, Corot and Chopin.

You follow the road of modern science with Crookes, Copernicus, Compton. You learn the mysteries of Climate and Calculus, of Chemistry and Constellations. You familiarize yourself with City Management, Civil Laws, Civil Service. You travel to far places—China, the Congo and Cuba; to Carlsbad, Cologne and Constantinople.

Even this list is only the slightest fraction of the "C's" alone. From A to Z, the Britannica embraces the whole wide range of modern life and brings it to you. And the index of 500,000 separate entries is the key to this great storehouse of information.

The Most Completely Satisfying Set of Books in the World

24 volumes, 50,000 articles, 35,000,000 words—impressive as these figures are, they give no idea of what the Britannica can really mean to you. It makes the search for information a delight. 3,500 of the world's leaders in every field of knowledge stand ready to help you.

The 15,000 illustrations are an education in themselves. You will turn again and again to enjoy the masterpieces of art and the wonders of nature brought to you in rich color plates. Drawings, etchings, photographs, and 500 up-to-date maps, 200 full-pages in color, arouse your interest in important subjects you once gave no thought to.

A new compact bookcase, made of mahogany, has been specially designed for the 24 volumes of the latest Fourteenth Edition.

LOANS BY R. F. C. PASS A BILLION, REPORT SHOWS

Banks and Railroads Are Largest Borrowers.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 4.—[Special.]—At the close of business on Aug. 31 the Reconstruction Finance corporation had direct loans outstanding in the amount of $967,642,071.47; it had pledges of direct loans not yet called for totaling $190,536,855.95; and had loaned to farmers through the secretary of agriculture $64,201,989.50.

In addition to the above loans, the corporation had, at the close of business on Sept. 30, loaned relief funds aggregating $35,455,171.22 to states and their subdivisions; had agreed to finance self-liquidating projects in the sum of $53,105,000; had agreed to advance $50,000,000 to the farm board's cotton cooperatives and Cotton Stabilization corporation and was committed to supply a minimum of $30,000,000 to the ten regional agricultural credit corporations so far set up.

Loans and Commitments.

It was, therefore, a picture of loans and commitments totaling almost one billion 400 million dollars that was presented in a report given out today in supplement to the reports required by law and described by the corporation as being "for the information of the public."

The issue of the report came while South Trimble, clerk of the house of representatives, still debated whether or not to disclose the contents of the corporation's August monthly report, which contains the names of borrowers, and to the publication of which corporation officials strenuously object.

Where the Money Goes.

The arithmetic of loans to banks, other financial institutions, and railroads during the corporation's first seven months was presented as follows:

Canceled	35,564,412.84
Not yet drawn	190,536,855.95
Disbursed	1,118,532,968.52
Repaid	150,890,897.05
Outstanding	967,642,071.47

The loans went to 5,599 borrowers, divided as follows:

To 4,324 banks and trust companies open and active at time of loan; 391 receivers of banks closed at time of loan; 643 building and loan associations; 79 insurance companies; 68 mortgage loan companies; 10 agricultural credit corporations; 17 livestock credit corporations; 9 federal land banks; 6 joint stock land banks; 3 credit unions; and 49 railroads.

Borrowers in Cities and Towns.

On the basis of the number of loans, the report showed that loans have gone principally to banks in the smaller towns and cities, 69.9 per cent of the loans having been made to towns of less than 5,000 population and only 3.8 per cent to cities of more than 500,000 population.

The distribution of bank loans among towns and cities, according to amount, was not given. Applications for loans have fallen off, it was said, from a high of 1,269 in April to 899 during August.

The $64,201,989.50 disbursed through the secretary of agriculture went in crop production loans to 507,632 farmers in every state, except Rhode Island. The average loan was $126.47.

Relief loans went to 25 states and their political subdivisions and to Hawaii. Out of the total $30,533,586.22 was authorized under agreement that it be repaid by deductions from future federal-state aid road funds.

Self-Liquidating Projects.

The remaining $4,921,585 is to be repaid under special agreements.

Of the amount pledged to finance self-liquidating projects, by far the largest slice—40 million dollars—will go to purchase the bonds of the Metropolitan Water District of Southern California for the construction of an aqueduct between Boulder dam and Los Angeles and surrounding cities. Another 13 million dollars will go to build a trans-Mississippi railroad bridge at New Orleans.

The report noted the desire of the corporation to finance small projects and so put men to work throughout the country. A corps of advisory engineers is to be appointed to assist applicants for loans for small projects free of charge.

The corporation looked forward to slum clearance and housing loans in New York and hoped other states would pass legislation permitting loans to be secured on this type of construction.

New Fair Ground Stables Burn with $5,000 Loss

Fire yesterday destroyed four vacant stables in the new Cook county fairground, North avenue and River road, with an estimated damage of $5,000. Chief Anthony Prignano of the Melrose Park fire department expressed the belief that the fire was started by sparks from a passing locomotive on the nearby Soo line.

Eight youths and one other girl, Vivian Van Williams, 14 years old, of 6347 Ingleside avenue, are already in custody as members of the gang. Shop windows were smashed with bricks by the rioters, who demonstrated against cuts in relief for the poor. Bottles were thrown at the police in an attempt to storm the town hall. The trouble started when police arrested a speaker for inciting a riot.

FEDERAL BUDGET SAVINGS ASKED IN WASHINGTON

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 4.—[Special.]—Cabinet officers and heads of independent establishments have been called on by the special senate bipartisan economy committee to submit recommendations as to how any further government economies could be effected in their particular fields. The department heads also were asked to outline any ideas they had for modification of the 150 million dollars economy bill passed last winter. The recommendations are to be filed with the committee by Oct. 15. Senator Wesley L. Jones [Rep., Wash.], heads the committee.

Heeds Hoover Economy Plea.

The request for new economies came as Budget Director J. Clawson Roup was conducting hearings in an effort to comply with the recent request of President Hoover that the 1934 budget estimates should be reduced 500 millions below the appropriations voted this year. Hearings are being held this week on navy department appropriations.

Up to date nothing has been made public indicating whether the administration will make a substantial cut in appropriations this winter. It has become known, however, that in most instances cabinet officers and others submitted estimates on Sept. 1 calling for appropriations for use in the 1934 fiscal year which were as large or larger than those voted for the current year. These estimates were submitted prior to the issuance of President Hoover's letter asking their cooperation in cutting down government costs.

Over Two Billion Voted.

During the first session of the seventy-second congress regular appropriations acts were passed providing 2 billion, 146 million dollars for the financing of government departments during the next fiscal year. Two deficiency bills increased this sum to 3 billion, 295 million dollars. This sum was exclusive of one billion, 165 millions voted in special appropriation acts for the finance corporation, etc.

Originally the navy department asked for approximately 350 millions for 1934, about $20,000,000 in excess of funds voted for this year.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 4.—[Special.]—The Reconstruction Finance corporation today advanced $5,342,183 to the state of Pennsylvania to supplement the $2,500,000 relief loan granted a fortnight ago. The combined loans totaled $5,842,183, or slightly more than half the $10,000,000 requested by Gov. Pinchot in his application.

Today's loan, which is expected to last throughout October, is to be used for relief of destitution in 64 counties.

The corporation today also granted a relief loan of $450,000 to Kansas upon the application of Gov. Harry Woodring. The loans to Pennsylvania and Kansas brought the total thus far advanced from the 300 millions dollars relief fund to $39,247,354. Twenty-six states and Hawaii have received loans.

Negotiations for a self-liquidating project loan to finance construction of a $550,000 toll bridge across the Mississippi at New Boston, Ill., were opened at the corporation today by D. S. Prentiss, president of the Illinois-Iowa bridge company of New Boston.

"The newspaper is an institution developed by modern civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and mold public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

THE LAKE STATES AND CHICAGO.

Ohio, Wisconsin, Minnesota, and Michigan, represented by the attorney general of Ohio, Gilbert Bettman, have joined in an application to the United States Supreme court for the appointment of an administrator for the Chicago sanitary district to enforce the rule of the court for the reduction of water diversion. The court is asked to issue a rule for the state of Illinois and the sanitary district to show cause why a receiver, commissioner or United States marshal should not be placed in charge of the district's construction of sewage disposal works upon which the reduction of the water diversion is conditioned.

Chicago's sanitary district has been the worst egg in the Chicago basket of public corporations levying taxes and spending public funds. It has been rotten luck that this public corporation is the local municipal body involved not only in interstate but international complications affecting sanitary and economic matters of great importance. The Chicago equities not only in the water supply of the city but the business life of the great valley have been in the hands of a public body in which great responsibilities have been tainted so often by great rascalities. The district has its own particular disabilities in the present emergencies when the general disabilities of all taxing bodies reflect the hard terms of hard times.

The opposition states have made the most of their political advantages in dealing with the Chicago water supply and the navigation of the Illinois river and special interests have made the most of their politics, but complete satisfaction of their demands upon this territory has been stopped by inability to comply with the terms imposed. The sanitary district has not been able to sell its bonds.

It should be suggested to the opposition states that they are going at the affair in the wrong way. They should join in obtaining for the district a loan from the R. F. C. to complete the sewage disposal works and from congress the purchase of the Chicago drainage canal, which is the northern terminal of the gulf waterway now being completed by federal engineers. The people of Chicago and of Illinois have taxed themselves to give the nation water transportation from the Mississippi to the lakes, an extraordinary incident outside and not inside the pork barrel. It is a reminder, for the differences involved, of the enterprises of the federal government in the Colorado river where the navigability of a stream is preposterously assumed in order to give California a water supply, the money being furnished at Washington to impound the supply and to lay the aqueduct. Government inconsistencies get out of bounds when with Boulder dam as an exhibit of policy in one section the total effect of policy in another is to threaten both water supply and navigation for which Washington to date has spent not much more than a penny.

In the end the people of the opposition states will find that they have more in common with the Chicago cause than their politicians have taken into consideration.

A HINT FROM CHILE.

Ardent civilian theorists who think all appropriation for national defense should be concentrated on aviation might meditate with profit upon the recent course of events in Chile. Soon after the coup d'état by which Señor Davila and his associates expelled the constitutional government of Seño. Montero a revolt sprang up among the officers of the air force, some of whom thought the Davila régime too moderate. They flew over the presidential palace, threatening to blow it up, and Señor Davila departed. There have been several changes in the political situation, but we are not concerned here with them. The point is that the air force represented one party and it has been whipped by the older branches of the army.

Our theorists would confidently have expected the opposite result. The truth has been demonstrated that aviation is auxiliary and is helpless without the protection of the main elements of military force. The Chilean air forces, both of the land and navy, were in command of officers of extremist opinion, communists. But after their initial success in driving Davila out of the palace it was discovered that the army and navy proper could be relied upon to support the moderate faction, and Gen. Blanche, who had become head of the government but has since been supplanted by another provisional president, moved troops at once to seize the principal air bases and also all gasoline supplies. The air force at first escaped, but after a few days, unable to get fuel, the planes were compelled to come down, pilots were captured, and by Sept. 15 the revolt collapsed completely with the capture of Col. Merino, its chief.

Communism will have to convince the main army if it is to capture and hold by force the Chilean government. The air is not the natural element of genus homo and wars must still be won on solid ground. Even a navy must have and hold its bases. And we trust the makers of our defense programs will always keep their feet on the ground.

THE END OF THE N. S. F. LAW.

Gov. Emmerson has signed a bill repealing the so-called N. S. F. law. The N. S. F. law is history, but it will furnish a chapter well worth study by any one interested in the methods of American politics.

N. S. F. stands for not sufficient funds. When the teachers in Chicago began to miss pay days they looked about for ways of being paid even though the board of education had no cash. A scheme, long in vogue downstate, of having the board of education issue checks against nonexistent funds was hit upon. These checks would be marked N. S. F. and for all practical purposes would be equivalent to tax anticipation warrants. They would bear interest and could therefore be discounted at par or close to par.

At least so some of the teachers' spokesmen thought. They went down to Springfield and induced the legislature to pass a law authorizing the issuance of N. S. F. checks in Chicago. The bill was put forward as in the interest of the unpaid teachers and no doubt any members of the legislature who found fault with the bill were accused of a lack of sympathy with the plight of the unpaid public servants. Probably if the truth were known it would be found that some of the members were even threatened with political retaliations if they dared oppose the bill. That, at any rate, is the usual method of obtaining legislation in an American state and it has been used frequently in the past by teachers and other interested groups of citizens striving for legislation.

No one has arisen to claim the doubtful credit of having lobbied the N. S. F. law through the legislature, but all the evidence suggests that the bill did not originate in the minds of the legislators but was forced upon them. The results of the enactment of the law have been serious. The advocates of the measure did not realize that a first consequence would be the cutting off of credit to the school board, though any investment banker might have counseled them to that effect. Bankers could not afford to extend credit to the board against tax warrants when there was no way of knowing what additional liabilities the board might undertake through the issuance of the N. S. F. checks.

The N. S. F. law is repealed at the request of the same teachers who were represented as demanding its enactment only a few months ago. The record suggests that the teachers would do well to discover who it was who misrepresented them in demanding the passage of the law in the first place. Such persons have a poor claim to leadership. Members of the legislature may find in the incident the moral that the demands of special interests for legislation are frequently ill advised even from the viewpoint of those insisting upon the enactment of laws. A conscientious legislator should recognize the fact that he must frequently oppose the wishes of his constituents for their own good.

REPEAL THIS BOND ISSUE.

A suit for collection of architect's fees in the sum of $187,500 for the plans for a civic auditorium is now pending and should remind the legislature to repeal the authorization for this project. A bond issue of fifteen million dollars was approved by the voters in 1927, but was held invalid by the Supreme court after the county had collected $750,000 in taxes toward interest payment on the bonds, the money, it is said, being now in the general corporate fund. The auditorium is not needed and, though the bond issue was approved by the voters in the glad days when bond issues seemed just so much cigaret money, voters today will appreciate and in fact will demand a repeal. If there is anything that will not raise an argument in this community just now it is that we do not want to spend fifteen million dollars on a civic auditorium.

This comment is, of course, without reference to the architect's claims.

Editorial of the Day

A REFORMED CITY.

[Cedar Rapids Gazette.]

Mayor Anton Cermak, on returning from a tour of Europe, said he believed he had convinced the people of European cities that Chicago is no longer a city of lawlessness. If he did, there is evidence that, to a certain extent, he did not deceive the Europeans. Only eighty "pineapple" explosions have been reported in the Windy City so far this year, as against 100 in the corresponding period of 1931, according to Walter Walker, chief investigator for the Chicago Employers' association.

It is true that bomb damage has run into more money than it did last year, but that is attributed by Mr. Walker to a change in the technique of bombers. It used to be that a thug would let his victim know which way the wind was blowing by a "small dynamite bomb placed as a warning"—on about the same principle as the informatory double in contract. As time went on, however, bombers became more calloused, until nowadays they scarcely give a thought to the social amenities and the little courtesies that once lent tone to racketeering.

"Now, when a bomb is placed," explains Mr. Walker, "it is the last step, and means business." This elimination of informatory bombings naturally reduces the total number of bombings of all types, and is reflected in the statistics cited above. While detracting somewhat from the one time glamour of the "pineapple" punishment, the new technique undeniably makes a closer approach to the letter and spirit of the anti-bombing laws and makes for greater peace and order in Chicago. Yes, a European who gained his impression of the lake metropolis in the days when Capone was in his prime would hardly know the old place today.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

OH, EVANSTON, DEARIE! YOU DON'T KNOW NOTHING YET!

Evanston is again petitioning its city council not only to require the milkmen to put rubber tires on their wagon wheels but to make them put rubber boots on the horses, so that slumberers will not be rudely awakened in the morning. Ah, Evanston! did you but live on the near north side in this great city of Chicago the stamping of a milk wagon horse would be but as the soft distant droning of a lone honey bee three and a half miles away. Let us try to describe the sounds that arouse a sleeper on the near north side. Let us start with midnight; there's so much noise before then that nobody attempts going to sleep until midnight at least. The slumberer slumbers for a short time in peace and then from somewhere down in the street comes:

VOICE: Hey! What's the big idea? Tryin' to bust my cab in two?

VOICE: Who told you that you could drive a cab? Were you asleep at the switch or are you just plain nuts?

VOICE: Cut it out, you guys! Lissen, who's to blame here? What about it, taxi?

FIRST VOICE: I was a-turnin' down this here way and this funny face guy comes hell bent fer election down the street and bangs right into me.

VOICE: Who you calling "funny face," you big lopsided boob? They wouldn't even give you a job pitchin' for the Cubs.

VOICE—That's somethin' I hain't a goin' ter take from nobody. You big bum——

VOICE: Hey, cut that out, taxi, or I'll take you to the station—now listen—etc., etc.

Oh, well, after a while this battle dies down and the dwellers within two or three blocks turn over and try to go to sleep.

(Fifteen minutes later.) A merry crowd of male and female scofflaws are coming from the corner speakeasy looking for their cars, which they think they must have left parked somewhere on this street.

SCOFFLAWS: Oh, Adaline, sweet Ad-a-line——

FEMALE VOICE: Oh, you think you're funny, don't you? Do that again and I'll come over and slap your silly face.

VOICE: Ooh, ooh, ooh, ooh, woof, woof, woof!

VOICE (this time from a disgusted sleeper in some fourth or fifth story bedroom): Oh, hire a hall!

VOICE: Didja see that? That guy tried to run me down. Come back here, you fathead, I'll break you in two.

All the Sweet Adeline scofflaws roar in fierce anger and start across the street announcing their purpose is nothing but deliberate and cold blooded murder.

VOICE (feminine): Oh, look, a real policeman, honest it is, and he doesn't get paid for doing this, either. It's just a habit.

VOICE: That's about enough. Another word out of any of this mob and I'll take you in. Go on home now, beat it.

Once more sweet silence comes softly dropping down and then——

BANG! BANG! BANG!

Those were bandits probably shooting at policemen or policemen shooting at bandits. Or maybe just gangsters taking another gangster for a ride. That's the near north side at night. And Evanston can't sleep unless the milk wagon horses wear rubber boots. Tsk! tsk! tsk!

TO PLEASE A WOMAN.

If you want to please a woman,
Here is one sure way;
Tell her that she grows more charming
Every day.

Tell her that her eyes are bluer,
And her smile more sweet.
Tell her there is elfin music
In her feet.

Do not tell her she is brilliant,
Good, dependable, or true.
You won't interest her greatly
If you do.

Tell her she's more devastating
Than was Helen in her prime;
And she'll take hook, line, and sinker
Every time.

"TAXES ON YACHTS OVERDUE, Government Calls for Payment."—Headline. COLDS.

We are in the midst of the season of simple, common colds, called coryzas by physicians, as a rule. This form of disorder is most prevalent in the months of September and October. There is some reason for thinking that the colds of November are more prone to cause sore throat, or that they are of a different character, being due to infections with something other than the common cold or coryza.

There is even better evidence that as the coryzas tend to decrease as the winter goes along, the influenzas tend to increase. If these are all due to the coryza microbe infection they tend to cause more fevers, coughs, and pneumonias in the late winter, say, January to March. If the infection is different, then the evidence indicates that infection with the coryza microbe is most prevalent in September and October; and that due to the influenza microbe in January, February, and March.

One of the difficulties in studying the great waves of influenza, the latest of which was in 1918, and the next of which will be here about 1940 if the old cycles are followed, has been our lack of knowledge of coryza. One group of scientists holds these waves of influenza to be caused by transformations of the homely microbe of coryza. Others claim it to be something entirely different. Since neither microbe is known the wars between these camps result in drawn battles.

Beginning with 1922 the U. S. public health service undertook a very extensive study of the common cold. With the cooperation of many people they studied common colds among about ten thousand people over long periods of time. The study covered several university and college groups totaling more than three thousand persons, and was continued through one summer and two winters. The other study covered nearly seven thousand family groups and lasted through two summers and three winters.

Three reports have been made on these studies. The latest was by W. H. Frost and Miss Mary Gover. Among their conclusions are these:

They divide the acute respiratory disorders into coryzas, influenza, and miscellaneous. A coryza is a case of acute cold with rhinitis, watery discharge, profuse discharge of the mucus and pus, as about the only symptoms. The cases with rhinitis and also sore throat or cough or both, and fever, prostration, and aching they call influenza. The miscellaneous group includes those cases not in the first two.

Colds act like endemic diseases due to microbes. They are always present, but they are least prevalent in July and August. A wave of prevalence begins to build up in August. The coryza type is at its maximum in September and October; the influenza type in the late winter. After that the prevalence lessens progressively until the low is reached. This prevalence rate is similar in some particulars to the waves of smallpox, measles, and scarlet fever, but in other particulars it differs.

In addition to these greater waves colds have minor secondary waves interspersed with periods in which there is not much of the disease. Colds are about equally prevalent north and south, east and west.

IT IS MIGRAINE.

H. H. writes:

1. Please explain what is meant by the liver not functioning?
2. Would that explain vomiting of bile with no food particles?
3. I am a subject to headaches which sometimes amount to almost stupor accompanied by this vomiting of bile. There is no pain except the headache.

REPLY:

1. The term is commonly used as a synonym for constipation.
2. No. That is reverse peristalsis.
3. You have migraine. Vomiting is a frequent symptom of that disorder. In migraine, if the nausea continues after the stomach has been emptied, reverse peristalsis brings up bile.

THISTLES AND RAGWEED.

J. W. K. writes: A recent news story told how thistles are to be done away with to save the soil, while laws are silent as to killing ragweeds that millions suffer from in the hay fever season. Why not let soil rest until ragweeds are killed off? Every newspaper in the state might become useful by printing your statement touching hay fever, thistles, and ragweeds. Keep on with the arguments for the health of millions.

TONSILLITIS.

M. L. F. writes: What causes the throat to become red and sore when a person is chilled or sits out in the evening? I felt feverish and weak when I had such a throat. Should all dead teeth be removed?

REPLY.

Acute tonsillitis is the best guess. Some persons get that infection on slight provocation. If that is your only trouble, that is not enough to call for removal of teeth.

FORGET IT.

Mrs. M. D. writes: Do you think a child can be marked by the mental attitude of a pregnant woman? I saw some freaks several years ago and those sights seem to remain in my mind and have me dreadfully worried.

REPLY.

No. Forget what the boxy man told you and go ahead with your family.

NOT TOO OLD.

M. C. writes: I expect to be married soon, at the age of 29. I wish to have a family, but my friends have advised me not to, as I am too old. Do you think this is so?

REPLY.

Are they friends?

POLICIES DIFFER.

Chicago, Sept. 26.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—My father disappeared eight years ago and I have heard nothing of him since. I have kept his insurance policy in effect and am still paying the premiums on same. 1. How long am I required to keep the policy, which is a life insurance policy, in effect in a case such as this? 2. Would you advise me to employ an attorney and sue the insurance company in order to pay over the face value of the policy? 3. Under the circumstances, have I any chance of being successful in having them pay the policy through the court? 4. What would be the most logical step to take?

J. W.

1. A person is presumed dead after seven years' disappearance, but many insurance policies contain express wording exempting the company from any liability based on such presumption.
2. Yes, unless there is wording to the contrary.
3 and 4. See preceding answers.

LOAN.

Villa Park, Ill., Sept. 25.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Five years ago I loaned a friend $500. Thinking it was for only a short time I did not ask for a note but [1] he gave me for guaranty a deed covering two property lots. 2. I would like to know if the deed he gave me for guaranty is sufficient to secure a judgment against him. 3. Who will be responsible for the attorney's fee and court costs, and what would these amount to? J. F.

1. The value of this security would depend upon whether the wording of the deed is such as to convey the title to you, whether he had good title, and what the property was worth.
2. No.
3. We see no reason why yould should not recover judgment on your own oral testimony. You would have to pay your own attorney. The court costs would be assessed against the losing party.

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

OCTOBER 5, 1916.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill.—The 1st regiment, Illinois National Guard, answered its last roll call at Camp Lincoln and its men are starting back home to Chicago. A period of more than three months in the service of the United States near the Mexican border thus ends in the satisfaction that comes from a tedious task well done. Some of the boys are going back to find their old jobs awaiting them. Some, on the other hand, released their clutch on civilian employment when they answered the nation's call last June and are returning with a somewhat dulling uncertainty as to what the immediate future holds in store for them in the way of a place to work. The "census" of the guardsmen showed that 189 members of the 1st and 153 members of the 2d are returning without knowledge of what they are going to do.

LONDON.—Late reports show the allied advance in Macedonia was much greater than first stated. The combined Serbian, French, and Russian forces have broken through the Bulgarian defenses on a broad front and reached a crescent shaped line which, at its extreme curve, Kenali, is within ten miles of Monastir. The French and Serbians are attacking Kenali, a strong fortress. The Bulgarians have evacuated Zub and all the positions from Krushograd on the west to Nidje Planina Floka on the east, leaving an eighteen mile breach on their line through which the Serbians are pursuing them, breaking the second line on a shorter front.

LONDON.—After three days of incessant and furious fighting the Russians are reported to have won a considerable advantage in their new drive on Lemberg from the south and to be threatening the important railroad town of Brzezany, 50 miles southeast of Lemberg. Reuter's Petrograd correspondent says the Russians, under cover of artillery fire, forced their way across the Zlota Lipa river south of Brzezany, driving the Austro-German forces from the heights. The Russian artillery then advanced and began a bombardment of the military establishments and suburbs of the town.

LONDON.—Progress for the allies at two points on the Somme river front is reported in the London and Paris official statements. A strongly fortified line of German defenses between Morval, on the St. Pierre-Vaast wood, has been captured by the French, the Paris war office announced. The British report says that the town of Eaucourt l'Abbaye, for possession of which heavy fighting has been in progress for several days, is entirely in the hands of the British.

CHICAGO.—President Wilson will not reply to Col. Roosevelt's fighting speech. He will not even discuss Col. Roosevelt in his campaign. He has decided to ignore Col. Roosevelt completely. This was the information that was discussed by members of the party as the President, accompanied by Mrs. Wilson and his secretary, Joseph Tumulty, arrived in Chicago for a brief stop. The President was on his way to Omaha.

CHICAGO.—George Crawford Mastin of 312 North Grove avenue, Oak Park, a lawyer of long standing in Chicago and senior member of the firm of Mastin & Sherlock, Fisher building, died on Oct. 3. He was born in Ohio in 1853.

CHICAGO.—James Bowen Rayner, one of the founders of Buck & Rayner drug stores, died on Sept. 27 at Elmwood Hall at the age of 80. He was born at Boston, Mass., and came to Chicago in 1857. With George Buck he established a drug business under the firm name of Buck & Rayner. He anticipated the big fire by insuring only in foreign companies which paid him promptly. He retired from business in 1888.

CHICAGO.—The Union League club of Chicago, Jackson boulevard and Plymouth court, with its 1,800 resident members and its hundreds of nonresident members, celebrated the formal opening of the $200,000 addition to the club which has been building since last March and which will eventuate some day in an entirely new building, according to the plans of the club.

CHICAGO.—Peacefully and quietly the annual baseball struggle between the White Sox and Cubs began at Comiskey park. Just as every one expected, the White Sox won, the score being 8 to 2. The feature was bright sunshine and 17,250 persons were there to enjoy it. Jim Vaughn and Claude Hendrix pitched for the Cubs. Reb Russell was on the mound for the Sox.

A LEGIONNAIRE'S REPLY.

Chicago, Sept. 24.—As a member of the American Legion and the United Spanish War Veterans, please allow me to comment on the statement of Admiral Sims, in which he attacks both organizations.

Admiral Sims was given a university education by the United States and paid while he was getting it. He was commissioned when he graduated from this university, the Naval academy at Annapolis, and paid an excellent salary for life. He retired on $5,000 per year retirement allowance, itself a pension in every way. Because of the education and opportunity given him by the United States when he was a poor Canadian immigrant boy he has worked up a prestige which he now turns into large fees for lectures, magazine articles, and books.

Almost every line of the above is true of Rear Admiral Byrd, retired on good retirement allowance, or pension, in the very prime of life. Try and get Byrd or Sims for a lecture and note the fat fees asked by their agents.

Until they give up their own pensions, neither ever having been wounded, or at least scale them down to Spanish war or world war size, Sims and Byrd should be silent. Neither gave his career to their country. They eased themselves into naval commissions, were well paid, lived high. A man in civil life, with similar salary, receives no pensions from his employer. Rightfully he is expected to provide for his own old age.

AN ADMIRER OF JUDGE HORNER.

Moline, Ill., Sept. 27.—Why is nothing said about the help that Judge Horner is offering and has offered the public by being in his office at 8:30 or 9 o'clock in the morning and willing to listen to any inquiry from the public on any question in connection with probate matters? I certainly wish him all the good luck possible, for I believe he takes as much real honest to goodness interest in the position as governor as he does in his position as judge of the Probate court I say he sure is the man.

President, the Tri-City Steel & Supply Co.

AN UNPAID JUROR.

Chicago, Sept. 28.—The first two weeks in July I served as juror in the Superior court. Up till today I have received no pay. When a citizen takes time off from his regular work and his business to do what he considers a duty he ought to be able to get the small sum of $36 he is entitled to without waiting three months. It will be a long, long time before they get me on another jury. I'll find some way out. J. C.

HE WANTS A DIAGRAM.

Chicago, Oct. 1.—After reading four Minute Mysteries we give up. We can't even solve the solutions. This might reflect on our ability as a detective, or perhaps Dr. Fordney, like the comptometer, just gives the answer and doesn't tell how it is done. Why not devote some space to the usual type of solution? For instance, who, how, and why. Even Sherlock Holmes was not too great to do this. L. Q.

OVER FIFTY.

Chicago, Sept. 27.—I have made several calls on the emergency relief for employment. After several put-offs I was invited to make an application, but when I answered the young lady's question about age I was promptly turned down with the explanation that they didn't employ anybody over 50 years of age.

Later I called again to see what they could do in relation to financial help and they referred me to their division in the part of the city where I lived. I went to the address they gave me—81st street and Commercial avenue—and after waiting 2½ hours they informed me I would have to go to the county—92d street and Stony Island avenue—as they could do nothing for any one over 60 years of age; and at the county quarters they said the county had no money and could give me nothing but an order for groceries.

I am in excellent physical health and thoroughly competent to earn my living. I don't want charity. I want a job. I have been out of work for three years and have become a burden to my relatives and friends.

There should be some way to get past the front door and give me a chance to talk to the relief people. I can't help being older than their specified limits, and why should age debar me if I am abundantly able to do the work? I have been a resident of Chicago for 18 years.

A STORY FOR MR. HOOVER.

Elgin, Ill., Sept. 30.—Since President Hoover is asking for stories may I submit the following?

A map was adjudged insane. His brother requested that he be permitted to accompany him to the asylum, so he was deputized and they departed.

After a time the warden of the asylum called the sheriff and said, "You sent a patient to me, but we cannot tell which one is crazy." The sheriff replied, "Talk to them; you will find out which one is insane." The warden said: "I have talked with both the deputy and the supposed patient. One says he is Napoleon Bonaparte. The other one claims that Hoover has helped the farmers." J. P. H.

ORCHESTRAL GOO.

Chicago, Sept. 27.—As a lover of first class dance orchestras I am using this medium to plead against the terribly overdone sentimental and sweetheart numbers. To listen to a program of dance music is becoming positively painful. One cannot recognize one melody from another. The publishers would do well to offer a large sum of money to a composer who could write descriptive anti-depression numbers without reference to love or matrimony in the lyrics.

THE SEX OF A FILLY.

Chicago, Sept. 30.—It was most amusing this morning to read French Lane's account of the racing at Lincoln Fields yesterday. In his discourse about the filly Depression, it was he, this, and him, that, and any one that is at all familiar with racing knows that the animal mentioned is a filly and that the race was made up especially for fillies and mares.

$50,000 INJURY SUIT HALTED IN COURT AS RACKET

Action Ordered Against Defendant, Plaintiffs.

Frank Curatola of South Beloit, Ill., appeared yesterday as the defendant in a $50,000 personal injury suit before Judge Joseph B David. After hearing part of the evidence, Judge David halted the case and accused Curatola and the two plaintiffs of collusion. He ordered criminal proceedings started against them on the grounds of operating a confidence game against the insurance company which would have had to pay any damages assessed against Curatola.

The plaintiffs in the case were John Gammicchio, 2420 Taylor street, and his wife, Esther. They charged that on Nov. 1 last year Curatola struck them at Sibley street and Gilpin place with his automobile and knocked them both unconscious. They testified that they had not known Curatola before the accident, and had not seen him since he picked them up from the street and took them to their home. Curatola later took the stand and testified that he was a stranger to them.

No Witnesses for Plaintiff.

The Gammicchios said that they had no witnesses of the accident, but testified that they had been attended by a Dr. Stanley Veselsky who did not appear as a witness.

When Attorney John A. Bloomingston, representing the company which insured Curatola's car, began to cross-examine his own client, Judge David joined in the questioning and asked Curatola why he had taken the Gammicchios home instead of to the Mother Cabrini hospital, a block from the scene of the supposed accident.

"This looks like collusion to me," declared Judge David to Attorney Bloomingston. "Have you investigated these people?"

"We have, your honor," replied the attorney, "and I have been giving them enough rope to hang themselves. Our investigators found that instead of being strangers, Curatola and the Gammicchios came to this country in 1905 from the same town, Marsaka, Italy, where they were neighbors. Furthermore, we have a motion picture which shows Curatola calling at the Gammicchio home since the accident. The Gammicchios have a number of relatives in South Beloit, where he lives.

Cites Earlier Settlement.

"Our investigators also found that two years ago Curatola's wife got a $10,000 settlement in an accident case similar to this one, and that on that occasion a Dr. Stanley Veselsky testified for her."

Judge David immediately dismissed the Gammicchios suit. He then summoned Assistant State's Attorney James Clancy to his courtroom and ordered him to start criminal action against them and Curatola. Mr. Clancy said that he would present the transcript of the case and the motion pictures taken by the insurance investigators to the grand jury and ask indictments on charges of operating a confidence game.

9 CANDIDATES FILE FOR JUDGE IN EVANSTON

Nine candidates for judge of the Municipal court to be installed in Evanston, including the youngest and oldest justices of the peace of Cook county, and the present city attorney of Evanston, had filed petitions of candidacy with City Clerk Edward W. Bell of the suburb at 11 o'clock last night. The deadline for filing was midnight.

Seventeen candidates for clerk of the court, including the former managing editor and a former reporter of the Evanston News-Index, and former candidates for mayor and alderman, filed similar petitions.

Two judges, at a salary of $5,000 a year each, and one clerk, at a salary of $2,500 a year, are to be chosen in a special election Nov. 8.

J. Edward Jones and Thomas W. Barrett Jr. filed petitions last night as candidates for judge of the new Municipal court which is being established in Oak Park. One judge is to be elected on Nov. 8.

MARSHALL FIELD & COMPANY

STRIKE CALLED ON COAL YARD; RACKET BLAMED

Dealer Lays Walkout on Old Barker Gang.

Employés in the yard of the Chicago Coal Sales company at 441 East North Water street were ordered out on strike yesterday. According to J. C. Hoskins, the owner, an old racket is being revived. He said the strike was called because he refused to join an association which furnishes trucks and drivers and sees to it that there is no undercutting of prices.

Mr. Hoskins said he had fought the racketeers before, back in the days when "Red" Barker, gangster and convict who was slain recently, dominated the Coal Teamsters' union, and he intends to present the new attack to his business to the state's attorney today.

"The Barker gang is back to its old tactics," he reported to the Employers' association and to Police Commissioner Allman yesterday. "Barker is dead but the gang is carrying on. Barkers' brother-in-law, a man named Kane, and another man named Wilson, are doing the work. They have shut down eight coal yards in the last three weeks because dealers wouldn't join their outfit.

Tells of Trucking Racket.

"They organized the Trucking and Transportation association back in the days when Barker was alive. It was quiet when he went back to prison and for a time after he was released—but just prior to Barker's murder last June—it was back in operation again.

"I have forty-five union employés and I pay them better than the union scale which is $5.50 a day for laborers and $8.50 for drivers. I have my yard on the river and I save 60 cents a ton by having deliveries made to me by boat. Therefore I sell at 60 cents a ton under some other dealers.

"I was told that if I would join the Trucking and Transportation association, I could pay my men 50 cents a day less than the union scale. But then I would have to sell under controlled prices. This I refused to do.

"When they tried to force me into a racketeer association several years ago I sought help from the state's attorney's office, and I shall do so again. Jack Sheridan and his son took control of the coal teamsters' union after Barker was eliminated. They must be back of this trucking racket or it could not operate. It's up to the state's attorney to do business.

Strike Called After "Ad."

"I advertised in the newspapers Sunday morning that my company would save coal purchasers 60 cents a ton, because of our water front, and 10 cents a ton because we do only a cash business. The advertisement resultedf in Kane, Wilson, and Charles Rickert visiting my yard today and calling a strike. Five minutes later I was told on the telephone the strike would be canceled if I joined the association."

"I went to the Employers' association, which knows all about the coal racketeers," said Hoskins last night. "and I was promised guards for my business. Police Commissioner Allman promised to furnish protection and we will operate, racketeers or no racketeers."

MRS. MASSIE WON'T RETURN TO HAWAII FOR RETRIAL OF FOUR

New York, Oct. 4.—[Special.]—Mrs Thomas N. Massie will not be called back to Hawaii in the event that the four natives accused of attacking her are tried again, John C. Kelley, public prosecutor of Honolulu, announced this afternoon.

Mr. Kelley and Gov. Judd of Hawaii are conferring here with representatives of the Pinkerton detective agency, which made an investigation of the case and is believed to have reported the four men innocent of the attack.

Mrs. Massie, herself now at Lansdowne, Pa., denied she had ever intimated the four men were not guilty. In an interview published in the Philadelphia Public Ledger she asserts that there are two other witnesses to the attack who did not come forward at first, but who now will substantiate her charges.

"The men who dragged me into a car near Waikiki were seen and recognized by two sailors who were using a service truck without permission and did not at first come forward with their evidence," Mrs. Massie is quoted as saying. "Their names, however, were in the hands of investigators."

Mr. Kelley said today that he will leave from San Francisco for Hawaii on Oct. 21, but he would not reveal any other information as to whether or not he will seek a retrial.

Gale Perils Crown Prince of Italy, Wife, D'Annunzio

DESENZANO, Italy, Oct. 4.—(AP)—With Crown Prince Humbert and Crown Princess Marie Jose aboard his private sub-chaser, Gabriele d'Annunzio battled a gale for an hour today in a vain attempt to cross Lake Guarda. The Italian poet and soldier finally abandoned the attempt and they sought shelter at Sirmione, close to the point they started from.

GUARDSMEN END MINE DISORDERS; THREE ARRESTED

Operations Renewed at Hanna City Shaft.

Canton, Ill., Oct. 4.—[Special.]—National Guardsmen who arrived in Canton last night to restore order after a regular union mine worker had been shot in a battle with pickets of the insurgent faction today seemed to have the situation in hand.

Twenty-eight of the militiamen, in automobiles, patrolled the roads leading from Canton to the nearby mines and seventy-one others were held in reserve. No picketing was permitted and three men who refused to obey orders were promptly taken into custody.

Encouraged by the maintenance of order, operators of the Dorchel mine at Hanna City, Peoria county, reopened it with a force of 200 workers. Operations continued at the five smaller mines which were picketed here last week. It was also announced that the Truax-Traer strip mine at St. David would start digging tomorrow.

Indications were that the regular miners and operators were not so successful in keeping open in other parts of the mine fields. Efforts to operate the St. Ellen mine in St. Clair county have been abandoned, and the Nigger Hollow and Carbon mines have also been closed. Violence to workers was the cause.

Medical College Gets Back Checks Taken in Holdup

The Chicago Medical college, 710 South Lincoln street, yesterday received by special delivery $2,687 in tuition checks which were taken by four bandits in a holdup of the institution Monday. In addition to the checks, the bandits took about $900 in cash.

CITY WILL SPEED TRIAL OF MOODY INSTITUTE SUIT

Joseph F. Grossman, assistant corporation counsel, yesterday said he would ask for an early trial of the suit brought against the city by the Moody Bible institute for the collection of alleged damages incurred in the widening of North La Salle street. City officials believe that after the suit is settled some action will be taken to move the institute's buildings back to the new building line.

The damages alleged by the institute are in excess of the award granted for property condemned by the city in the widening project. Under the provisions of an agreement, according to Mr. Grossman, the institute was to move back its buildings upon payment of a portion of its award in cash. He said the city has fulfilled its part of the agreement, but that the institute has failed to take any action except to ask for more money.

Because buildings of the institute north of Chicago avenue jut out from two to fourteen feet over land condemned for the widening improvement the city has been unable to construct 17 foot sidewalks and curbs there such as have been built along other sections of the improvement.

CHURCH APPEALS TO HIGH COURT IN VOTE CONTEST

Mandamus proceedings were filed in the Supreme court yesterday in Springfield in behalf of Ralph Church, who asks the court to award him the Republican nomination for congress in the 10th district. The nomination was given James Simpson Jr. last week by order of Circuit Judge Thomas J. Lynch, who conducted a recount of the ballots cast for that nomination. Action on the petition of Church must be had within the next few days or it will be too late, Church's attorneys said, as the canvassing board will make certifications before the end of the week.

DECIDE $16,000 HEART BALM IS NOT EXCESSIVE

The Appellate court decided yesterday that the $16,000 awarded Miss Lillian McQuillen, 30 years old, 1922 North Central Park avenue, as balm for the refusal of William H. Evans, president of the Evans Flexible Reamer company, 3656 Lincoln avenue, to marry her, is not excessive. Miss McQuillen was awarded the damages by a jury which heard her suit for breach of promise in the Superior court a year ago. Evans had appealed.

In a ruling handed down by Judge Otto Kerner and concurred in by Judges Kickham Scanlan and Martin M. Gridley, the court said: "Evans would have been a complete failure if the complainant had not cheered him on and made his business success possible."

Evidence introduced during the trial showed that Miss McQuillen was courted by Evans from 1919 to 1924.

DRUGGIST DROPS LIQUOR SALES TO STOP ROBBERIES

J. I. Childs, president of the Medinah Drug company, 509 North Michigan avenue, yesterday asked the prohibition department to cancel his liquor permit. A series of robberies, in which whisky represented the greatest loss, convinced Mr. Childs that there was no profit in his permit. Prohibition authorities said Mr. Childs could just quit buying whisky under his permit and there would be no more incentive for burglars to enter his place.

The last robbery, in which 45 quarts of whisky were taken, occurred early yesterday. Six months ago 96 bottles were stolen, and two years ago burglars nicked Mr. Childs for 120 quarts. In addition to the whisky other loot ran the total loss to approximately $2,250. Total liquor sales would run only three bottles a month, Mr. Childs said, and there was little profit in that.

No need to guess. First cut a lock of hair from your head and apply a little of this famous tint. If Brownatone does not give your gray, streaked, dull, or faded hair its natural color, youth and sheen, your money back. Only 80c.

WABASH

Before he let her say "I Do"

This young man, some years ago, had the misfortune to contract a social disease. So, before marrying, he took steps to make certain that the infection no longer existed. Now he faces the future secure in the knowledge that his early affliction never will mar his wife's or his own health and happiness.

It is vitally important that every man should take this precaution before entering into marriage. For gonorrhea and syphilis are two of the greatest of all obstacles to a healthy and happy married life!

Syphilis, for example, is the outstanding cause of stillborn, deformed and feeble-minded babies. Also, it robs many a married man of his livelihood at a time he needs it most by resulting in such health-wrecking complications as heart disease, blindness, deafness, apoplexy, nervous breakdowns, locomotor ataxia, paralysis and even insanity!

Gonorrhea, too, is greatly to be feared, for much sterility, most infantile blindness, and the majority of the pelvic operations performed on women are directly traceable to it. In addition, it lessens the earning power of its victims by causing crippling rheumatism and other serious disorders.

Both diseases, however, can be cured if properly and persistently treated. Even long-standing cases of syphilis can often be arrested and a safe marriage made possible. Therefore any man who now has a social disease, or who has reason to suspect that an early infection has not been entirely eliminated, should consult a reputable physician or come to the Public Health Institute for advice before marrying. In fact, many states require every prospective bridegroom and bride to be examined, for syphilis can be acquired innocently and thus exist without the individual's knowledge.

Organized NOT FOR PROFIT by public-spirited citizens, the Public Health Institute specializes in the treatment of venereal diseases at fees that are surprisingly low. A complete examination for gonorrhea and syphilis, including Wassermann and Kahn blood tests, costs only $3.00, while six consecutive treatments for gonorrhea cost but $4.00. Even those lacking immediate funds will be accommodated.

The Public Health Institute possesses every necessary scientific facility for the cure of social diseases, including X-ray, eye and dental services when required. It has separate departments for men and women, where treatment is administered in complete privacy by a staff of experienced physicians who have been licensed by the State Board of Medical Examiners. All blood and other tests are made with the utmost care in its own modern laboratory under the direct supervision of specialists.

When trustworthy medical service can be had so reasonably, why risk letting a social disease make a tragedy of your marriage? If you are contemplating matrimony, go at once to your family doctor or come to the Public Health Institute!

ITALY ORGANIZES A PILGRIMAGE BY VETS IN AMERICA

All Italians Eligible for Trip to Homeland.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, Oct. 4.—With the approval of the secretary of the Fascist party and of the Italian minister of war, the first pilgrimage to Italy of Italian members of the American Legion has been organized by the cavalry section of the former combatants association here.

Eligible for the tour will be any member of the American Legion who is either of Italian birth although now an American citizen or those members who are still Italian citizens. The organizers of the tour say that no distinction should be made between those who fought in Italy during the war under the Italian flag and in the Italian uniform and those of Italian birth whom fortune or chance may have obliged to serve in khaki and under another flag.

Will Visit Battlefields.

Special facilities will be offered those veterans of the American Legion who decide to make the pilgrimage, which will last from Oct. 6 to Nov. 11. The first of the pilgrims are reported to have sailed from New York for Trieste on one of the big Italian liners.

From Trieste they will visit the Italian battlefields and afterwards the important cities of Italy, and as the period of the pilgrimage is coincident with it, they will be given ample chance to witness the October celebrations of the tenth anniversary of Fascism which are now being prepared.

Backers of the movement urge that it will be a good opportunity to re-emphasize to Italians who live abroad Italy's war effort as well as to renew their bonds of attachment to the mother country. Petitions have been made to the Italian Ex-Combatants' association, which corresponds to the American Legion, to give the visitors all the facilities and privileges enjoyed by Italian veterans, except the right to pensions and payments, during their stay here.

Legion Post in Italy.

"Italy ought to have the same affection for these ex-soldiers of Italian origin who fought under a foreign flag as she has for her own veterans who wore the green gray uniform," says the ex-combatants' paper printed in Rome.

In Italy there has been organized a department of the American Legion, made up of those Italians who have returned to Italy and who have lived here since, but who served in the American army during the war. To all intents and purposes they are Italian citizens, and in event of new hostilities they would be obliged to serve in the Italian army, if still of military age.

All members of this Italian department of the American Legion draw pensions and bonuses and are accorded the same privileges as if they were in the United States by the American government.

The organization of the pilgrimage of the Italian veterans of the American Legion back to the old country serves to put in relief the paramount interest which the Fascist government takes in the ten millions of Italians who live abroad, and who, if their active interest and activities can be stimulated, afford a valuable political element in foreign countries for the Italian or Fascist government.

One section of the foreign office is devoted to keeping alive and organizing the Italian colonies abroad, which include also those Italians who have adopted foreign citizenship, and one of the competences and part of the instructions to the new ministers and ambassadors recently appointed was to intensify their work in organizing the Italian colonies.

In the United States the organization is known as the Sons of Italy. It has 300,000 members, and has taken over the functions and part of the membership of the old Fascist League of North America, which two or three years ago was dissolved on the request of the Washington government o. the grounds that it was working to prevent assimilation of Italians as American citizens.

"Culture" Is Basis.

The Sons of Italy is organized as a cultural association to promote Italian literature, culture, and civilization. Its chief, Giovanni di Silvestro, has American citizenship, and is a Philadelphia lawyer. He comes to Italy twice a year to consult with Mussolini on plans to make the organization more effective. He has just concluded his semi-annual visit, bringing with him Vincenzo Brogno of Boston, head of the Massachusetts Sons of Italy branch, and John Alessandroni, head of the Sons of Italy in Pennsylvania.

This organization is looked on in Italy as one of Fascism's most valuable instruments of political propaganda for creating a favorable opinion and sentiment toward Mussolini in the United States at the same that it prevents a too ready assimilation of Italians as American citizens.

In the United States the maintenance of special and separate Italian schools is frowned upon. The organization for the control of Italians abroad, however, headed by Piero Parini of the Fascist foreign office, gives great attention to the organization of Italian schools in other countries where there are large Italian groups

TWO NEW ORLEANS JAHNCKES SAY THEY BEAT YOUNG MAN

New Orleans, La., Oct. 4.—[Special.]—Paul F. Jahncke, brother of Ernest Lee Jahncke, assistant secretary of the navy and president of Jahncke Service, Inc.; his son, Edward [Buddy] Jahncke, and Denton Wilmot pleaded guilty to charges of assault and battery upon Nolan Maurin. Their case came up for trial before Judge Charbonnet today.

The trio had been charged in an indictment with Harry M. Adams, who never was apprehended, with assault, beating, bruising, and wounding.

Sentence will be imposed Monday. The penalty under their pleading is $10 to $100 fine and 10 to 90 days in jail. The offense charged carries $10 to $300 fine and 10 days to 6 months in jail.

The Jahnckes' attorney appeared with his clients in the Criminal court and when their case was called asserted they were willing to enter pleas of guilty to the assault and battery charge. The state accepted that.

Judge Charbonnet then set Monday for the imposition of sentence. All three men are free on bonds.

The beating took place at the Jahncke boathouse at West End on the night of April 25. Maurin, it was said, had quarreled with the younger Jahncke concerning a debutante, a friend of both. Her name never came into the case officially. Maurin said Denton Wilmot came to his home and told him that "Buddy" was waiting at the boathouse to "have it out."

NAMES GROUPS FOR $7,500,000 WELFARE DRIVE

Robert A. Gardner, chairman of the committee that will conduct the $7,500,000 drive of the Emergency Welfare Fund of Cook County, Inc., began the organization of the subcommittees yesterday that will be in charge of actual solicitation, officials of the fund announced. The fund is to be spent for the support of general welfare work, other than unemployment relief, through 130 agencies in Cook counties.

HUNGRY SCHOOL CHILDREN'S FUND IS GIVEN $414

Day's Response to Pleas Cheers Sponsors.

If there was any uneasiness on the part of the Hungry School Children's fund as to the attitude of Mr. Citizen toward the resumption of the fund this fall, it disappeared with the arrival of yesterday's mail. It was the first real response to Monday morning's opening appeal, and when all was counted the day's total stood at $414.

Right on top of the stack was an anonymous gift of $200. And tucked under that was $100 sent by Mayor A. J. Cermak. So they went, these first gifts—$25, $15, $10 and on down to $1. Among these was $25 from E. P. Lannan, who promised that more will follow; Fanny Newman, who pledged $5 weekly; "H. H.," who sent a note with his $5.

Hunger in Land of Plenty.

"I cannot imagine anything more pitiful than a hungry child," he wrote. "That such a thing should actually exist in our midst is almost beyond belife in a country producing such a superabundance of food. As last year, I want to be one of the first to contribute."

The first child to contribute was Dorothy Elaine Rosman, 6231 North Washtenaw avenue.

"I am enclosing one dollar for the Hungry School Children's fund," Dorothy advised the fund. "I just started in the first grade this year and I will be six years old on Oct. 15."

Miss Frances L. Swain, head of the household arts department of the board of education, who aids in the distribution of the fund, expressed her pleasure over the total of the first day's gifts, but she added that free lunches in many of the schools where there is desperate need cannot be started until the contributions have reached a big enough total to warrant it.

Food Depends on Gifts.

"It would be too bad to feed these children for a day or two and then stop. As soon as we are reasonably certain that the public will support the fund again this year, we will extend the feeding service to additional schools," she said.

Last year, it will be remembered, nearly 10,000 children were fed hot noonday meals regularly in 200 public schools. This was made possible through the weekly and monthly pledges, and occasional gifts of Chicagoans who had at heart the welfare of the plucky children who tried to continue in school despite lack of sufficient food. The need for the Hungry School Children's fund is even greater this year.

$100—Mayor A. J. Cermak.
$25—W. G. Hopkins, E. P. Lannan.
$15—Mrs. C. R. Erwin.
$5—C. P. Zacher, H. H., F. D. Nicholson, Fanny Newman, Mrs. R. G. Emmert.
$1—Dorothy Elaine Rosman, E. S. S.

OPEN NEW CLASS FOR VOLUNTEERS IN SOCIAL WORK

The Chicago Council of Social Agencies yesterday opened another class of volunteers for training in social and welfare work in Cook county, after requests for more than 100 volunteers had been filed by relief and welfare organizations.

The class will be held Tuesday and Thursday mornings of each week from 9:30 to 11:30 during October.

Last year, according to Mrs. Edward O. Brown, director of the service, more than 600 women completed the classes and then worked for 90 different agencies. They did clerical work, motor service, case work, and recreational work in settlements. All worked without pay. They were under the direction of the social agencies which were inadequately financed and therefore were compelled to rely upon volunteers.

W. C. T. U. Assails Ontario Liquor Control System

BROCKVILLE, Ont., Oct. 4.—(AP)—The Ontario liquor control act was described as "the worst piece of legislation ever placed on the statute books of the province," by Mrs. F. W. Ward, Toronto, president of the National Women's Christian Temperance union, in an address before the Ontario branch in annual session here today. Mrs. Ward charged that, contrary to reports, there had been a large increase in drunkenness in the province since the act went into force.

The heritage of New England...

EVERY summer thousands of people come to New England... come to enjoy its green hills, its stone walls, its good roads : : They come and go, seeking out the comfortable, satisfying scenery of the countryside. • But deeper than all these pleasant aspects of hill and dale and shore, is the appeal this small corner of our land holds for them—its traditions, its history, its simple reminders of a strong and sturdy people who made this country their own : : And this very essence of New England, its quality and its character, is reflected in its institutions, its architecture, the products of its fields and factories. • Since 1801 we have been making paper here in New England, slowly and carefully, from the choicest materials, harmonizing the skill of hands with that of machines, improving our methods, improving our product : : So we shall continue, for to us there is no other way to make paper; to our customers, none other will suffice. • And this adherence to a single standard of excellence, through all times and all conditions, finds increasing response today from those who have again discovered the extravagance of cheap things; from those who seek once more the old-time quality, the enduring quality that is our tradition, the heritage of our New England.

SLIGHT DISCORD MARS GREETER GAW'S SONG HIT

Woman Asserts He Borrowed Her Inspiration.

of 'folks of every clime,' that means all the foreign people living in Chicago. All taken from my speech, everything is. My friends say it all sounds like me," he added with a modest smile.

The chorus and second stanza follow:

CHORUS.

"O, Chicago's proud to be that city of destiny
And sends its greetings to you everywhere;
Our hospitalities, our opportunities
Are yours when you arrive by land or air.
You'll feel our welcome sign all over our skyline
We'll greet you with a handclasp firm and true;
And while our church bells ring, o'er three million hearts will sing:
CHICAGO WELCOMES YOU."

II.

"Now in nineteen-thirty-three, if you will visit me,
You'll find that folks are here from ev'ry clime:
Our boulevards and parks,
Schools and sciences and arts
Are sending you their greetings all the time;
Our hotels and industries,
Our great facilities
Will serve you with a friendship that is true;
Our Century of Progress will your world's fair be,
So this is why we sing to you."

The song, now being published, also will be the Century of Progress official song. Mr. Gaw has written another song, "Dreaming of My Old Kentucky Home," for his home town of Owensboro. The first stanza begins with the line, "When I was just a barefoot lad I dreamed I'd like to roam," and ends, "Through all these years I feel mother's tears saying 'sonny, come home again.'"

Mrs. Wright's View.

Mrs. Wright also expressed herself as feeling "hurt," as well as "grieved." She did not express the sentiments of her collaborator, John Mulvihill, only her own, she made clear.

"I sent my song to Mr. Gaw, and did he acknowledge it? He did not," she said. "Now, what kind of a greeter is he, that he won't even write me a letter? Mayor Cermak wasn't too busy to acknowledge my song when I sent it to him. I've had letters from big people, and I even had a letter from President Hoover's secretary on my 'Flag of the U. S. A.' song.

"I'm humiliated enough by Greeter Gaw treating me that way. Then one night last week I turn on the radio and I hear the words of his song. Why, to begin with, he took his title, 'Greetings: Chicago Welcomes You,' from my chorus. And his idea of the skyline from my word 'towers.' But it's not only the words, and the ideas, but my inspiration that he infringed upon."

"Hear the Winds Blow."

"Yo! ho! hear the wind blow
Down from our towers,
Bringing odor of flowers
With sweetest of greetings,
A welcome, a welcome,

"I hate to call Mr. Gaw a plagiarist, and I know he'll try to crawl out of this—but I warn him I'll be at his heels," Mrs. Wright said grimly. "I wouldn't wonder but what the big song trust is behind him. All I can say is that it's odd, very odd, that he didn't answer my letter and song. Well, they do say that Bacon wrote all of Shakespeare's plays. I wouldn't be surprised now, after my experience, to find out it was true."

POLICE PUNCTURE A 2 MAN BOOM IN REAL ESTATE

Edward Westrup, 30 years old, of 1821 West 71st street, and Durward McClahan, 35, of 4019 Melrose street, who did a booming real estate business by trading lots which, it is charged, they either did not own or which were virtually worthless, for other lots of admitted value, were arrested yesterday by police.

The pair were seized at Justine and 51st streets by Lieut. Joseph Ronan and Sergt. Arthur Katt of the detective bureau. They had been sought for several months on charges of confidence game.

Police said that in 1931 Westrup exchanged two lots in Hammond which he did not own for two lots owned by Ernest Holland of Hammond.

SURFACE LINES' CLOCK TRANSFER CALLED SUCCESS

Plan Permits Reverse Direction Rides.

Officials of the Chicago Surface Lines expressed gratification yesterday over the working out of the new transfers. Thousands of questions have been asked, but the conductors, having been trained three months, were prepared for them, and it is said there were very few complaints.

The greatest advantage afforded by the new transfers, from the passenger's standpoint, is the provision for reverse direction travel which is permitted just so long as you don't try to go back to the starting point.

Eliminate Double Fares.

For example, a man living on Western avenue in the vicinity of Beverly Hills may wish to play golf in Marquette park. He could get there with the old transfer, but he couldn't return home without paying two fares. He takes a Western avenue car to 63d street, transfers west to Kedzie and then south to the park. With the old transfer he could transfer east at 63d, on his way home, and south at Western, but he could go only to the next transfer point, for that is in the opposite direction from which he started. With the new slips you can go as far as you like in the opposite direction.

The longest ride possible is still about 37 miles with the new transfer, and to make it you take a Milwaukee avenue car out on the far northwest side and come down town. There you change to a Cottage Grove car and go south till you meet the Ewing-Brandon line, which will take you all the way to Hegewisch.

Must Travel Direct Routes.

You might think it possible to travel about 150 miles with the new transfer and its reversal of direction provision simply by going around and around a great square or doing a figure eight several times, but that doesn't work. The conductor will ask your destination, and since he has a history of your journey on the transfer he will make you travel the shortest route.

The clock on the face of the slip tells the conductor the time you left a particular zone and the transfer itself shows the line on which you started and direction of travel. Ten minutes are allowed for each zone crossed, except in the loop, where the time is 15 minutes, and you get an additional 10 minutes as a reasonable time in which to change cars. Thus the only advantage to the surface lines is that stopovers of an hour or more are eliminated.

Nanking Fails to Halt Civil War; Renew Fighting

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

SHANGHAI, Oct. 4.—All Nanking's efforts at peaceful settlement of the Shantung civil war have been frustrated and fierce fighting was continuing today. Gov. Han Fu-chu has captured Laiyang and Tsaoyuan, and Liu Chen-nien's 20,000 soldiers are reported to be surrounded within the walled city of Yehhsien.

WITNESS TELLS WAR CARNAGE IN THE GRAN CHACO

Bolivians Half Starved by Paraguayan Blockade.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ASUNCION, Paraguay, Oct. 4.—The newspaper El Liberal today published the first eyewitness account of the surrender by Bolivian troops of Fort Boqueron to the Paraguayan army in the recent three weeks' battle in the Gran Chaco.

Much comment was aroused by the elaborate cement walled trenches of the Bolivians. The article declared that the intricate barbed wire defenses were broken down only by a terrific two day artillery bombardment. The work was finished by a Paraguayan infantry regiment armed with machetes.

Bolivians Are Famished.

The Bolivian commander, Lieut. Col. Marzana, presented a pitiable appearance. He and other officers were famished. The white flag was raised only when the Paraguayan artillery had destroyed the last source of water supply.

The scene in the trenches was one of carnage. There were indications of wholesale executions of would-be deserters. The Paraguayan commander, Col. Bray, showed marked courtesy for his prisoners. In presenting Lieut. Col. Marzana to his staff officers he said:

"I present a brave man to you. Attend to his wants."

Brazil Forbids Coffee Exports.

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil, Oct. 4.—(AP)—Closed three months by civil war, Santos, greatest coffee port of the world, was preparing to resume shipping today in all commodities except its most important. Coffee exports were forbidden until the world market is stabilized.

Meanwhile, the federal naval commander at Santos urged that the port be reopened to give unemployed stevedores work, and said enough mines blockading the harbor have been removed to make passage safe.

Mauro Roquette Pinto, president of the coffee council here, announced the ban on coffee exports, declaring the current New York price slump resulted in the decision to prevent a sudden outflow. It is reported that 600,000 sacks of 132 pounds each are awaiting shipment at Santos.

Peru Votes "Defense" Tax.

LIMA, Peru, Oct. 4.—(AP)—Congress approved an administration project today to tax salaries and incomes on a sliding scale on 10 to 1 per cent to provide a national armament fund. The tax would be levied only once.

(War between Peru and Colombia is threatened, following the seizure last month by Peruvians of the Colombian city of Leticia on the upper Amazon.)

Treat a cold quickly, but intelligently!

Remember, a cold is a germ attack—an internal infection—and, as such, calls for internal treatment. Don't attempt to knock a cold merely with local or outside applications. External treatments can't reach the seat of the trouble and can't prevent the infection from spreading within the system.

Don't attempt, either, to relieve a cold with a cure-all. A cold is a cold and calls for a COLD remedy. A preparation that's good for all kinds of ills and ailments besides colds can't be equally effective for colds. Many people take remedies that actually make a cold more difficult to relieve because these remedies are constipating and also make the system acid.

The thing to take for a cold is Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine! As your doctor will undoubtedly tell you, he couldn't write a better prescription for a cold if he wanted to.

4 Important Effects!

Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine is prompt and decisive relief for a cold because it does four important things.

First, it opens the bowels, gently but effectively—the first step in ronting a cold. Second, it kills the cold germs in the system, drives out the poisonous infection and reduces the fever. Third, it relieves the headache and that grippy feeling. Fourth, it tones the entire system and fortifies it against further attack.

No Bad After-Effects

Grove's Bromo Quinine contains no narcotics and is absolutely safe to take. It produces no bad after-effects. It does not upset the stomach, nauseate, or make the head ring or swim. Its safety, as well as effectiveness, has made it the standard cold tablet the world over.

Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine comes in handy, pocket size boxes, cellophane wrapped and is sold by every drug store in America. A few of the tablets taken promptly on catching cold will usually expel the cold overnight and banish the danger of its settling in your system. Therefore, at the first sign of a cold, take Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine. A wise measure is to keep it within reach all winter. Be suspicious of any dealer who tries to sell you a substitute.

Mr. W. R. Bland,
Classified Advertising Manager
Chicago Tribune,
Chicago, Illinois.

Dear Mr. Bland:

Since the first of August this year we have placed all of our used car advertising in the Tribune and we think you will be interested in the results.

Our unit sales for August increased 86% over the same month last year and 23% over July this year.

We know the Tribune is responsible for this great increase because we advertised in no other newspapor. In addition, all of our ads were keyed with the names of different salesmen so that we could know which of our various Tribune ads pulled the best.

We not only sold cars to people in all sections of Chicago but we also sold to people from Decatur, Illinois, South Bend, Indiana, some from Wisconsin and a few from Iowa, who came to Chicago and drove the cars home.

From the results we have already had we have decided to concentrate our classified advertising in the Tribune for the present. We know the pulling power of Tribune want ads is excellent, particularly in view of present conditions.

Very truly yours,
DASHIELL MOTOR COMPANY
Manager of Sales

M. J. Lanahan
L

BEGINNING the first of August this year, the Dashiell Motor Co. placed all of their used car want advertising in a single newspaper—the Chicago Tribune.

"Our unit sales for August increased 86% over the same month last year and 23% over July this year," writes M. J. Lanahan, manager of sales.

"We know the Tribune is responsible for this great increase because we advertised in no other newspaper. In addition, all our ads were keyed with the names of different salesmen so that we could know which of our various Tribune ads pulled the best.

"We not only sold cars to people in all sections of Chicago, but we also sold to people from Decatur, Ill.; South Bend, Ind.; some from Wisconsin and a few from Iowa, who came to Chicago and drove the cars home."

Auto dealers and private owners! If you have one car to sell or a hundred, the Tribune can do the job for you quickly and at low cost.

Here is a recent experiment conducted under conditions which can leave no doubt as to which newspaper did the job. It is a simple instance of the Tribune doing the job alone.

No matter what kind of used cars you have to sell, Tribune Want Ads can produce buyers for you as no other Chicago newspaper can. The Daily Tribune not only reaches 200,000 more families in Chicago and suburbs than any other daily newspaper, but in addition Tribune Want Ad columns, carrying the censorship-protected offers of reputable dealers and private owners, command the respect and confidence which quickens response and cuts selling costs.

Profit by the experience of this well-known Chicago distributor. Concentrate your used car want advertising in the Tribune. Tribune Want Ad rates for running copy now are lower per 1,000 families reached than in 1920.

1 POLICEWOMAN ARRESTS FORTY AUTO THIEVES

Captain Praises Record of Alice McCarthy.

Policewoman Alice McCarthy, who carries a revolver as big as any of those used by her male associates, and knows how to use it, was called in yesterday by her commanding officer, Capt. Timothy Howard of the south park police, and congratulated on her arrest of 40 automobile thieves during the summer.

Miss McCarthy was a trained nurse until she took a civil service examination eight years ago and was made a south park policewoman, one of the seven women on that force. Her home is at 8950 Blackstone avenue.

Assigned to Beach Area.

For several years she has been assigned solely to the prevention of automobile thefts in the area bordering the Jackson park beach, from 57th to 67th street. All of her arrests were made after she had caught the culprits in the act of stealing automobiles or tools and accessories.

"Miss McCarthy is the equal of any man on my force, and the best policewoman in the city," said Capt. Howard in congratulating her.

She was asked how she operated in making her arrests.

"Just like a man would," replied Miss McCarthy. "To get a conviction, you have to wait until the thief actually starts the motor of an automobile. Nowadays most of the automobile thieves operate from another car. After you are at the work for a time you can spot thieves by their manner of surveying the ground.

"When I spot suspicious parties I maneuver around near the car I think they are after, wait until they have got it started, and then grab them."

"How do you grab them?" she was asked.

"I put my gun on them and tell them to drive to the station," she replied. "They c."

Practices on Pistol Range.

Miss McCarthy practices regularly on the police pistol range and carries her weapon in a holster strapped to her hip. She has not had to fire it at a prisoner since 1927, however. In that year she interrupted a youth in the theft of an automobile and shot him in the leg when he tried to escape.

Of the 40 prisoners taken by Policewoman McCarthy during the summer, 22 were turned over to juvenile authorities. Of the 18 adults, fourteen were fined or sent to the Bridewell. Cases of the other four, including two who had previous records as automobile thieves, are still pending.

AMERICAN TELLS MORE OF YANK'S DUEL IN FRANCE

PARIS, Oct. 4.—(AP)—John G. Hopper, an American mining engineer, formerly of Oakland, Cal., today disclosed hitherto unrevealed details of the duelling on Sept. 1 in Marly-le-Roi forest, in which one American and two Frenchmen were wounded.

Mr. Hopper declined to confirm or deny that he was the American participant. He did not give the motive for the duels, but it was understood that they concerned a question of business honor and did not involve, as was first reported, a woman. All three participants, he said, have recovered.

The American engineer, who asserted that he had fought four duels in the far west of the United States and in Mexico, said the encounters at Marly-le-Roi were carried out according to the code of honor, with pistols lightly loaded.

BOY SENT TO BUY LIQUOR; 2 WOMEN GET JAIL TERMS

Mrs. Rose Miller, 38 years old, 3827 Green Bay avenue, who sent her 11 year old son Harry to purchase liquor for her, and Mrs. Mary Markowitch, 41 years old, 8903 Mackinaw avenue, who sold it to the boy, were each sentenced to 90 days in the Bridewell yesterday by Judge Jay A. Schiller. The bootlegger also was fined $100.

The charge against the women was contributing to the delinquency of the boy. He testified, under questioning by Assistant State's Attorney William Crow, that he had frequently been sent on buying trips for liquor.

Judge Schiller specified that Mrs. Miller should be kept in the Bridewell hospital in the hope that she could be cured of the liquor habit.

CUBA HUNTS FOR RADIO SENDING ALARMING NEWS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HAVANA, Cuba, Oct. 4.—Secret police tonight are trying to locate secret radio stations which are sending out alarming reports concerning political conditions and the danger for aliens in Cuba. The state department received a radio from the captain of a vessel now en route to Havana asking whether it is safe to land the passengers on a large American excursion boat. He said he intercepted a message from Cuba reporting that opponents of President Machado's government are desirous of killing foreigners to create an international situation and hostility to the president, especially in the United States.

Foreign embassies and legations today continued to grant asylum to prominent oppositionists charged by the government as being directly connected with recent events. The refugees fear they may be slain in retaliation for the killing last week of the president of the Cuban senate, Dr. Clemente Vazquez Bello.

The Mexican ambassador notified Ferrara that he will grant Mexican diplomatic passports to Dr. Ricardo Dolz and Elicio Arguelles and former Senator Fausto Menocal so they may sail for New York in a few days. Menocal is a brother of former President Mario Menocal. Arguelles is a prominent Havana banker. He is charged with furnishing the opposition money in recent plots.

VETERAN WITH NO NATURAL SLEEP IN 16 YEARS DIES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BUDAPEST, Hungary, Oct. 4.—Cornelius Szekelys, a disabled war veteran, died here today. He had had no normal, natural sleep for sixteen years. Szekelys received head wounds on the Russian front in 1916. His mind was not affected, but he could not sleep. Famous doctors from all over the world came here to study his case, but none could cure him.

The exact ailment was never satisfactorily diagnosed. His brain seemed normal and he slept only when drugs were administered.

It became more difficult each year to produce artificial sleep and of late it became almost impossible. Szekelys' brain refused to relax even in the veteran's dying moments until the last few seconds today.

Robs 2 Oil Stations in 10 Minutes; Routed at Third

A gunman held up two suburban gasoline stations last night and was driven away from a third, all within 10 minutes. He first held up John Luther, at 25th avenue and Washington boulevard, Bellwood, and got $12. He appeared next at Eric Wayach's station at 9th avenue and Madison street, Maywood, but was driven away when Eric recognized him as the man who had robbed him of $52 last April. Richard Warren at 2d avenue and Madison street, Maywood, surrendered $30 in the third holdup.

DUTCH SUMATRA TOPS PHILIPPINES IN TRADE CLIMB

Leaps Ahead of U. S. Colony in Rubber Industy.

Mr. Kinsley, who is now in India, from where he has cabled notable dispatches on Gandhi, visited Sumatra while en route to Bombay from Manila.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MEDAN, Sumatra, Aug. 31.—[By Mail.]—The East Indian empire of The Netherlands is neighbor to the Philippine islands, just a step south across the Sulu sea. This island of Sumatra, about the size of California and with the population of Australia, is similar to Mindanao of the Philippines group in physical appearance, agricultural possibilities and basic population of Mohammedan Malays.

The difference is that Sumatra is being developed rapidly from its jungle state, guided by a firm hand and ordered energy from above, while the jewel of the Philippine group is left to languish in the hands of politicians and timid investors, and to be nibbled at by Japan.

The change in the economic atmosphere is noticeable. Rubber is indigenous to the Philippine islands, but it is a negligible industry there, while on Sumatra, under the sturdy Dutch rule, with no talk of independence constantly halting investments, some of the greatest rubber plantations in the world have been planted during the last few years. It is a bad time now for rubber, but the Goodyear company, which has one of the biggest estates here, is looking ahead with assurance and is leasing more land for the days of the new prosperity.

Linked to Main Stret.

Thus Sumatra, a jungle fifty years ago, is today linked by close economic ties with Main street, America, and with the great industrial centers of Europe. It is a link that has two ends, for in 1931 imports, including foodstuffs, textiles, and machinery, reached 68,000,000 guilders (about 37,000,000), while its exports of tobacco, rubber, coffee, oil, copra, and other products came to nearly 165,000,000 guilders (about $66,000,000).

Here is an insight into Holland's economic policy, which has been rather generally regarded as old fashioned exploitation for the benefit of the Dutch. The figures show that 10 per cent of Sumatra's imports come from the United States and only 18 per cent from Holland. Twelve per cent of her exports go to the United States and 16 per cent to Holland. She buys her meats and cheese from Holland, but the butter comes from Australia, which is only a three day journey across the Timor sea. Holland is badly in need of a market for textiles, but there is no bar put up here against Japanese goods, and Japan is getting this trade in increasing measure.

"We cannot force our millions of poor people to pay a higher price just because we need the trade," explained a Dutch editor here.

Despite American altruism in the Philippines, such a policy has not been in effect there, for the tariff forces the Filipinos to buy American shoes, for instance, when they could get shoes cheaper elsewhere. And it certainly is not the policy of the British empire, where the buying power of the British public has just been parceled out to the dominions overseas.

One feels a sense of solidity here. This is the queen's birthday, and flags are flying everywhere, school children marching and Dutch officials making merry with tall stains in the hotel bars. Pony carts and bicycles predominate in the street traffic, which is controlled by a Malay policeman in khaki and rakish straw hat. There are plenty of American automobiles, and occasionally a Chinese coolie with a rickshaw.

The town is so neat and green, with parked squares and great cool acacia trees keeping the walks shady, with railroad station, banks and big office buildings, that it is difficult to realize in how short a time it has taken the place of a village of nipa huts. These breed rats and so the practical Dutch are tearing them down as fast as they can replace them with neat little tile or tin roofed cottages.

Dutch Spread Education.

While the United States is letting its tropical empire go, the Dutch, the English, the French, Italians and Germans are reaching out for greater control. The same is true of China and Japan. Everywhere in this part of the world the Chinese merchant is in the key position. He does not live in a world apart, as the whites do, but mingles with the natives, learns their language, intermarries, and becomes a necessary part of the commercial life of the country. And now the Japanese are crashing the trade barriers, here as in the Philippines.

The Dutch colonial policy has evolved along lines of enlightened humanitarianism. It is giving an increasing measure of education and self-government to the 60,000,000 under its flag in the East Indies. Just now there is fear that too much education has been accorded along the wrong lines, that the chief result is to create a class of ambitious young politicians and agitators, such as have been put in power in the Philippines.

A hundred years from now, they think, the Malays may be ready for self-government. The repercussion of the impending independence in the Philippines is felt here and is not welcomed. Communism has been stamped out with a firm hand, and the leaders sent to penal servitude in New Guinea.

Costs Little to Live.

The standards of living are still very low. It is possible to live on five cents a day. The Sumatran natives do not choose to become plantation workers, clinging to their own little garden patches, and so to develop these miles of rubber forests, these smooth highways cutting through the jungle where tigers once prowled, these fields of tea and tobacco, it has been necessary to bring over Javanese coolies at contract labor at a wage varying from 14 to 18 cents a day in good times. Overtime is two cents an hour.

Municipal laborers in Medan get from 32 to 40 cents a day, the Chinese as the most efficient drawing 56 cents. These wages, however, include free housing, medical attendance, rice at cost, schooling for the children, and some compensation for age and injury.

With rubber selling below cost of production now, even these wages are impossible and every ship takes hundreds of laborers back to Java, where they will have to share the rice of their relatives until better times. With such a standard there is no poverty line, no starvation, and the coolies, herded back to the ships with their women and bundles, look placid and contented. It is all about the same to them. They often get tired of working anyway, go to the native camp, where their old chief is in charge, and live there.

THEY CALL IT "THE WORLD'S FINEST COFFEE"... AND HERE IS THE REASON

Hills Bros' patented Controlled Roasting process roasts in a different way

No burnt coffee, no not-quite-roasted coffee... every berry developed to perfection

GROUND RIGHT TO TASTE RIGHT

No coffee, however good, can be uniform in taste unless uniformly roasted and uniformly ground. Hills Bros.' patented, continuous process — Controlled Roasting — and correct granulation insure this uniformity. Hills Bros.' granulation will give best results by the drip process or any other method.

Do you ever eat peanuts right out of the shell? Ever notice that some of the kernels are scorched to a bitter char, while others are almost raw? It's all a matter of roasting. And it's the same with coffee.

In bulk-roasting, the berries are apt to be overdone or underdone . . . it's so difficult to control big batches. At best, it is only a guess as to how each lot will turn out.

Hills Bros.' patented Controlled Roasting process roasts a little at a time . . . as the coffee flows evenly, continuously through the roasters. Every berry is brought to the peak of perfection! None is underdone nor overdone.

You can detect the difference in this roasting method the instant you sip Hills Bros.! Your taste tells you that you have never known coffee with such pleasant flavor. And you haven't, either! For no other coffee is roasted the same way.

Hills Bros. Coffee is packed in vacuum cans, and can't go stale. The vacuum process of packing coffee is the only method that fully preserves coffee freshness—the air is removed from the can and kept out. It was originated by Hills Bros. over thirty years ago. There is no magic about a vacuum can—it will not make poor coffee good, but it will keep good coffee fresh.

Make some Hills Bros. Coffee in your regular way. Set it before the family, without saying a word. Then listen to them praise your ability as a coffee-maker! Ask for Hills Bros. by name, and look for the Arab trade-mark on the can.

Toys Important in Development of the Children

They Should Be Chosen with Great Care.

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

This is part of a letter which came in a few weeks ago. "This morning I read your article on proper toys for different ages and I know lots of mothers, myself included, who never realized how important this is. I presume it is in part at the bottom of a great number of inferiority complexes. Will you please send me the play and toy booklets?"

This mother has put her finger on an important cause of much trouble with children's behavior while at work and play. She calls it the inferiority complex. I like better just to say the feeling of inferiority or inadequacy.

A friend of mine recently had occasion to go over hundreds of questionnaires submitted by applicants for jobs. The jobs covered a salary range from $20 a week up through the $5,000 a year ones. She was struck with the answer which ran unvaryingly through these questionnaires in response to the question, "What is your principal fault?" This reply was, "Lack of confidence."

Of course, that can have as its origin a hundred causes, but one cause is failure to achieve in those early years when the pattern of life is being made. Toys unsuited to the age, too difficult to be mastered, sports beyond his skill, manual work for which he is too immature can have a subtle effect on a child in the early formative years.

Success in accomplishment, even in so apparently simple a thing as a nest of blocks is important. The sense of adequacy in doing the daily round of motions that a little child has the power to accomplish—tasks just hard enough, but not too hard—can give him a feeling of the ability to meet what life has to offer, and an affirmative attitude toward accomplishment.

A feeling of inadequacy can be due to one of many causes, some of them dating back to childhood, some not. But we can do a great deal to prevent it by making it our business to see that our children are treated by us in a way to foster their belief in themselves. And beginning when they are scarcely more than babies and going on up we can see to it that in the great, earnest business of a child's life which we call play they have a satisfying percentage of successes.

'Cyrano' Will Be Here Week of October 24

Hampden Will Tour in 2 More Plays.

BY CHARLES COLLINS.

Walter Hampden will bring his revival of "Cyrano de Bergerac" to the Apollo theater Monday, Oct. 24, for an engagement of one week. He will be supported by the company that visited the Blackstone theater last spring, with Katherine Warren as Roxanne, John D. Seymour as Christian, Whitford Kane as the pastry cook, and Reynolds Evans as the Comte de Guiche.

The distinguished actor-manager's present tour in Rostand's drama will end in midwinter. After putting the play aside he will start on another tour in "Hamlet" and "Caponsacchi." He may be expected in Chicago in the latter drama, which is based upon Robert Browning's poem, "The Ring and the Book," late next spring.

Ed Wynn in his latest musical show, "The Laugh Parade," will probably follow Mr. Hampden at the Apollo theater. Nov. 6 is an approximate date for the opening performance.

"When Chicago Was Young," a play by Herma Clark and Alice Gerstenberg, will be staged at the Goodman Memorial theater Monday, Nov. 7, for a three weeks' engagement. This work tells a story of the growth of a Chicago family. Its first act takes place in the Tremont house in 1858; its second, in a residence at Wabash avenue and 13th street in 1871; and its third, in the ballroom of the Potter Palmer home in 1893. An epilogue gives a glimpse of modern Chicago as seen from the terrace of the Tavern club.

Miss Clark contributes articles on the social traditions of Chicago to THE SUNDAY TRIBUNE. Miss Gerstenberg has written a number of successful one act plays. The cast for "When Chicago Was Young" is now in rehearsal under the direction of Marie Agnes Foley. It is composed of Little theater and semi-pro players.

The Abbey Theater company sailed from Dublin last Sunday for an American tour, which will begin in New York Oct. 17.

Sir Harry Lauder will begin a new American tour in Montreal next Friday night. The famous singing comedian intends to journey from coast to coast in Canada and the United States.

Claude Rains will replace Earle Larimore in the leading male rôle of "The Good Earth," which the Theater Guild has staged. This dramatization will begin a New York engagement Oct. 17. Mr. Rains' latest vehicle, "The Man Who Reclaimed His Head," has ended its Broadway career after a brief run.

Two Good Art Exhibits Vary in Treatment

BY ELEANOR JEWETT.

Two exhibitions of merit opened this week, one of paintings of Mexico by Clay Kelly in the Marshall Field galleries and the other of water colors and prints by Aaron Bohrod in the studio gallery, Michigan Square building.

Both the painters are Chicagoans. Mr. Kelly has long been known as the director of an excellent school of art on the south side; Aaron Bohrod is a formerly unknown quantity, a young man born on the west side, of Russian-Jewish parentage, and the recipient of a normal art training in the Art institute school plus a year with the Art Students' league in New York, neither of which facts explains in the slightest the peculiar brilliance of his talent.

Clay Kelly is a painter of the finished canvas; Bohrod's water colors are like spurts of sparkles from a free-lance skyrocket. Mr. Kelly presents us with a beautiful conception of Mexico as a land of burros, peons, sunshine, leisure, smiling landscape and rugged mountains, colorful street markets and pleasurable patios.

Mr. Bohrod dashes through Chicago and New York and laughingly, whimsically shows us the park, the streets, the elevated, a hit-and-miss medley of scenes and places of which each is a gem in the beauty of its coloring.

The longer a comparison between the two men is tried the more miserable a failure it proves. They stand at opposite poles in technique and approach. Both have merit; both sincerity; both a keen sense of the value of draftsmanship. Both, again, possess humor, although Bohrod's is the more pungent and the more fluent. From this point on comparison is impertinent and one can only urge a visit to both exhibits and give the promise that in both you will find work of more than average interest.

Boil sugar and water together 5 minutes; add cranberries and boil without stirring (5 minutes is usually sufficient) until all the skins pop open. Remove from the fire when the popping stops and allow the sauce to remain in vessel undisturbed until cool. For a thinner sauce, just bring water and sugar to a boil—then add berries and let them cook until they stop popping.

Paris Coats Lose Belts, but Button High Up on Left Side

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS. — [Special.] — Paris has avoided the waistline question on the coat by dropping belts altogether on most of the winter wraps that are being shown. Beltless coats that predominate in French styles may generally be divided under two silhouettes, the silhouette that is made by a coat which is loose from the shoulders and the silhouette that is molded under the arms. Coats in both these classes usually button up the left side, like the coat shown in our sketch. The practical coat may be loose from the shoulders, but the dressy coat is always molded like the coat in our illustration.

This coat wears its fur collar [in this case a collarette] separate as do a good many of the smartest French coats this season. It has a wide hem of sableized marten sewed on around the bottom.

The coat is made of a smart chamois like woolen in a dove gray color, and it is buttoned up to the neck on the left side with tortoise shell buttons. An important detail are the three quarters length sleeves, which are loose at the bottom. Now that muffs are in style, Paris likes this length of sleeve for dressy wear.

There is a small round shoulder yoke, made by two bias bands, and there is a curved tuck around the bust to suggest that such things as empire waistlines are in style, though the fact isn't stressed.

DO YOU wake up more tired than when you went to bed . . . body unrelaxed . . . brain throbbing . . . legs like logs?

It's probably self-poisoning you're suffering from, brought on by constipation, commonest and most subtle of human ills!

We eat rich foods, lead irregular hours, neglect important body habits.

And as a result our systems cannot throw off their accumulated waste matter regularly. Poisons seep into the blood. We are subject to headaches, skin blemishes, colds. We suffer from bad breath, coated tongue, "that tired feeling."

You can't afford to neglect this condition. If you prize your health, your job, your happiness, you must take some action.

* * *

Now, throughout practically the entire civilized world, leading medical authorities are treating thousands of such cases with astonishing success.

They are prescribing fresh yeast, three times a day . . . a simple, safe food remedy!

Your body is soon able to help itself. Poisons are carried away. Appetite and pep return. Digestion improves. You sleep more soundly . . . wake up refreshed . . . . because self-poisoning is checked!

Why not try it yourself—now? Just eat 3 cakes of Fleischmann's Yeast every day, before meals, or between meals and at bedtime—plain or in water (a third of a glass). You can get Fleischmann's Yeast—rich in vitamins B, G and D—at grocers, restaurants, soda fountains.

T. A. Birch, of New York City, writes: "I used to go home at night completely exhausted. I'd try going to bed early — only to wake up next morning as tired as the night before . . . Then I started yeast. I can't tell you how much better I feel!"

"COME ON, WORLD!"—that's how you wake up in the morning when you've got rid of constipation. (Left) Here's the simple fresh yeast method great doctors advise. Add Fleischmann's Yeast to your diet now!

Critic Praises an 'Important' Book on Slump

"Nobody Starves" Deals with Workers.

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

"Nobody Starves," by Catharine Brody. [Longmans.] Published today.

MUCH has already been said by those who read the manuscript of "Nobody Starves" about its being the first important American novel about the depression. Among those who read it, American realists — like Sinclair Lewis, for instance — recognize in it a work of importance. It is definitely that, and definitely a picture of the depression, but its importance is in its eternal quality of utter fundamental reality more than in the picture it draws of a period. "Nobody Starves" is, to me, a greater "American Tragedy" than Theodore Dreiser's novel of that title. It has more reality, more tenderness, more compassion and less sentimentality than Dreiser's tale. [There will be quarrels about that word sentimentality as applied to Dreiser, but there is something definitely sentimental about his tacit plea for the reader's sympathy toward his hero which is beautifully absent in "Nobody Starves."]

CATHARINE BRODY.

Catharine Brody has not written one sentimental line in "Nobody Starves," has not made one single play for the emotions of her readers, and yet there is something infinitely touching, something heartbreaking, about the story of Molly and Bill Redding.

"Nobody Starves" is the story of a girl who worked in a factory and who married a boy who worked in a factory and their attempt to make a life together. Molly never knew what it was to be worried about money because she never had any, although she always was able somehow to keep herself fed and clothed. Bill had exactly the same feeling about money. It was something that you always seemed to have some of, even if you never had enough. They asked little of life, just a chance to marry and have babies and a little house somewhere and maybe a second hand car to ride around in sometimes.

Neither one of them had ambitions, nor, so far as that goes, ambition. They were not the sort who probed their minds or their hearts. They loved each other without any special demonstration and they trusted each other and life. In the boom days it was easy for an untrained worker to get a factory job and when Bill landed one in Detroit he sent for Molly and they were married and settled down in a furnished room [with kitchen privileges] and life looked rosy to them.

They didn't have enough extra pennies to bear a great deal of watching, but they watched what they had. And then life began to bear down on them. Whenever they got a little bit ahead something always happened to eat up their security for the future. Time and again it happened—fate seemed to be determined that they be annoyingly chastised. No great disasters overtook them. Neither their miseries nor their tragedies were epic. But they were erosive, both of love and of confidence in life.

When the depression began to be an active factor in their lives, when neither one of them could get a job, the erosion had worn off all of the enamel of their spiritual teeth, exposing the nerves which tingled and ached at every slight whiff of air, every breath of either warmth or iciness in their circumstances. They could not bite into life for the pain. And that truly American, but truly universal, tragedy is the theme of "Nobody Starves." Bill and Molly are no different from probably millions of young people who started with high hopes and were worn down by life.

The ultimate tragedy of Molly and Bill is as inevitable as it is surprising. If it is a different ending than the rest of the millions that find themselves economically unfit for life come to, that is because Bill was just by that trifle off the norm, the trifle that made the vista of life clear to him when to others it was veiled. Catharine Brody has made Bill and Molly and their actions inevitable.

The book must be praised also for its picture of everyday life in factories, its factual rendering of the lives of men and women who are never names, only numbers, on a factory pay envelope.

Miss Brody has written with all of the tenderness and the compassion which man may have for man and woman for woman and men and women for each other and with understanding, and yet she has never once, either in the delineation of their emotions or their environment, allowed a line of sentimentality to appear in her epic of the lowly. They are not sentimental about each other, they do not complain, and neither is she sentimental about them nor does she bemoan their lot.

"Nobody Starves" is as real and as inevitable as a sunset or as a storm cloud which blots it out.

Report $7,500 Profit for Latin Quarter Fete

Chicago architects realized a profit of $7,500 from the Latin quarter fête given last Friday, it was announced yesterday by George L. Dickson, chairman of the finance committee. Of this sum, $3,500 has been paid in salaries to needy architects who helped prepare for the fête, Dickson said. The remaining $4,000 will be used in finding work for unemployed architects during the coming winter.

MINUTE MYSTERY CAN YOU SOLVE IT?

BY H. A. RIDLEY

Copyright 1932 By News Syndicate Co. Inc.

Dr. Fordney is professor of criminology at a famous university. His advice is often sought by the police of many cities when confronted with particularly baffling cases. This problem has been taken from his casebook covering hundreds of criminal investigations.

Try your wits on it! It takes but ONE MINUTE to read! Every fact and every clew necessary to its solution are in the story itself—and there is only one answer. How good a detective are you?

THE BODY IN THE CELLAR.

As Sergt. Reynolds flashed his light over Dr. Decker's cellar he stopped and peered intently at the footprints in the heavy dust. Slowly he moved the disc of light along until it focused on the body of a woman. A glance was enough. Moving closer a gleam of reflected light caught his eye. Stooping down he carefuly pulled from the soft pine floor a long, thin dagger standing upright near the body.

. . . . . .

"Well, here I am again," greeted Reynolds the next morning, perching himself on a stool in the professor's laboratory.

"It's about that woman we found in Decker's cellar. The police surgeon says she was murdered about five months ago, undoubtedly with this," tossing the dagger on the table. "Found it clean as a whistle, with no fingerprints, of course. BUT we know it belongs to Decker. He returned and opened his house last night after five months in Europe. He says he discovered the body when he went to the cellar for a bottle of wine. One of the windows down there was jimmied. She's been identified as his former office nurse. Decker says the dagger disappeared a month before he went away, and he's confident she was murdered by her sweetheart, Dr. Jaeger. Jaeger, me eye! He did it himself."

Picking up the knife, Fordney studied it under the microscope a moment and handed it back to Reynolds with a "You're mistaken, sergeant. I don't think Decker's guilty." WHY?

By Mae Tinée.

Good morning!

We have with us at the State-Lake this week a comedy mystery film that is completely nutty and often very funny.

You find, pitted one against the other, a Crooked Circle and the Sphinx club. The latter is composed of amateur criminologists bent on solving crimes of the crime club and bringing their perpetrators to justice. The conviction of a member of the former sets its other limbs in action and the murder of the head of the Sphinx club is all set to occur on a dark night at the marked gentleman's Long Island residence, Melody Mansion.

Now all of the above doesn't sound very funny. But you have not reckoned with the doomed man's housekeeper [Miss Zasu Pitts], and a certain bone-headed motorcycle policeman [Mr. James Gleason]. Once they have made their entrances, there's a grin in every grave, so to speak. Here are two people whose buffoonery often crashes the gates of real humor—not alone in this movie but in every production brightened by their respective presences.

Events of surprising nature trip over each other's heels in that lonely Long Island house, and you're pretty good if you know who's who and what's what before the director decides to take you into his confidence.

The acting is commendable throughout. So are sets, scenery, direction and photography. Dialogue is bia in spots, but pretty perky in the main. Ralph Spence who used to write such swell subtitles for silent pictures is responsible for the story.

See you tomorrow.

Shoppers Rush to Get Choice of New Clothes

And Real Rewards Await the Busy Buyer.

BY RHEA SEEGER.

JUDGING by all the bustle and chatter and commotion in all the shops in town, the various female wardrobes must be wearing out simultaneously . . . anyway, the shoppers are all out in full force. And they haven't decided to shop in vain . . . there probably are more new clothes and hats and bags and costume accessories in the smart shops than there have been in two or three unhappy spending seasons.

You will see new dresses with the full sleeves that are something to gasp over . . . new coats with the same kind of balloon minded sleeves that the dress sleeves can slide into with the same speed and ease as a dirigible slides into a hangar.

You will see fur trimmed coats that are utterly breath taking and eye filling . . . coats that are fur trimmed with a decided degree of picturesqueness . . . for instance, lovely almond green wool coats that hug you tight around the ribs and slender waistline and swoop down toward your ankles in a long flaring silhouette . . . these foundation lines are perfect, but the trimming is inspired. Instead of the regulation sort of idea about sleeve bands and swirled collar, these coats are distinctive with a run around band motif . . . a mink band around the shirtline, a band around each sleeve and a band of mink fur to match the other bands, wound and tied around the neckline in a single knot affair with the two ends sticking out northwest by southeast.

This band idea is used with enormous chic on a pumice gray coat with an elbow length cape . . . lovely, shaded gray Persian lamb is used to band the cape twice, the wrists once, and around the edge of the skirt twice. You'll look like a demure but devastating Victorian charmer when you wear it and enjoy it, no doubt, much more than any coat you have owned in a long time.

Some coats have lavish sleeve treatments . . . puffed effects that perk high up on the shoulder, others have entire sleeves of fur, the skins worked exquisitely in a diagonal line . . . and some very new models have a sleeveless jacket effect of fur as a contrast for the woolen fabric of the coat.

Flat furs are used quite a bit more than long haired furs . . . the styles seem to need the supple fabriclike properties of flat furs to better contrast the woolen materials . . . but still there are so many long furred coats to choose from that the undecisive shopper will hesitate before the final purchase.

One shop is bragging, quite pardonably, about the new angora sweaters . . . glorified affairs, incredibly soft and thin, but about the coziest, warmest things anybody ever wore. And this season sweaters are fashioned with as much skill and intricate artistry as any handmade blouse of silk or satin . . . and what a joy they are going to be to the gal who gets chills . . . or, for that matter, any gal who demands something new and different, whether it's warm or cold.

Fuzzy warm angora yarn is used for the newest of these blouses and you should see the sleeves . . . puffed, full things exactly like the big balloon affairs of the current attractive coats, suits and dresses.

Sweaters still continue their striped streaky way . . . the more vivid models are particularly effective with dark suits and skirts and swagger suede coats of wine, forest green, copper and deep brown.

Children's Benefit League Makes Plans for Tag Day Monday

Arrangements for the annual tag day of the Children's Benefit league next Monday were made yesterday at a meeting of officers and members at the Auditorium hotel. The league is composed of fifty charities.

According to Mrs. Wilfred Reynolds, president of the league, the goal for collections has been set at $125,000. She pointed out that more than 135,000 children in Chicago and its suburbs are in need and must receive help during the coming winter. Demands for children's aid will be larger than ever, she said.

Although fifty charities are combined for the raising of funds, each organization is responsible for the spending of the money raised by its own workers. None of the league officers receives a salary.

A Job a Day

Every little improvement we make in our home right now helps us—and the other fellow, too.

Is your basement in the doldrums? Try cheering it up with whitewash on the walls and paint on the partitions. Days are coming when the family moves indoors, and if the children can be sent to the basement to play there's work saved for mother—a lot of it. To be sure the floor may have to be painted and more lighting fixtures installed before you are through. But you will have made a beginning at least towards that long desired recreation room. LOUISE BARGELT.

De La Salle Alumni.

The De La Salle Alumni association will hold its annual banquet at the Midland club on Nov. 17.

Now's a Good Time to Hear 'Pinafore' Again

Club Theater Performance Gets High Rating.

H. M. S. PINAFORE.

THE CAST.

Josephine	Lillian Glaser Hopper
Little Buttercup	Esther Muenstermann
Hebe	Dorothy Shure
Sir Joseph Porter, K. C. B.	George Lane
Capt. Corcoran	Raymund Koch
Ralph Rackstraw	Edwin Kemp
Dick Deadeye	Charles Lutton
Boatswain	Al Bryant
Boatswain's Mate	Waldimar Schroeder
Conductor	Le Roy Weisel

BY EDWARD MOORE.

Here is one of the early attractions of the season, and one so pleasant that it deserves good treatment from the public. It is starting modestly, but even Gilbert would be willing to admit that a modest demeanor sometimes conceals a heart of gold. Wherefore this particular heart should be encouraged to keep on beating for a long time to come.

As a singing company the organization deserves a high rating. They treat both Sullivan's music and Gilbert's verse with high respect, and in the Gilbert and Sullivan operettas both the words and music take equally important ratings as sources of delight. Incidentally this was one of the few performances within memory where practically every word came across from chorus as well as principals. Even Mr. Koch, struggling against a cold, made every word count.

Some of the principals are professionals and show the training. Mrs. Hopper, the wife of De Wolf Hopper, who is now playing at another Chicago theater, is one, pretty, vivacious, making Josephine a considerably more importat person of the stage than just the soprano of the cast.

Some of the others have had less stage experience, but they frequently manage to conceal the fact. Occasionally they miss some of the Savoy traditions, but there is not a moment when their liveliness and good singing did not keep the performance moving and entertaining.

One of the real traditions well observed came last night when Mr. Bryant sang "He Is an Englishman." It was a high spot in the performance and it stirred up the loudest applause of the evening. Not that the others suffered. Mr. Kemp's singing, Mr. Lane's suave comedy, Mr. Lutton's "triangularity," a highly lyric set of choristers, all came in for their share.

Miss Brumback Is Engaged to John P. Porter

Third Romance in Family in Brief Time.

BY JUDITH CASS.

THE three Porter brothers certainly wasted no time in all becoming engaged as soon as one decided to join the ranks of benedicts, for the middle one, Sartell Prentice, was married just last week to Elinor Durbin; the eldest, Henry Homes Jr., is to be married to Mary Kinney of Taylorville on Friday of this week and today we are making known the engagement of the youngest, John Pierrepont, to a Kansas City girl.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Christy Shearon of Kansas City, Mo., and Swampscott, Mass., are announcing the engagement of their cousin, Mary Alexander Brumback, to John Pierrepont Porter. No plans for the wedding have been made, so Mr. Porter tells me. Mr. Porter is the son of Mrs. Prentice Porter of Manchester, Vt., and Henry Homes Porter of 1520 State parkway and Lake Geneva. John was best man for his brother at the Durbin-Porter wedding on Sept. 27, and he is to be best man for his other brother, Henry Jr., when he is married to Miss Kinney on Friday.

The Kinney-Porter wedding is to take place at 8:30 o'clock Friday evening at the residence of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Kinney of 216 East Franklin street, Taylorville. Only the relatives and a few intimate friends will witness the ceremony which will be performed by the Rev. Theodore C. Hume of Chicago. The bride will have no attendants.

Plan Eastern Honeymoon.

Mr. Porter and his bride will have a two months' honeymoon in the east, after which they will return to Chicago to live, but they have not decided on a location. Neither have the Sartell Prentice Porters, who have gone to England and Ireland on a two months' wedding trip.

Among the Chicagoans who will be going to Taylorville for the bridal dinner Mr. and Mrs. Kinney will give tomorrow night, and the wedding, are Mr. Porter's mother and sister, Mrs. Prentice Porter and Miss Mary Porter; his cousins, Ralph Isham and Mr. and Mrs. Henry P. Isham and Rockefeller Prentice; Miss Kinney's aunt and uncle, the Charles Daniel Freys and their daughters, Betty and Barbara, and Betty's fiancé, Gail Borden. Mr. and Mrs. Lucius Hill of Boston [Helen Isham] also are to be in Taylorville for the wedding.

John Porter has been an aviation enthusiast ever since he was a young boy—he isn't very old now, being in his early twenties—and he is one of the most ardent and daring flyers in the city. He crashed his plane in landing at the Palwaukee field this summer but got another one as soon as possible, so it is possible that he and Ralph Isham, his companion on many air trips, will fly to Taylorville today or tomorrow. John prepared at the Santa Barbara school at Carpenteria, Cal., but did not go to college. Mrs. Porter and Miss Porter, who came on from Manchester for the Durbin-Porter nuptials and are remaining for the Kinney-Porter ones, plan to be here until some time early in November.

Debut Party for Susan Badgerow.

The Christmas holidays certainly are going to be one grand round of pleasure for the debutantes, for almost every one of the sweet young things who are being introduced formally to society this season is to have some sort of party then. The latest to announce that a holiday party will mark her debut is Miss Susan Badgerow, daughter of the Harve G. Badgerows of Winnetka.

The date is not set but Mrs. Badgerow told me yesterday that she has decided to introduce Susan at a young people's party some time during the holidays. Miss Badgerow was at school in Paris last year and before that went to Miss Wright's at Bryn Mawr.

A holiday debutante party for which the date has just been set is one to be given by Mr. and Mrs. Thomas George Lee to introduce their daughter, Martha. It is to be a dance on Thursday, Dec. 29. Mr. and Mrs. Lee and their daughter have come in from their summer place in Highland Park and are at the Ambassador hotel for the winter, as usual.

Among the debutantes who already have promised to serve as mannequins at the St. Luke's fashion show on Oct. 25 are the Misses Jean Schweppe, Mary Reed, Mary Senior, Honore White, Betty Brawley, Eleanor Page, Lydia Swift, Ethel Dixon and Eleanor Litsinger. Practically all the debs will take part in the show in one way or another.

Among the women who will model jewelry are Mrs. Walter McLallen, Mrs. Russell Kelley, Mrs. Phelps Kelley, Mrs. Louis C. Sudler, Mrs. Robert McCormick Adams, Mrs. Lawrence Williams, Miss Florence Carr, Mrs. Howard Linn, Mrs. William H. Mitchell, Mrs. James W. Thorne, and Mrs. Clifford Rodman.

And—this isn't definite, just a hope—the committee is trying to get Mrs. William J. Chalmers, Mrs. Patrick A. Valentine and a few of the "grande dames" to give a fashion show of their own in the gowns they wore thirty or forty years ago.

Models for Show at Winnetka.

Modeling in the fashion show to be given in Winnetka on Saturday by the Winnetka board of the Northwestern University settlement will be the Misses Barbara Ann Sargent, Virginia Ashcraft, Beatrice Lindsay, Mira Lee Benoist, Evelyn Bouscaren, Virginia Lamson, Ann McCullough, Lucie Jacobs, Lelia Withers, Eleanor Janney, Margaret Hamill, Charlotte McCullough, Honore White, Jeanne Street, Kathryn Street and Mrs. Gerald E. Horton, Mrs. Stanley Morrill, Mrs. John Dern, Mrs. Ashley Gerhard, Mrs.

Few Guests

One of the simplest and yet most picturesque of the fashionable weddings ever held in Holy Name cathedral was solemnized at 4:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon when Miss Helen Rend, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph P. Rend, became the bride of John Vaughan Clarke III., son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Bertram Clarke of Pasadena.

White asters, lilies and palms enhanced the beauty of the white marble altar. The tapers on the altar were not lit, but the myriad lights used for the most solemn ceremonies at Holy Name blazed overhead from the high vaulted ceiling. There were no flowers on the pews of the center aisle, but wide white satin ribbons were stretched down the aisle just before the entry of the wedding party.

The bride, who is noted for the beauty of her clear skin, dark eyes and black hair, wore an ivory satin gown with a square cut neckline, puffed sleeves shirred from the shoulder to the elbow and tapering at the wrist, and a long train which fell from the waistline as part of the skirt. A snug cap and band of duchesse lace bound the tulle veil which fell over her shoulders on either side of a panel of duchesse lace. The bridal bouquet was a shower cluster of lilies of the valley and gardenias.

Miss Mary Rend, who was her sister's only attendant, wore a gown of wine red velvet with elbow length sleeves that rippled into a waist length cape in back. Her small turban was fashioned of the same shade of velvet and draped with a short nose veil. She carried a spray of orchids. The bride's mother wore a black velvet gown and hat and an orchid corsage.

Alfred D. Hill of Wellesley, Mass., served as best man for Mr. Clarke. The ushers included the bridegroom's brother-in-law, Isaac Sprague of Boston; his cousins, Hyde Gillette and Hempstead Washburne; Robert Glenn and Howard Whitehouse.

Only a small number of guests attended the ceremony, which was performed by the Rev. Father Joseph Morrison, and the reception that followed at the Casino. Among those present were the bride's sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Wheelock; her aunts, Mrs. Theron Butler Miller of Cleveland and Mrs. Charles E. Mitchell of New York; her cousin, Miss Rita Rend Mitchell; Mr. and Mrs. Edward A. Cudahy, Mr. and Mrs. Vaughan C. Spalding, Mr. and Mrs. Stuart Logan, Princess Galitsine [Josephine Dennehy], Miss Eleanor Dennehy, Mrs. Jacob Baur, Miss Dorothy Schmidt, Mrs. John Coleman Jr., Mrs. E. Harris Brewer, Miss Louise Brewer, Mrs. Kenneth Carpenter, Mr. and Mrs. Walter P. Paepcke, Mrs. Hyde Gillette, and Mrs. Kinney Smith.

College Club.

The Chicago College club is having open house this afternoon from 3 to 5 o'clock for new officers and directors. Mrs. E. O. Griffenhagen and Mrs. H. W. Sanborn will act as hostesses. Tonight there is to be a buffet supper, followed by keno and bridge.

WOTTA LIFE! WOTTA LIFE!

The Murder of Caroline Bundy

By ALICE CAMPBELL.

SYNOPSIS.

Neil Starkey, American biographer, is engaged by Caroline Bundy to compile the life and letters of her late father, a famous English biologist. Miss Bundy is in poor health and acting peculiarly. She has hired a photographer, named Tilbury, as bailiff, and he and his wife, an ill-bred couple, hold a strange influence over her. Natasha Andreyev Caroline's half Russian niece, acts as her aunt's secretary. She detests the Tilburys. Caroline tells Neil that her father, a man of science, was also a mystic. Caroline and the Tilburys hold nightly meetings in the library. Giles Gisborne, vicar of a nearby parish, and his sister Rachel are friends of Neil's. Neil is attracted to Natasha, but is baffled by her odd behavior. She is giving money to a man she meets secretly. Caroline promises to visit Emily Braselton, an old friend, in Paris. Natasha drives her to London. Natasha returns a few days later and tells Neil that her aunt gave her a pearl necklace, which she sold, being in great need of money. She receives a wire which Caroline sent from London asking her to look for an alligator bag left in the car. The bag is not found. Caroline doesn't reach Paris. Emily wires to learn what has happened to her.

INSTALLMENT XXI.

A GRIP OF FEAR.

Natasha appeared in the doorway, so quietly that no one noticed she was there till her strained voice broke the stillness.

"I'm afraid the flat's empty, Mr. Gisborne. Miss Braselton has only a daily woman who comes when she's wanted."

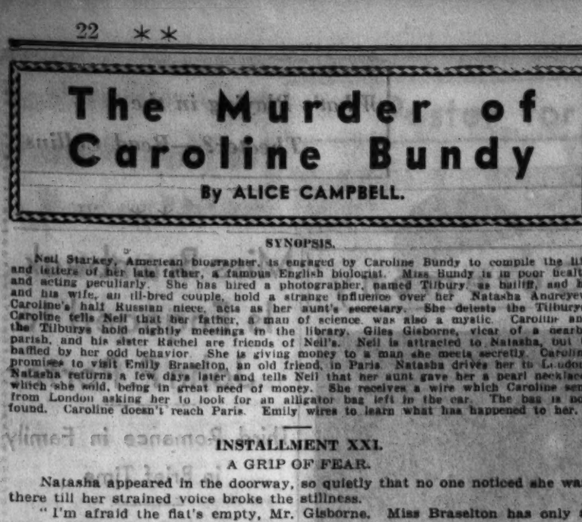
Gisborne turned from the instrument to say: "But there must have been some one there on Friday, surely?"

"O, yes! Miss Braselton arranged for the woman to stay the night."

At last the bell rang, and the operator informed Gisborne she could get no reply from the Kensington number.

"You're right—there's no one there. I'll get on to the porter. He must know whether Miss Bundy came to the flat."

Another tense pause, filled by low voiced discussion. Neil noticed that Tilbury kept his eyes glued on Natasha, who never once looked in his direction.



As the girl took back the form and gave it into his hand she shuddered slightly as though at the touch of some loathsome insect.

"If she'd been taken to a hospital or nursing home," said the vicar, "we ought to have heard long ago. And yet something of the sort must be the explanation. Supposing she met with an accident, there'd be no difficulty, would there, about identifying her?"

"She had her check book with her, besides visiting cards, and, I think, letters," replied Natasha, coming out of a dazed reverie. "No passport, of course, because Miss Braselton took that to get a visa and left it at the flat."

"And you can't say positively that she ever reached the flat?"

"How can I? She certainly intended to go there, in time for dinner. There's this wire I got just now. You don't know about that, do you? It was sent to the garage. I'm afraid it won't help us much, but anyhow here it is." She handed the torn brown envelope to the vicar, who took it eagerly.

"Alligator bag left in car . . . Was that the bag with her money and so on in it—or her dressing bag?"

"Neither. We deposited the dressing bag at the flat on our way into town, and she had a black shopping bag as well. This alligator one was extra. I don't know what she kept in it, but she always carried it with her."

No one had observed the sudden stiffening of the bailiff till his husky whisper made itself heard. "A wire from Miss Bundy, miss! Might I be allowed to look at it?"

As the girl took back the form and gave it into his hand she shuddered slightly as though at the touch of some loathsome insect. Neil saw this, and saw, also, the little man's eyes bulge as they devoured the script.

"It was sent from the main Victoria postoffice, which is just behind the Army and Navy stores," remarked Gisborne, frowning. "Now, what was she doing in that neighborhood? The time marked on it is five-thirty."

Tilbury was trying to attract their attention. "I've just thought of another thing, sir. Along about five-thirty we 'ad a telephone call from Miss Bundy. She tried to tell us something, but the connection was so bad we couldn't neither of us make out what she said. I heard her say she'd got up to town all right, and then I caught the words 'car,' and 'garage' and 'forgotten.' She kept repeating it over and over, but though I called the wife to the phone, she couldn't understand any better than me. Maybe this 'ere explains it."

"Why, of course, it explains it! She wanted to let you know she had left her bag in the car. Why on earth didn't you mention this at once?"

"Well, sir——" An embarrassed look came over the pale, twitching features. "There seemed something a bit odd about the whole thing. Fact is, we weren't quite satisfied it was Miss Bundy speaking. Didn't sound like 'er voice."

"Didn't sound like her voice! What on earth do you mean?"

"I can't say, sir. It was certainly a lady, but it was so sort of breathless and far away . . . anyhow, both of us said afterwards we didn't feel sure it was the mistress herself. It worried us a bit. I'd been taken so bad I was obliged to go to bed abaht then, but Con—that's Mrs. Tilbury—went down to Glastonbury twice to ask if the car had come back. We thought—that is, we didn't know——" He coughed, and turned to Natasha with nervous eagerness. "You did find the bag, I suppose? Got it now, 'aven't you, miss?"

"No. It was not in the car," she returned to the room at large.

"O!" There was an exhaled breath, followed by a pause. "Then p'raps she was mistaken. I mean to say, maybe she didn't——"

"But what has the bag got to do with her disappearance?" interrupted the vicar. "My idea is she's had some sudden attack, that she's been taken off to a hospital, and that whatever messages have been sent have miscarried."

"I think so, too," said Natasha slowly. "Though I shouldn't wonder if losing her bag hadn't something to do with it. She's very easily upset these days."

At this moment the operator called through to say that the connection with Blessington Mansions had been established. Long before the vicar had finished speaking it was plain he had learned nothing useful.

"The porter declares she didn't turn up at all, though Emily Braselton's maid waited, had dinner prepared and stayed the night. What's the best move now? It will take all night to get on to the various hospitals. The only sensible thing I can think of is to ring up Scotland Yard and let them make inquiries."

The words "Scotland Yard" struck a chill to all present. Only the trembling guest, however, gave utterance to his thoughts.

"You know best, sir—but, O, I can't bear to think as 'ow anything serious 'as 'appened. Miss Bundy 'as been a rare good friend to the wife and me." His voice broke.

Gisborne rounded on him with kindly exasperation. "There, there. Don't go looking for trouble! Why, even now there may be a wire at home waiting for you. Better hurry back and find out."

"Right, sir, I will. And you'll let us know, won't you, if you hear anything?"

When the door had closed behind him, Rachael said: "How terribly distressed he looks! Why, he's all broken up!"

"Very naturally, too," snapped her brother. "If any fatal accident has overtaken Carrie, he won't find another soft berth in a hurry, and well he knows it." He turned to Natasha with a puzzled expression. "Why, in heaven's name, did Carrie dismiss you like that? Any particular reason?"

She stared at him absently. "Not that I know of. I did certainly imagine she rather wanted to get rid of me."

"Any quarrel between you?"

"No, of course not. She seemed very much absorbed, and—and exalted, if you know what I mean. She's been like that a lot recently."

Now was the moment when Neil would have expected her to mention the pearls, but to his surprise she did nothing of the kind.

"H'm! I confess I've often wondered if she wasn't going off the handle a bit, and this all tends to confirm my fear. Starkey, how did she strike you the last few days before she left home?"

"Exactly as Miss Andreyev says—keyed up, elated, but certainly not irrational."

Until long after midnight they sat at the telephone, sending the necessary messages, to put the machinery of investigation in motion, and hoping for some reply to come through. None did, however, and with the assurance that Scotland Yard would do everything possible, they had to be content.

By morning the first definite bulletins began to filter through. No trace whatever of the missing woman had come to light, and to make matters more baffling it was now known that she had not gone into the London library after all. Natasha stuck to her statement of having set her aunt down barely a dozen yards from the door, the long line of waiting motors making it impossible to drive up to the building itself. She had then driven off quickly without looking back, confident that the old lady was about to carry out her intention. Why she had not done so remained a deep mystery. The vicarage household suddenly felt itself in a grip of fear.

Albert C. Goodrich, Mrs. Horton Conrad and Mrs. Turner Biddle.

The Arts club rooms will be opened for the season with a tea this afternoon from 4 until 6 o'clock. Mrs. Potter Palmer, who is to serve again this year as chairman of the reception committee, is returning today with Mr. Palmer from New York, in time for the tea. They went east about 10 days ago with Mr. and Mrs. Oakleigh Lewis Thorne [Bertha Palmer] and with Mrs. Palmer's mother, Mrs. Herman H. Kohlsaat, who sailed last Saturday for Rome.

Mr. and Mrs. Potter Palmer III, returned to Chicago a week ago and are now getting their new apartment at 1260 Astor street settled for the winter.

The faculty and the senior class of the University School for Girls will give a tea tomorrow afternoon for Miss Elizabeth Perkins in recognition of her high scholastic honors. Miss Perkins has just returned from the University of London, where she studied last year on a fellowship awarded after having maintained the highest average during her four years at Vassar. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Farrington Perkins.

Mrs. Charles F. Glore of Lake Forest has gone east to put her daughter, Frances, in school at Farmington. Frances went to the Chateau Brillantmont in Lausanne, Switzerland, last year.

Mrs. Robert Gray Peck and her niece, Laura Moyer, have returned from Glen Lake, Mich., and have opened their apartment at 1244 Stone street.

The Ross J. Beattys are going to remain at Halycon hall, their Highland Park residence, for the winter instead of coming in to town to their apartment at 999 Lake Shore drive. Miss Veronese Beatty has a studio on the third floor of Halycon hall, where she will continue her work in sculpture.

Mr. and Mrs. Edwin L. Lobdell of 2716 Prairie avenue have left for a fortnight's motor trip to Montreal, Quebec, and New York.

Mrs. John McKinlay, Mr. and Mrs. David M. Yates, and Mr. and Mrs. C. W. McGuire are leaving Friday to join Mr. McKinlay at the Virginia Hot Springs for a brief vacation.

The Knollwood riders have been invited by Mr. and Mrs. William Bartholomay Jr. to be their guests for supper and dancing Saturday evening, Oct. 15, at Marellbar farm. Nonriding husbands and wives also are invited. The riders will leave the club stables at 4:30 o'clock and the return trip will be made by moonlight. Hiding clothes of "rube outfits" will be in order for ladies and men.

The South Shore Country club announces that, due to the special buffet dinners on Thursday nights, dancing will be on Thursdays instead of Wednesdays after this. The golf season at the club will end on Saturday with the annual goodfellowship day.

Hot Muffins Can Make Breakfast a Perfect Meal

Cereals, Fruits, and Nuts Enhance Appeal.

BY MARY MEADE.

These snappy October nights and mornings there's no worry about coquetting with blase appetites—the big idea is even half filling the voracious family which bolts for the dining table the minute books, hats, golf clubs, and like nonessentials are ditched. Breakfasts, especially, are really looking up. Whereas once we could squeeze them out of oranges, milk bottles, and a cereal box or two, now we are being bombarded with demands for husky man sized meals that will fill out the void until some far distant lunch can be enjoyed. And, as always, the gastronomical star on the fall breakfast scene, found most often playing opposite much golden butter and slathers of home made jam, is the muffin—round, jolly purveyor of a thousand luscious flavors and soul-satisfying foods.

Just for instance, there are spanking hot honey muffins secreting the crispest of crunchy nuts in piping insides. They're simply devastating when brought forth on a chilly morning flanked with bursting frankfurters, big bowls of fruit, and hot, tangy cups of coffee.

Once started there's no turning back. Whole wheat, graham, corn, and rye appearing solo or in combination, act as the foil for an endless parade of glorifications. Fruit—dates, figs, raisins, currants, blueberries, raspberries, bananas, oranges, pineapple, candied fruit peel—they've all make their muffin debut at triumphant fall breakfasts and win rounds of applause. Three-fourths of a cup of the dry fruits may be added to the flour in your best plain muffin recipe, stirred in well, and then the other ingredients mixed in quickly. The same amount of mashed banana may be beaten in for banana muffins just before turning the batter into the pans. Blueberries, if canned, should be drained and stirred in last for blueberry muffins.

Or, some morning, spring apple muffins. Simply cut the apples in thin slices—enough to make three-fourths of a cup—and add with one-half teaspoon of cinnamon and four tablespoons sugar to the original recipe.

Peanut butter muffins and honey-bran ones are two more masterpieces from the muffin tins. For the first, simply substitute peanut butter for the amount of fat called for. This should not exceed three tablespoons. The second number—honey-bran muffins—calls for a substitution of bran for half the required flour and the addition of one tablespoon of strained honey.

But lest you haven't a muffin recipe on tap that just appeals, say, for application the first thing tomorrow morning, accept these two taste ticklers with the cook's best wishes:

GRAHAM FIG MUFFINS.

¼ cup sugar
¼ cup butter
1 cup graham flour
1 cup white flour
2 eggs, well beaten
2-3 cups milk
4 teps. baking powder
2-3 cups chopped figs
½ tsp. salt

Sift the baking powder, sugar, and salt with the white flour and combine with the graham. Combine the beaten eggs, milk, and melted fat and stir into the dry ingredients quickly. Do not attempt to attain a smooth batter. Now dump the chopped figs and blend speedily through the mixture. Turn into buttered muffin pans and bake in a hot oven [450 degrees F.] for fifteen minutes.

CHEESE BREAKFAST MUFFINS.

1¾ cups flour
2 teps. baking powder
1 tbsp. butter
2 tbsps. grated American cheese
½ tsp. salt
¼ cup sugar
1 well beaten egg
¾ cup milk

Sift the dry ingredients twice. Blend the egg and milk and add to the flour, beating only until well mixed. Stir in the melted fat and the grated cheese and turn into greased muffin pans. Bake in a hot oven [450 degrees F.] fifteen to twenty minutes, depending on the size of the muffin.

Young Actress Tells How to Apply Rouge

Smile While Doing It, Is Advice.

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

Sylvia Field, the young and charming actress, offered a rouge hint recently at a fashion conference. She learned it from one of the clever theatrical managers. The suggestion is to smile at yourself in the mirror and before the smile disappears slop the rouge on the fattest part of the cheek. According to Miss Field this promises a natural effect in makeup.

Instead of saying "slap" it on, I should have said dab it on and not all in one large dab, either. Three small dabs, a bit apart, are better manipulated than one large dab. We're talking, of course, of paste rouge, and cosmetic application before you leave home. The compact rouge is the handiest for freshening up when away from home.

However, the paste or liquid may see you through a shopping day or tea-ing afternoon without need of renewal if you make a rite of the make up job. Better have a bit of foundation cream on before the rouge is placed. Just enough to make the rouge slide easily over the surface. A good cold cream will do as well, really.

And if the skin is no longer in its first fresh bloom, be sure to lubricate it before the rouge touches are applied.

Another hint Miss Field offers as a reminder, rather than a new suggestion, is to consider the light and the occasion when applying rouge. Don't make up by electric light for daytime. Get as close to the light of day as you can with your hand mirror for street makeup. This is the way to keep from looking the painted woman on the street.

SENATORS FIRE MANAGER WALTER JOHNSON

WILDCATS RELY ON SPEED FOR MICHIGAN GAME

Rain Fails to Slow Practice.

Rain and a soggy practice field failed to prevent Northwestern's football team from getting in its daily workout yesterday in preparation for the Michigan game at Ann Arbor Saturday.

CLIFF KINDER.

Practice was confined to rehearsing formations and plays which will be used against the Wolverines. A freshman team, using Michigan plays also dummy scrimmaged the varsity at length.

There isn't much doubt about the Wildcats' starting lineup, judging from the way the boys have been running in practice this week. Capt. Pug Rentner and Jakie Sullivan are fixtures at the half back assignments, Ollie Olson is firmly settled at full back, and George Potter seems a certain starter at quarter back.

Whalen May Break In.

The line will consist of Fencl and Manske at the ends, Gonya and Riley tackles, Dilley and Kinder guards, and Weidin center. A change may be effected at one of the guard positions, where Kinder and Whalen are putting up a struggle for the job. Since Kinder started against Missouri and played a large portion of the game it is likely that he will be included in the starting lineup against Michigan.

This combination is one of the lightest to represent Northwestern for several years. Bill Riley's 230 pounds helps to bring the average up to a respectable figure. Gonya is the only other lineman weighing more than 190 pounds.

With a lighter team in the field the Wildcats can be expected to resort to a more open game than the power attack which featured their offensive efforts last year. Rentner, Sullivan, Leeper, and Lind are the Wildcat backs who will be counted on to carry the ball in the battle of speed at Ann Arbor Saturday.

Olson, Augustson Supply Power.

But if a bit of plunging is required Coach Dick Hanley has a couple of boys who can turn in a neat job. Against Missouri Ollie Olson and Roy Augustson demonstrated they can pile up yardage via the bucking route. Olson's chief bid for fame, of course, is his kicking, but against Missouri he picked up 63 yards in 21 attempts.

Augustson, who hails from Homewood, Ill., was a member of the B team last year, but last Saturday he demonstrated that he is worthy of varsity consideration. Twice he plunged for touchdowns. On his last attempt he hit the line for 12 yards.

The Wildcat party of 35 players, together with coaches and trainers, will leave over the Wabash tomorrow night for Detroit, where headquarters will be established at the Leland hotel. The team will work out Friday on the University of Detroit football field.

Tomorrow noon the Northwestern and Michigan Alumni clubs of Chicago will meet at a luncheon at the Hotel Sherman.

CURB MICHIGAN EGO

Ann Arbor, Mich., Oct. 4.—[Special.]—The Michigan coaching staff had to remove ego that has cropped up in the squad before the Wolverines got to work in an offensive drill against the "B" team and a defensive workout against a team of freshmen today. The apparent overconfidence seemed to result from the back slapping that followed the beating given Michigan State.

Plays that were kept from the eyes of Northwestern scouts last Saturday were run through on offense and clicked well. When it came to a defense against the yearlings, however, the regulars had difficulty stopping the power plays used by Northwestern, which will be Michigan's foe in the Big Ten football race opening Saturday.

A few new faces were in the regular line, Ward spending most of the afternoon at end, Cantrill at right guard, and Ford at center. Hildebrand was back in the thick of things at tackle, but Wistert remained out of uniform.

Scrimmage against the freshmen was scheduled, but rain prevented the squad's moving out of the fieldhouse. This plan will be carried out tomorrow if weather permits.

MICHIGAN NINE ARRIVES IN U. S. AFTER JAPAN TRIP

Seattle, Wash., Oct. 4.—(AP)—The University of Michigan baseball squad of fourteen players under the leadership of Coach Ray Fisher arrived today after a two months invasion of Japanese baseball fields.

The Wolverines were guests at a banquet tonight of the University of Michigan Alumni association. The team left later for Ann Arbor, Mich.

"We had a wonderful trip and won 10 out of 14 games played," said Coach Fisher. He declared that Japanese outfielders played in "little less than big league style."

Operation Fatal to Lee, Pueblo Baseball Magnate

UBL'S CONDITION IS UNCHANGED; DOCTORS HOPEFUL

View Delay of Crisis as a Sign of Gain.

Minneapolis, Minn., Oct. 4.—[Special.]—The condition of Myron Ubl, University of Minnesota quarter back, was unchanged late today, a fact which specialists interpreted as being equivalent to a gain in his fight against illness and infection.

A formal bulletin issued at 3 o'clock from the University hospital, where relatives and friends watched his fate, declared Ubl's stubborn resistance offered the greatest hope.

"His condition still remains the same," the bulletin said. "The fact that he is holding his own in his fight against infection is a point in his favor. His condition still is critical."

Crisler Cheers Star.

"Here's hoping for you, My," Crisler's message read. "Keep up the fighting spirit of last year's team."

Ubl's parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Ubl, remained at the bedside throughout the night and day. Only two other visitors were admitted to his room today.

Interest in the star's plight has been so widespread that attending physicians decided to issue bulletins regularly until his condition has taken a definite turn. A bulletin this morning said Ubl's "heart action remains good and the abcess is draining well. His response to treatment can be considered satisfactory."

Loss Cripples Gophers.

Ubl indicated a change for the better last night, when he began to breathe easier. It had been feared yesterday that death was near when he began to sink after an operation to separate the sternum and allow drainage of fluid which had collected on his chest. Complications, including pneumonia, developed afted Ubl suffered a fracture of the sternum in practice two weeks ago.

Ubl's loss will be seriously felt by the Gophers. A sturdy built youth, he was one of the most gifted players on Coach Bernie Bierman's squad. He weighs 178 pounds and is six feet tall. He was highly regarded for his forward passing.

Upon this ability Bierman had intended to build much of Minnesota's attack. Ubl, 21 years old, won his letter as a sophomore last year, fulfilling all the promise he had shown as a freshman.

PURDUE DRILLS IN MUD

Lafayette, Ind., Oct. 4.—[Special.]—Purdue received its first taste of Minnesota's power attack here this afternoon when the varsity waded through a dummy scrimmage, in which the freshmen emulated the Gophers. A heavy rain turned the practice field into a quagmire, making the actual scrimmage that had been planned out of the question.

However, Coach Noble Kizer and his assistants put in an effective afternoon pointing out the details of the defense that Purdue hopes will stop the powerful smashes of Manders, Lund, Hass, et al. Kizer hopes to get in an effective scrimmage session tomorrow afternoon and a final polishing off drill Thursday before the squad leaves for Minneapolis. The same team that started against Kansas State is expected to initiate the game. Dutch Fehring, tackle, and Doxie Moore, right half back, are still on the hospital list.

Kizer this morning sent a telegram to Bernie Bierman, Minnesota coach, on behalf of the Purdue squad and coaches expressing sympathy over Myron Uhl's illness and hope for his complete recovery.

In the WAKE of the NEWS

NO MORE "WHISPERING."

BIG Ten sportsmanship is about to receive stimulus from an organization to be formed in Chicago of alumni from all conference colleges. While present plans call for it to be entirely informal in character, it might become an important factor in intercollegiate athletics. That probability would be enhanced if similar groups were organized in other populous midwestern cities.

OTTO SEILER.

The purpose, at this time, is merely to enable graduates of one university to become better acquainted with the men of other universities who have similar liking for athletic sports. Naturally they will indulge in informal discussions regarding the athletic situation and perhaps other phases of university life.

The movement really began last spring, but was discontinued during the summer months. Now comes the first fall meeting at the Hamilton club Friday noon, to which, we understand, all interested are invited. Sponsoring this meeting is Otto Seiler, well remembered at Illinois and also well remembered at several other places where Illinois played while Seiler was an Illini.

One of the principal causes of distrust and suspicion among college rivals are the unofficial "whispers" or rumors which are peddled around, often without foundation. These "whispers" will be talked right out loud at this round table and will be refuted, if untrue, so far as possible by this group. Unofficial statements might become official if the incident warranted. At any rate, the sponsors say, "it never can do any harm for friendly rivals to remain friendly rivals by becoming acquainted."

Late Caller.

Summer called on me today—
With marble notes she rang the bell,
In breezes whispered "I can't stay,
I just stepped in to say farewell."

Red Robin heard and chirped "Don't go,"
Gay goldenrod did beg her, too;
The ripened apple cried "O no,
We've planned to make a feast of you."

But Summer sadly shook her head,
"My bittersweet with you I'll leave
Lest when the flowers are all dead
For brighter blooms you vain will grieve."

And then I felt a soft caress,
But why was Summer's kiss so chill?
I turned and there in russet dress
Laughed Autumn on my window sill!

Toledo, O., Oct. 4.—[Special.]—H. E. Smith didn't return home with a prize after a round of golf on the Sunningdale course yesterday, but he did come home with something to put on the table—a rabbit. Smith drove from the fifth tee. The ball went sailing down the fairway and struck a rabbit, killing it instantly.

CUBS TO DANGLE GOLD IN EFFORT TO GET SLUGGERS

Rival Owners About Ready to Pay Attention.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

The Cub officials, although saying nothing about it, are getting ready to establish their own Reconstruction Finance board. It will be a sort of life saver for National league magnates who during the last season fell into financial difficulties because of declines in attendance.

The magnates in such circumstances can step up to the Chicago pay off window, make known their wishes and withdraw cash accordingly. The only hitch in the process for them will be that they will have to turn over security satisfactory to the Chicagoans and the security will not be satisfactory unless it involves seasoned star players, the need of whom was vividly demonstrated in the recent four straight world series jolts administered by the bruising Yankees.

Want Tried Talent.

Manager Charley Grimm before starting for his home near St. Louis held a lengthy talk with President William Veeck and the things they want to do were definitely decided upon. Whether they can be done depends on how well the impoverished, or nearly impoverished rival owners, can be impressed by the sight of gold. The Cubs have plenty of it, their losses in the world series notwithstanding, and it will be used for the purchase of tried and tested talent, if possible.

"We will have to look around for a heavy hitting outfielder," is the only admission President Veeck has made. It is enough.

When the Cubs begin looking for a man of such attainments it is a downright cinch the first glimpse will be in the direction of Philadelphia were the high powered Chuck Klein operates.

The late William Wrigley, who thought there was no limit to a player's value if William Wrigley happened to want the man, once offered $150,000 for Klein. When rebuffed he boosted the bid to $200,000 and was disappointed when told the money looked good but that Klein would be retained in his present berth with the Phillies.

May Tempt Phils.

Since then the Phils have fared none too well in the way of earnings. Klein has a healthy contract not suitable to an owner who can't get the customers through the gate, and the Cubs might be able to tempt the eastern magnates with a figure below the original offer.

The fall in the player market is evidenced by the Al Simmons case. In 1929 Connie Mack could have had $200,000 for his star slugger. This year he offered the player to the St. Louis Browns at a nominal sum, but Owner Phil Ball, declared that if Simmons couldn't help the A's he couldn't help the Browns. Ball wasn't even interested in Simmons as a gift. The sale to the White Sox was put through later because Louis Comiskey was not opposed to spending a little money.

Hafey, Herman Eyed.

Another spot from which the lure of Cub gold may get a response is Cincinnati. The latter club went into the market in a lavish way last winter and came up with two fairly capable hitters in Babe Herman, the erstwhile Robin, and Chick Hafey, the Cardinal outfielder, who in 1931 topped the National league hitters. Now the Cincinnati club is faced with a distressing shortage in the cash box. The two sluggers were of no help to the team and it might be looked upon as good business to dispose of their services.

As added bait for the player they want the Cubs probably would be willing to toss in a few who were members of the team which faded so dismally before the Yanks in the series. Most of these would be pitchers. Nobody on the staff is actually safe beyond Warneke, Root, Bush, Tinning and Malone.

Sign Roy Henshaw.

The Cubs yesterday signed Roy Henshaw, the University of Chicago southpaw, for a trip to the Catalina island camp next spring. The lad turned in quite a record for the Maroons last year but weakened considerably this season.

Veeck also revealed that the long training trip, so popular with the Cubs for years, would be abandoned. As much as ten days may be lopped off the usual program. Other big league clubs are expected to take similar steps, the motive being to shave down expenses.

Ruth to Get Salary Slash; Too Big a Risk for $75,000

New York, Oct. 4.—[Special.]—The most superb acting that ever added luster to baseball drama will bring no increased reward to the actor.

George Herman Ruth, who taunted the Cubs, defied them with eloquent gestures and helped demoralize the Yankees' opponents in the recent world series with expressive contortions of his rubbery features, is due for another slash.

The management of the Yankees, confident that the most brilliant of all baseball careers is rapidly nearing an end, will lop a considerable chunk from Ruth's $75,000 income when another contract is offered to the prolific creator of home runs.

Yankee Chiefs Skeptical.

The unexcelled histrionics of the eminent slugger-author-all-around sportsman were appreciated by the proprietor of the New York team quite as much as his acting was dreaded by the Cubs. He gave a performance that will linger long, if not agreeably, in the memories of Chicago baseball fans.

But those who operate the Yankees doubt very much whether Ruth, for 19 years an outstanding baseball character, whose massive frame has been rattled over 400,000 miles of railroad right of way, whose seizures by a wide assortment of ailments were topics of national discussion, will be able to play another full season.

Heart Is Misbehaving.

Sentiment doubtless has exerted an influence when other contracts were submitted to the home run specialist. Nevertheless he has enjoyed a box office appeal unprecedented in the history of the so-called national pastime.

It was learned today that when Ruth suddenly deserted the Yankee team in Detroit last Aug. 7, he was distressed by something else besides a stomach ache. His heart was misbehaving.

He was suffering a recurrence of a trouble which prompted physicians several years ago to place him on a strict diet and to warn him against over exertion. A fluttering heart kept Babe out of many games that year.

This season he did not take part in any games during an entire western excursion of the New York club.

Ruth batted well enough last summer. His average was .342. However, there were moments when the vast fellow, legging furiously for a short fly, looked as though he would burst into a thousand pieces.

Babe undeniably had an appendicitis attack in Detroit, but it was the discovery by doctors of a balky heart that caused Yankee officials to realize that the chances of the 39 year old swatter taking part in a majority of games next season are slender.

Expect McCarthy to Sign for Three Years Next Week

New York, Oct. 4.—[Special.]—Joseph Vincent McCarthy of Buffalo, who, in his second year as Yankee manager achieved his first American league pennant and the third clean sweep in world's series play to the credit of the Yanks, probably will sign a three year managerial contract here next week.

McCarthy will report to Yankee headquarters Tuesday for a conference with Owner Ruppert, at which time a contract is expected to be signed without delay, thanks to the success achieved by the team this year. No statement as to the terms of the new contract have been made by either employer or employed.

McCarthy's two year contract, signed just after the 1930 world's series following his ousting from the managership of the Chicago Cubs, expired with the 1932 season.

KID CHOCOLATE BEATS FARR; WINS NINE OF 10 ROUNDS

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 4.—(AP)—Kid Chocolate, Cuban boxer, won a decision over Johnny Farr of Cleveland in a 10 round bout tonight. Chocolate, who won nine of the ten rounds, weighed 129, and Farr 133.

It took three rounds for Chocolate to find the range. In the fourth, Farr jarred him with a stiff right to the face. Apparently this made the Cuban boxer angry and he waded in with a barrage of punches which Farr could neither block nor return. The Cleveland fighter was crouched on the bottom rope when the storm subsided.

Cold Postpones Landis' Ruling on Hornsby Plea

Rogers Hornsby's appeal to Baseball Commissioner Landis for a share of the Cubs' world series money may not be reached for two or three days, perhaps longer. Commissioner Landis was confined to his home yesterday because of a cold. Indications were he would not return to his office until the latter part of the week and would not act on the former Cubs' manager's appeal before that.

MACK THROUGH SELLING STARS; EXPLAINS DEAL

Philadelphia, Pa., Oct. 4.—[Special.]—Connie Mack, the tall, lean manager of the Philadelphia Athletics, today announced that no other players will be sold or traded by him during the winter or the 1933 baseball season.

Lauding the ability of the three players he sold to the Chicago White Sox—Jimmy Dykes, Mule Haas and Al Simmons—Mack said he was forced to let the players go because of financial conditions. If a player is sold after the 1933 season he will not go to a first division American league club, Mack said.

Club Goes in the Red.

"Al Simmons was the greatest outfielder ever to play with my team and one of the greatest players in the country. I hated to let him go, but it was necessary to do so," Mack said.

"Attendance at the Athletics games this season was much lower than in the previous season. We went into the red heavily. We had one of the highest salaried clubs in the league. Jimmy Dykes, for instance, was the highest paid third baseman in the American league.

"We'll have a great ball club next year. I don't think it's a cinch for any team in the league—even the Yankees—to run away with the next pennant."

Pictures 1933 Outfield.

Mack's announcement today followed the rumors that several more members of his team were slated to go. Among them were George Earnshaw, Max Bishop and Rube Walberg.

Mack discussed the players whom he thought would take the places of Haas, Simmons and Dykes. Lou Finney, who was optioned to Portland of the Pacific Coast league last season, will be in left field, Mack said. Doc Cramer will be in center and Ed Coleman will be in right. Both Cramer and Coleman were with the Athletics last season, but injuries kept them on the bench.

Vince Dundee Whips Phelps in 10 Rounds

Alexandria, Va., Oct. 4.—(AP)—Vince Dundee, Baltimore middleweight, tonight was given a referee's decision over Cowboy Phelps of Phoenix, Ariz., in a ten round bout here. The decision was booed by the spectators, although the referee gave Dundee seven of the ten rounds. Phelps fought at 160 and Dundee at 159.

Former American Jockey Killed in Rome Accident

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, Oct. 4.—Joseph Frank Turner, former New York jockey, who has been training horses here, was killed in an automobile accident last night. Turner was 52 years old. He lived in Milan.

JOE JUDGE IS LIKELY CHOICE FOR SUCCESSOR

No Reason Given for Dismissal.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 4.—[Special.]—Walter Johnson was deposed as manager of the Washington American league club tonight after serving in that capacity since 1929.

The firing of the man who for years ranked with the greatest pitchers in baseball came officially in announcement from Clark Griffith, owner of the Senators. It had been expected for some time.

"Walter Johnson will not be manager in 1933. We have not picked his successor as yet."

Johnson, among other things, is said to have incurred the displeasure of President Griffith when he ordered Dave Harris to pinch hit for a Washington pitcher when Tom Bridges, Detroit pitcher, needed only one more out to achieve a no hit, no run game.

Order Provokes Row.

At the time the Senators were losing, 13 to 0, and two men were retired in the ninth inning. Harris came through with a single, being the only man to reach first base. The batter and Manager Johnson were criticized by fandom and by players for what was termed as a rank injustice.

Harris, it was pointed out, could have won more friends by striking out and permitting young Bridges to go down in the record books as the fifth pitcher in modern baseball to turn in a perfect game.

It is reported that Joe Judge, veteran Washington first baseman, suggested to Harris that he "give the kid a break" when the pinch hitter went to bat. This is said to have precipitated a row between Manager Johnson and Judge.

Although Griffith's announcement said no successor has been picked, it is believed that Judge will be named manager. Another Senator who is mentioned in the speculation is Sam Rice, outfielder.

May Return to Minors.

Johnson may turn to the minor leagues for another managerial position. It was after a one year term at Newark that Johnson came to the Senators as manager to win again the acclaim of fans who had cheered his superlative pitching performances for two decades.

Johnson made himself so popular through his pitching that but little criticism has come his way despite the fact that higher ups were not satisfied with the standing of the team at the close of the last four seasons. Washington finished third this year.

Those close to the team say that Johnson was not popular with the players. They maintain that he expected his pitchers to be as good as he was in his prime. This has been true of other great players who have been managers, notably Ty Cobb, Tris Speaker and Rogers Hornsby.

Johnson is the second major league manager to be let out at the completion of the 1932 season. The first was Dan Howley of the Cincinnati Reds.

Born in 1887 in Humboldt, Kas., Johnson started his baseball career with Weiser, Idaho, as a semi-pro in 1906. In the season of 1907 he went to Washington as a free agent and immediately made good, though he won only five games and lost nine in his first year.

Best Year In 1913.

The next season he won 14 games and lost the same number, but started to win fame as a strike out pitcher, a reputation he carried up to 1932. His longest list of strike outs was achieved in 1910 when he fanned 313 batsmen. Two years later he struck out 303.

His most successful year was in 1913 when he won 36 games, lost 7 and had an earned run average of 1.09. From 1910 to 1919, inclusive, Johnson never won fewer than 20 games a season.

Johnson's fast ball started to lose its hop in 1920, but after a stretch of three years in which he pitched fair ball, he had records of 23 and 7 and 20 and 7 in 1924 and 1925, the years that the Senators captured league championships. He wound up his playing days in 1927.

Johnson pitched in three games in the 1924 world series against the New York Giants, and though he lost two of them, the Senators took the interleague championship. The next year in the world series Johnson won two and lost one, but Washington was defeated by the Pittsburgh Pirates.

SATOH DEFEATS VINES EASILY IN EXHIBITION

San Francisco, Cal., Oct. 4.—(AP)—Ellsworth Vines, American and Wimbledon tennis champion, was defeated in straight sets today by Jiro Satoh, Japanese Davis cup star, in an exhibition match. The scores were 8-1, 6-3, 6-2.

The champion was badly off form and played listlessly. On the other hand, Satoh, who defeated Vines in the recent Pacific southwest tournament at Los Angeles, was at the top of his game.

Vines, who is on his honeymoon, will sail tomorrow on the first leg of an exhibition tour that will carry him to Honolulu, Japan and Australia.

A DAY WITH RAIN AND TIPSTERS AT LINCOLN FIELDS

Did 6,000 Turn Out to Improve the Breed?

BY FRENCH LANE.

One wonders if these 6,000 people came out to shiver in rain to help improve the breed. Excitement over in the clubhouse even though the races will not start for another 45 minutes. Little George Keller, who sells the hot dogs to the clubhouse patrons, slips and falls on the slippery brick walk. His head lands first and he is counted out. A substitute is rushed in to replace him back of the hot dog counter.

They Sing of Kaposia.

The first race draws near—Kaposia running to be claimed for $1,000 is a red hot tip from the newsboys. From the loud speakers come the words and music "Of Thee I Sing, Baby." Newsboys join in the chorus, but shout out "Of Thee I Sing, Kaposia." Kaposia runs third and the veteran newsy Danny Lynch says she doesn't belong to the horse family.

Red Cinders is the winner and comes from a quarter mile back to overtake weak hearted Little Gertie in the last strides. Red has his backers and pays $3.44. Not so gloomy after all, conclude the folks who have tickets on him.

Jack Coyle, who drove all the way up from Galesburg, drops in at the press box and wants to find out if it is raining in Galesburg. Says he came up to bet on Plum Orchard, which is owned by Old Tim Moshier of Galesburg. Plum Orchard is at the eighth pole when the third race ends. Night Jasmine wins it and winds up a daily double which pays $42.62. Gilbert Elston in the saddle. He has ridden Red Cinders to victory in the first race. This kid can ride in the mud. Didn't see any more of Mr. Coyle of Galesburg all afternoon, but Herman Radtke, who was as famous as Sande and McAtee as a jockey back in the old days, dropped in to the press box later inquiring about him.

That Tip on Bay Angon.

A former plunger from Cincinnati whispers that Bay Angon can't lose the Berwyn purse, one of the best races on the program. The ex-plunger isn't wearing an overcoat and he shivers a bit in his dark gray flannels. Said he left his top coat at his hotel. George Luck, the loop tailor, heard the tip and wondered if he really did. Bay Angon is out of the money in the five horse field. Altmark wins it, coming from behind to nip Dollar Princess at the wire by a head. He pays $10.26 in the mutuels.

Luck the Tailor, thinks the ex-Cincinnati plunger hasn't a top coat to leave in the hotel if he played Bay Angon.

The cold rain is falling in sheets by the time the feature race, the Ivanhoe purse, at a mile, is run. The ducks which usually swim about in the chain of infield lakes refuse to stay near the water. They are trying to find shelter back of the rose bushes and gorgeous foliage which decorate the infield and makes Lincoln Fields one of the most beautiful race tracks in America.

Comes the feature race. Outbound, a royally bred son of Luke McLuke-In Bounds, sneaks out into a lead of six lengths as the field nears the turn. He's a long shot, but a tip. Looks like he's home and the folks who back him dash for the cashiers' windows. They don't know old Come On wins all his races in the stretch.

Come On Comes On.

He nails Outbound a sixteenth of a mile out and wins going away. Brass Monkey and Oh Dave, the red hot tips, are out of the money. Impish finishes third back of Outbound. Come On pays $7.26, proving again that the figures do not tell many falsehoods.

Along comes Tombereau, an odds on choice in the sixth race. Leftovers from the world's series who backed the Cubs trying to get even. Some are struggling for the car fare home. Can't do any good backing 7 to 10 shots. They try to pick one to beat Tombereau.

Tombereau leads all the way. Wins by three-quarters of a length from Blighter. Folks looking for the pot of gold at the end of the rainbow are on the way home shivering in the rain.

STARS SEEK ONLY CHAMPIONSHIP AT LATONIA TRACK

Latonia, Ky., Oct. 4.—(AP)—Latonia sent out condition books today for the first week of the fall meeting opening Oct. 12, revealing that only the declining Latonia championship is drawing the big names of the turf.

Fifty-three remain eligible for the major contest, the books revealed. Of these the leading contenders appeared to be W. R. Coe's Pompeius and Osculator; R. M. Eastman's Cathot, and M. L. Schwartz' Gusto, all of which showed well at the spring meeting here.

The race, over a mile and three-quarters, is Nov. 5, for a purse of $25,000 added. Officials have announced the classic will be abandoned next fall.

Eight races a day are listed for the opening week.

LONDOS TO GIVE AWAY 10 POUNDS IN COLEMAN BOUT

Abie Coleman, Jewish wrestler, will have a ten pound weight advantage over Jim Londos when they meet in the main match of the all heavyweight show to be held at the Coliseum Monday night. Otherwise, they are evenly matched physically.

Neither is a specialist. Each employs a variety of holds. Coleman, who is of the confident type, will have no inferiority complex to handicap him when he meets the Greek veteran.

There are four other matches on the first card of the season to be arranged by Promoter Doc Pfone. Joe Stecher, former champion, will meet George Zaharias in the semi-windup and Hans Kampfer is matched with Jim Clinkstock, Oklahoma Indian.

MAROONS DRILL INSIDE FOR YALE; PAGE RECOVERS

Eight 1931 Starters Will Face Elis Saturday.

Rain yesterday drove the University of Chicago football squad into the big new field house for the semi-final workout in preparation for Yale and Coach Stagg's homecoming at New Haven Saturday.

Stagg divided the squad into two elevens, one of them working out a defense for whatever passes Yale may choose to dispatch, the other shooting passes from several new plays which have been designed to supplement the so-called "whirlwind shift."

Paramount in interest around the Midway was the question of the eligibility of four sophomores—Storey, Frank Spearing, Hilton, and Wolfenson, but the university's board of examiners did not finish the task of grading the comprehensive examinations. Decisions are expected today.

Young Page Returns.

The Maroon coach, who was left without reserves at the last half of the Yale-Chicago game last year, plans to use frequent replacements Saturday, since so many of his men are on a par in effectiveness.

The first string line in practice had Ray Zenner, who is light but fast and aggressive, at center, replacing Keith Parsons, and Ell Patterson, a sophomore, at guard in Wayne Rapp's spot. The tackles were John Spearing and Bill Cassells and the ends, Barton Smith and Carl Gabel. Eight of the men who started against Yale last year are likely to start Saturday.

Yale Has Veteran Backs.

ILLINI DRILL IN RAIN.

Champaign, Ill., Oct. 4.—[Special.]—The University of Illinois football squad went through a full game practice scrimmage on Stadium field in a cold rain today. A scoring offense will be the goal of the coaches this week in preparation for the last preliminary game against Bradley Tech here Saturday.

Capt. Gil Berry, Herm Walser, Dave Cook, and Pete Yanuskus formed what appears now to be the first string backfield. Ed Snavely looked good at full back on the second team and may be able to regain his position as a regular. Al Adams, Jack Beynon, Jack Craven, Paul Carson and Chuck Andrews are the most promising of the other reserve backs.

HOOSIERS SCRIMMAGE.

Bloomington, Ind., Oct. 4.—[Special.]—Rain today limited Indiana to a brief outdoor drill on the parade ground, after which the squad retired to the fieldhouse, where a strenuous scrimmage session was held. Freshman teams using Ohio State formations furnished the opposition in the scrimmage. Competition is keen for the positions on the three teams which will be sent to Ohio State. Bill Rehm and Ed Anglemyer looked good at tackle.

BUCKEYES CHANGE LINE.

Columbus, O., Oct. 4.—[Special.]—The Ohio State squad drilled on forward pass defense against Indiana plays during the most of today's practice, which was held in a driving rain. The Buckeyes finally were forced to withdraw to the shelter of the stadium for a long signal drill on new plays. Indications are that Keefe will replace Carroll at right half and Rosequist will be at right tackle in place of Monahan, a sophomore, in Saturday's starting lineup.

AUCHTERMUCHTY OPENS TODAY ON OAK PARK COURSE

Oak Park Country club will open its Auchtermuchty, famous invitational tournament, today with 27 holes of play. Another 27 holes tomorrow will conclude the event. More than 125 entries have been received, according to Horton Smith. The Illinois Seniors' Golf association also will hold its fall meeting today at Exmoor.

Rain and wind proved too much for women members of Butterfield in the way of golf, but they distributed prizes for unique costumes. The winners were Mrs. J. J. O'Laughlin, Mrs. H. A. Hoban, and Mrs. John Kent. More than a hundred reported.

Hold Army-Navy Boxing Tournament on Nov. 4

The annual Army and Navy boxing championship bouts will be held on Nov. 4 in the arena jointly shared by the Chicago Black Horse troop and the Chicago Riding club at Ontario street and McClurg court. Capt. Paul Butler of the Black Horse troop, Admiral Wat T. Cluverius of the Great Lakes Naval Training station, Brig. Gen. Frank Bolles of Fort Sheridan, and Capt. E. A. Evers of the United States naval reserves are among those interested in staging the bouts.

Morgenstern, Publicity Director at U. of C., Weds

W. V. Morgenstern, athletic publicity director at the University of Chicago for the last six years, and also director of public relations for the university, yesterday married Miss Dorothy O'Brien of Berwyn. Morgenstern received his law degree at the university in 1922. The couple left for a honeymoon in the east, which will include the Chicago-Yale game at New Haven Saturday.

Rain Drives Notre Dame to Gym for Drill

Notre Dame, Ind., Oct. 4.—[Special.]—Notre Dame's football squad went into the gym today for the first time this year because of an all day rain. At the conclusion of the drill Coach Heartly Anderson expressed anxiety as to what Saturday's game against Haskell will show. There are lively battles for seven positions.

BADGERS STAND PAT.

Madison, Wis., Oct. 4.—(AP)—For the first time in many days, Coach Clarence Spears today failed to make any changes in the Wisconsin first string football lineup. Harvey Kranhold, 195 pound guard, who is being groomed to play center against Magnussen of Iowa, remained at the pivot position with Kabat and Mario Pacetti at guards, McLinaro and Goldenberg at tackles, and Schneller and Haworth at ends.

IOWA TRIES NEW PLAYS.

Iowa City, Ia., Oct. 4.—[Special.]—Work on new trick plays and forward pass defense comprised the University of Iowa's football drill for Wisconsin today.

Linemen were given a stiff blocking session against freshmen, but yearlings were ordered not to tackle the backs as a precaution against injuries.

It was indicated today that Marvin Kuhn would start at full back Saturday in an attempt to get more power behind the line. William Ash who made several long runs and scored three touchdowns against Bradley is more elusive than Kuhn but not as strong a plunger.

MORENCY, FOUST TIE IN AD MEN'S FINAL TOURNEY

Paul Foust and Joe Morency shot 136s yesterday to tie for low gross honors in the Western Advertising Golfers' association final tournament at Exmoor. Morency won in the draw. The low net winners for 27 holes were Bob Richardson, who shot 121, and Sam Penfield, who was a stroke higher.

George Hartman carded an 86 to win the gross prize for the afternoon 18 hole round and Jerry Jeran was second with 87. Jack Hayes and Bill Wilson, with 79, tied for low net. Foursome winners were:

McGraw-Montreal Rumor Persists; No Verification

New York, Oct. 4.—[Special.]—John J. McGraw's decision to remain in New York for the week-end, instead of following the world's series to Chicago, added weight to the rumor originating in Montreal that the former Giants' manager is negotiating for the purchase of a major league club for the purpose of transferring the franchise to the Canadian city.

Verification of the report, however, was not obtainable today, due to McGraw's absence from his office. Telephone inquiries at his home in Pelham were met with the statement that Mr. McGraw was not home and could not be reached for either confirmation or denial of the report.

Samuel Breadon, president of the St. Louis Cardinals, whose franchise was named as the one McGraw is likeliest to secure, was quoted in dispatches from St. Louis as stating that the St. Louis National league franchise is not for sale and will not be moved from St. Louis.

SELL PITTSBURGH HOCKEY TEAM AND FRANCHISE

Pittsburgh, Pa., Oct. 4.—(AP)—Pittsburgh, which a few weeks ago was sought as a site for a hockey franchise by both the National and International leagues, tonight faced the prospect of having no hockey at all.

Elmer Whitehill, representing banking interests which hold control of the International league franchise here, said today the Yellow Jackets—last year's team in the league—would be sold. The banking interests hold notes on the team's property.

Whitehill said Whitey Fields, star center of the Yellow Jackets, had been purchased by the Syracuse, N. Y., team and the deal will be closed tomorrow.

This deal he described as "the beginning of the end" of hockey in Pittsburgh so far as the interests involved at present are concerned. Other members of the 1931-32 team will be disposed of as soon as the bids are sorted out, Whitehill said.

Tonight's Schedule.

Hoppe, who spent the summer with Johnny Layton at the latter's northern Wisconsin camp, accepted Hall's challenge last week on his return to Chicago. Hall's last meeting with Hoppe was a three handed tournament, including Welker Cochran of Hollywood, Cal., which resulted in a three way tie.

Cards Practice Twice in Rain for Bear Game

Both teams drilled long in the rain yesterday, the Bears at Wrigley field and the Cards at Mills stadium. The Cards held morning and afternoon sessions.

Bergerson May Not Play.

There was still some doubt that Gil Bergerson of the Bears would be in shape to play, although he is recovering rapidly from injuries received in the Green Bay game. Hewitt, Ely, Moore and Burdick, who were handicapped by injuries Sunday, are practically normal again.

Three Cardinal backs will be making their debuts before a home crowd. They are Tony Holm, Bucky Moore, and Simas, who with Walt Holmer, will start in the back field.

Holm at Full Back.

Holm was the sensation of the south at Alabama three years ago. He has some professional experience, having played a year at Portsmouth. He will be at full back, Holmer being shifted to half back.

DE PAUL WORKS ON DEFENSE FOR WESTERN STATE

Rain yesterday failed to interrupt De Paul university's preparations for Western State Friday night at Loyola stadium. The team was sent through a long scrimmage against plays used by the Kalamazoo team.

De Paul will be outweighed in the line and backfield and its defense is being prepared to meet a powerful attack.

Yesterday's scrimmage found Hal Cherne, tackle, and Ray Schuster, guard, in the spotlight. Cherne grabbed a fumble last Friday night to pave the way for De Paul's victory over Illinois Wesleyan. Schuster is a guard of outstanding ability. He is six feet tall and weighs 175 pounds.

The De Paul team was instructed to pay particular attention to Wurster, end, and Miller, half back, Western State stars.

Patrick and Williams Open Heavy Drills

Mickey Patrick and Roy Williams have started training at the Arcade gymnasium for their ten round bout at the Rainbo Fronton Friday night. Patrick boxed three rounds yesterday with Harold Murphy, Springfield, O., heavyweight, and a round with Tom Petros. Williams drilled with Freddy Langford, who meets Eddie Gill in a six round supporting bout. Johnny Fitzpatrick will replace Tony Muscarello against Joe Scarlese in a four round match.

King Levinsky, Chicago heavyweight, will go to Minneapolis today to meet Napoleon Jack Dorval Oct. 11. He will be accompanied by his sister-manager, Mrs. Lena Levy.

Sammy Levine, west side featherweight, is in Minneapolis, where he will rest for several weeks. He has increased his weight from 123 pounds to 129 since his arrival in Minneapolis several days ago.

Mickey O'Shea, Logan Square welterweight, is in training for his bout against Curtis Brown at Milwaukee Tuesday. O'Shea is undefeated since placing himself under the management of Art Mann.

Prince Saunders, south side lightweight, has agreed to fight Hershie Wilson of Danville, Ill., at Madison, Wis., next Wednesday.

Seven bouts will be offered tonight at Edward Hines hospital. Edward J. Barrett and Eugene Holland are sponsors. Joseph A. Murray arranged the exhibitions. Freddy Caserio, National A. A. U. middleweight champion, and Prince Saunders will appear against sparring partners. Harry Mueller will referee.

Cold Halts 5th Game of Little World Series

Minneapolis, Minn., Oct. 4.—[Special.]—Cold weather today forced the postponement of the fifth game of the little world series between the Newark Bears, International league champions and Minneapolis, American association titleholder. The game will be played tomorrow.

The series is all square, each team having scored two victories. Manager Al Mamaux of Newark, who had planned to use Pitcher Pete Jablonowski in today's game, probably will send Don Brennan, star pitcher of the International league, against the Millers tomorrow. Jess Petty, veteran lefthander, or Dutch Henry will pitch for the Millers.

The probable use of Brennan in tomorrow's game makes the Bears favorites. Brennan, who won 25 games in the International league during the season, held the Millers to four hits in the opening game of the series last week at Newark.

BLACKHAWKS TO START TRAINING SEASON MONDAY

The Chicago Blackhawks will open training at Duluth, Minn., Monday for the coming National Hockey league season. They will start the season at the Coliseum, to which they return this year, after three years at the Stadium, on Nov. 13.

As the schedule has not been announced, the Hawks have no means of knowing who their first opponents will be, Maj. Frederic McLaughlin, president of the club, said yesterday.

Charley Gardiner, one of the league's outstanding goal keepers, has not been signed to a contract, but officials of the club intimated yesterday that they expect no difficulty in reaching an agreement with him. Newcomers to the Hawks this season include McFadyen and Pudge McKenzie, former Shamrocks; Burr Williams, who played last year with the St. Louis American league club, and Emil Hanson, formerly of the Tulsa Oilers.

A SNIPE HUNTER NEEDS SKIS FOR TROTTING IN BOGS

Tumble in Mud Sure if Footwork Is Uncertain.

BY BOB BECKER.

Somebody ought to invent a short ski or a mud shoe for jacksnipe hunters. At least, we wouldn't mind trying out some such gadget after our recent jacksnipe hunt on Cranberry lake in northern Illinois when we joined forces with Jay Graham of Long Lake, Ill.

Just to make it interesting and difficult Cranberry lake provided a floating bog over which we had to walk to get within range of the peppy jacksnipe. A floating bog would be all right for footwork if it were not for the big holes. The one we walked on was punctured like a Swiss cheese. Just about the time we felt secure and decided not to watch our footing too closely—kerplunk, a grunt, a few choice remarks, and there we were with one leg on top of the bog and the other engulfed in a hole.

Bob Has a Good Excuse.

On one occasion we went down just as two jacksnipe got up ahead of us. We fired one quick shot and missed the birds. Anyway, the descent through the mud gave us an alibi for missing.

As the advance reports on water conditions in Illinois indicated some days ago, the jacksnipe have been forced to gather in large numbers on the lakes and wet sloughs which have survived the recent dry weather. On Cranberry lake we saw groups of five and six birds flush from the muck bars which rise just an inch or two above the water.

Once, on the east side of the lake, when we were working our way slowly through the rushes in which were small, open muddy areas, six jacksnipe flushed ahead of Graham while we were occupied with a pair slightly to our right. We didn't see the half dozen as the two birds near us gave us a chance for a double. A sportsman has no time for gazing around when one jack flushes, to say nothing of a pair.

Brings Down His Snipe.

The first bird swept up into the wind and we dropped him. At the report a second hurtled into the air. Fortunately we scratched him down while a whole flock got out of the marsh ahead of Graham. Later we saw how a 20 guage No. 9 shot, skeet load, can down jacksnipe when you know just how to draw bead on these sporty birds.

Frank Petrolle Meets Canzoneri in Nontitle Bout

New York, Oct. 4.—[Special.]—Those two hardy scions of the Petrolle family tree, Billy and Frankie, will attempt to put Tony Canzoneri through the same pitiful process as they did Bat Battalino. Frankie, the younger of the brothers, will meet the lightweight champion at Ebbets field, Brooklyn, tomorrow night in a ten round nontitular bout.

Frankie was drafted for the job when Ray Miller, Canzoneri's original opponent, was excused because of an infected nose, which will keep him on the sidelines for two or three weeks.

It was a little more than two years ago that the Petrolle-Canzoneri feud began. Billy, supposedly all washed up, upset the dope bucket by handing Canzoneri a licking in a ten rounder in Chicago, a few weeks before Tony took the lightweight title from Al Singer.

The Fargo Express and Canzoneri are matched in Madison Square Garden on Nov. 4, with the title at stake. Though Canzoneri's title cannot pass to Frankie Petrolle tomorrow night, no matter what the outcome of the fracas, Frankie hopes to soften up Tony enough to make it a simple matter for Brother Bill to walk off with the championship on Nov. 4.

FAMOUS BRITISH SOLDIER IN WAR ON ARABS DIES, 75

Slatin Pasha Was Hero in Conquest of Sudan.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

VIENNA, Oct. 4.—Gen. Sir Rudolph Slatin Pasha, known as "The Hammer of the Arabs" because of his leadership in the British conquest of the Sudan in Africa in the latter part of the nineteenth century, died here today. He was 75 years old and had been failing rapidly after a stomach operation a month ago.

Sir Rudolph was born an Austrian in 1857. He enlisted for service with the British army in the Sudan when he was 21 years old. Under Gen. "Chinese" Gordon, he led the British in their bloody war with the Mahdi Arab chieftan. It was Sir Rudolph's prowess in beating back the dervish tribesmen in 27 battles which won him the title of "The Hammer."

Taken Prisoner by Arabs.

A subsequent Arab revolt, however, which began in 1883 was successful in 1885. Slatin Pasha was taken prisoner by the Arabs and for twelve years he was virtually a slave. He saved himself from death at the hands of Arab fanatics by assuming the Mohammedan faith.

Sir Rudolph's book, "Fire and Sword in the Sudan," tells of the appalling sights he witnessed and the slavery he endured during his captivity.

Slatin Pasha escaped at length and later, under Lord Kitchener, resumed the British conquest which became successful in 1898. He became inspector general of the Sudan in 1900. His knowledge of the Arabic language and customs proved invaluable to the British.

Made British.

The Austrian born soldier became in 1907 the first nonroyal foreigner to receive the rank of honorary general in the British army. He also received other British honors, including the grand cross of the Victorian order, a knight commandership of the order of St. Michael and St. George and similar rank in the Victoria order.

Slatin Pasha renounced all his British honors, however, when the world war began, although he was too old to take an active part against his former comrades. He lived in retirement in Austria after visiting Egypt and the Sudan following the war.

He was married in 1914 to Baroness Ottilie von Ramberg, daughter of an Austrian general of cavalry.

DISABLED VETS' TAG DAY PERMIT BRINGS PROTEST

Head of Poppy Group Raps Council Action.

A protest against the action of the city council in giving permission to the Disabled American Veterans to hold a tag day on Nov. 11 will be made to Mayor Cermak and the Chicago Association of Commerce, R. P. O'Reilly, president of the Veterans' Poppy Day association, said yesterday.

The council recently granted authority for the sale of forget-me-nots by the Disabled Veterans after having in the early part of the year refused to heed the organization's request. In first denying permission for the tag day members of the council said they believed that the D. A. V. should participate in Poppy day with other veterans' organizations.

O'Reilly Tells of Meeting.

"An official representative of the D. A. V. national headquarters was present at a meeting of the Veterans' Poppy Day association," said Mr. O'Reilly, "and officially entered our association on a basis of receiving 15 per cent of the funds collected, although having less than 4 per cent of the total membership. Later a communication was sent withdrawing from the association.

"All of the funds collected by the Poppy Day association, the membership of which includes the Grand Army of the Republic, United Spanish War veterans, Veterans of Foreign wars, and the American Legion, are available in their entirety to the members of the D. A. V. upon proper application.

Plan to Make Protest.

"In view of these facts the Poppy Day association has requested the council to authorize only one day for the solicitation of funds from the Chicago public for veteran relief. We now stand behind that request, and will protest the council's action in granting this tag day."

The membership of the groups in the Poppy Day association, with their auxiliaries, totals 51,000, as compared with less than 1,000 members of the Disabled American veterans in Chicago, according to Mr. O'Reilly.

Lionel A. Bell, Investment Banker, Is Dead at 65

Lionel A. Bell, 65 years old, a real estate mortgage dealer and investment banker in Chicago since 1900, died yesterday in his home at 400 Deming place. Mr. Bell was born in County Dublin, Ireland, and came to the United States when he was 19 years old. He formerly was president of the South Shore Country club. His widow, Mrs. Florence Caird Bell, survives. Funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. Friday in the chapel at 200 East Erie street. Burial will be private.

Swindle Warrant Issued for Man on Girl's Story

George B. Kranz, 4845 Ravenswood avenue, was charged with operating a confidence game in a warrant issued yesterday by Judge Frank M. Padden on complaint of Miss Stella Mann, 3917 Addison street. The complainant said that she had entrusted $4,700 and real estate worth $5,000 to Kranz last January for investment in a patent medicine company he said he was promoting. Kranz had promised to marry her, Miss Mann said, and she sought the warrant after learning he was married.

Lost 20 Lbs. of Fat

Mrs. Mae West of St. Louis, Mo., writes: "I'm only 28 years old and weighed 170 lbs. until taking one box of your Kruschen Salts just 4 weeks ago. I now weigh 150 lbs. I also have more energy and furthermore I've never had a hungry moment."

Fat folks should take one half teaspoonful of Kruschen Salts in a glass of hot water in the morning before breakfast, cut down on fatty meats and starches—it's the SAFE, harmless way to reduce as tens of thousands of men and women know.

For your health's sake ask for and get Kruschen at any drug store—the cost for a bottle that lasts 4 weeks is but a trifle and if after the first bottle you are not joyfully satisfied with results—money back.

EDWARD F. ALBEE LEFT ESTATE OVER MILLIONS; BULK IS IN SECURITIES

New York, Oct. 4.—[Special.]—Edward F. Albee, president of the Keith-Albee-Orpheum corporation and many years associated with the late F. F. Proctor in vaudeville enterprises, left an estate appraised today at $3,837,614 gross and $3,270,013 net when he died at Palm Beach on March 11, 1930.

The bulk of the estate consisted of securities worth $3,015,037, but the appraisal did not include gifts aggregating $409,837 made by Mr. Albee between 1928 and 1930 to eight persons. The largest of these gifts was $363,807 made in 1928 to J. Henry Walter, for many years his attorney and an executive in his corporations.

Mrs. Laura F. Albee of Larchmont, the widow, received a total of $3,067,612. This included a $1,000,000 in cash, property at Mamaroneo worth $178,000, her husband's personal effects, $45,951, and the residuary estate.

The total of $225,000 left in public bequests included $100,000 each to the Percy Williams' home and the Actors' Fund of America and $50,000 to the Variety Artists' Benevolent Fund.

WOULD DIVORCE WILLIAM LOEB JR.; SUES HIS FATHER

Ex-College Teacher Charges Alienation.

New York, Oct. 4.—(AP)—Mrs. Elizabeth V. Loeb started action in Supreme court at Mineola today for a divorce from William Loeb Jr., charging infidelity. In a separate action charging alienation of her husband's affections she asked $100,000 damages from his parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Loeb.

Mrs. Loeb was Elisabeth V. Nagy, Ph. D., instructor in philosophy at Smith college, girls' school at Northampton, Mass. In 1926 she married Loeb, who was then 20, a student at Williams college, Williamstown, Mass., and eight years her junior.

Official of Big Concern.

Mr. Loeb Sr. is vice president of the American Smelting and Refining company with offices in New York and an estate at Oyster Bay. He was stenographer and private secretary when Theodore Roosevelt was governor of New York and remained with Roosevelt to become secretary to the President from 1903 to 1909. He was later collector of the port of New York.

Says Loebs Fought Her.

Mrs. Loeb Jr. charged in her petition that when her young husband sought to take her to his parents' home two years after their marriage she was refused admission and was forced to live in a rooming house nearby.

She stated her parents-in-law were opposed to the marriage from the first and persuaded their son to leave her in the hopes of making a more socially desirable union.

The charge was denied in a reply filed by the elder Loebs. Young Loeb, now a student at Harvard Law school, was given until Friday to file an answer.

Supreme Court Justice Charles J. Druhan reserved decision on the application of Mrs. Loeb Jr. for a $200 a month alimony and $2,500 counsel fees.

SCIENTIST DISCOVERS METHOD FOR X-RAY OF LIVER AND SPLEEN

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MONTREAL, Que., Oct. 4.—It is now possible to secure X-ray photographs of the liver and spleen without injury to either of these two parts of the body, according to an announcement made at McGill university today. The announcement coincided with the publication in the Canadian Medical Association Journal of the successful conclusion of research in this direction.

The method used by Dr. R. Gottlieb, research assistant at McGill, is simply to inject into the blood stream a colloidal solution of thorium dioxide. The thorium doxide is rapidly stored in the liver and spleen, and thorium, not being penetrable by X-rays, gives a shadow which is easily photographed.

The work to date, as outlined in the medical journal, indicates that the establishment of the fact that thorium dioxide may be used without harmful effects may have far-reaching results. Doctors said it is possible that the injections may play an important part in the study of pulmonary troubles such as tuberculosis.

McCaffery, 37, died in Cameron hospital here of injuries received when three automobiles crashed on a blind hill in U. S. road 27, south of Pleasant Lake. HOOVER'S PLAN CHECKS PERILS, MILLS ASSERTS

Bankers Told They Must Help.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 4.—In two striking addresses today, one delivered tonight before a packed auditorium of delegates and visitors to the convention of the American Bankers' association, Secretary of the Treasury Ogden L. Mills presented the Hoover administration's account of its financial stewardship, and its program for the arresting of business ill health and restoration of economic vitality. Translated into simplest language, the secretary explained in his night speech on "The Financial Panic and Program of Reconstruction," the whole aim of the government has been to replace private credit with public credit until such time as private credit again will perform its normal functions.

Averts "Extraordinary Dangers."

"The program," he said, "was devised to meet extraordinary conditions and avert extraordinary dangers. Once they are over, it will automatically come to an end."

Prior to the night gathering the treasury head appeared at a combined luncheon of Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce, Clearing House association and Advertising club, and delivered a talk in which he rapped the direct primary system, urged strengthening of this country's two party system, and ended with a warning that the effort to compel governmental reduction of taxes will fail unless community interest can be massed to the point of overcoming the political power of self-serving minorities.

Not "Managed Recovery."

Speaking of the administration program, the secretary said: "It is not what is known as a 'managed recovery.' And it is not inflation. Replacing private credit, when destroyed by panic, by public credit is not inflation any more than is restoring bank reserves, depleted by hoarding, through the use of Federal Reserve credits."

Continuing, he said: "It is the responsibility of the bankers, as dispensers of credit, to encourage the return of a normal volume of business activity by resuming their normal attitude of sympathetic coöperation with those who are their customers, whose prosperity means the prosperity of the banks themselves, as well as the country.

Summarizes Recovery Plan.

He then made the following summary of the government's anti-depression measures:

"In the field of legislation, the maintenance of the national credit by drastic steps intended to bring our budget into balance; the creation of the Reconstruction Finance corporation for the purpose, first, of assistance to our credit and other specified institutions, and later for the promotion of employment and stimulation of industry through construction loans; the creation of a $300,000,000 relief funds; the passage of the Glass-Steagall act, granting greater freedom to the Federal Reserve banks; the bringing into being of the Home Loan Bank system; the increase of the capitol of the Federal Land banks and the establishment of agricultural credit corporations under government auspices.

Cites Other Help.

"The purchase by the Federal Reserve system of more than $1,000,000,000 of government securities.

"The voluntary organization of the banking and industrial committees in each of the Federal Reserve districts, which more recently have adopted a definite program of assistance in the work of recovery.

"The organization of private business to promote a nation-wide work-sharing movement and otherwise stimulate employment."

"The sole purpose of the government," said Mr. Mills, "in the development of the reconstruction program has been to set free the recuperative and reconstructive forces within business itself.

"I, for one," he declared, "reject the conception of a national economic life directed from Washington as impracticable in practice, incompatible with American character and institutions.

"Our duty now is to relieve the forces that are working for betterment from the pressures that have been holding them back. Three great obstacles have been removed. All doubts as to the credit of our country and the integrity of our currency are gone. Fears as to the strength and ability of our banks to withstand unusual demands have been greatly lessened. The anxiety lest needed credit be unobtainable is beginning to disappear."

President Defends Banks.

Mr. Mills was introduced by Harry J. Haas of Philadelphia, the A. B. A. president, who previously, in making a defense of the American banking industry and its record during the 1929-'32 emergencies, said:

"In 1931, 2,300 banks closed their doors with deposit liabilities of $1,690,000,000, heralded to the country as though that meant a loss of $1,690,000,000 of the public's money deposited in banks. It meant no such thing. It meant that this gross amount of deposits was temporarily tied up. A considerable amount has already been paid back to depositors and the bulk will ultimately be returned."

Pass Dividend of Trustees System Pfd.

The Trustees System companies, of which the Trustee Discount company of Chicago is a member, announced yesterday that directors have decided not to pay a dividend on the preferred stock at the close of the current quarter.

The preferred stock of the Trustees System Discount company of Chicago is widely distributed in this area and heretofore has been on annual dividend basis of 6 per cent in cash and 2 per cent in stock. The latest distribution amounting to 75 cents in cash and one-half of one per cent in cash was paid Oct. 1 to stockholders of record Sept. 15.

$1,600 Shares Outstanding.

According to the company's report filed with Chicago Curb exchange there were outstanding $1,600 shares of $50 par value preferred stock at the close of last year. The authorized preferred stock was increased in June, 1931, from 40,000 shares to $1,600 shares. The company has distributed the stock through a widespread selling organization in recent months.

The announcement issued yesterday by J. G. Born, secretary-treasurer of the Chicago company said: "Following the payment of the usual quarterly dividend on the preferred stock, the directors of the Trustees System companies met and decided to announce their intention to discontinue further dividends until the clearing up of the general business situation.

Maintain Cash Position.

"Although the first three quarter periods of this year showed much improvement over the similiar periods of 1931, the directors felt that its cash position should be maintained in the interest of conservation."

The company in addition to a first mortgage bond issue of $1,513,000 on its building at 201 North Wells street has outstanding an issue of 6 per cent five year notes of $1,764,050. The notes have also been distributed in this area through the company's sales staff. The company has maintained a market in the notes while the preferred stock is listed on the Chicago Curb Exchange.

Stop Making Market.

Mr. Born stated yesterday that the company has discontinued the practice maintaining a market for the notes. The practice, he stated, was an "expensive resale accommodation" which the directors have decided to abandon.

The company directly and through its subsidiaries is engaged in the personal loan, mortgage loan and real estate improvement business. The common stock of the company is held by Trustees System Service corporation. The Dec. 31, 1931, statement listed assets of $7,091,000 of which $3,846,000 represents investments in land and buildings. The company reported total income for 1931 of $1,149,000. This lump sum represents dividends, rent, interest, etc. which are not shown separately. The company placed net income for the year at $336,000, equivalent to $8.32 on the preferred stock then outstanding. These figures are taken from the company's own report which according to the Chicago Curb Exchange was not audited.

I. C. C. REFUSES TO SUSPEND RATES ON SHIP SERVICE

Washington, D. C., Oct. 4.—(AP)—The interstate commerce commission today refused to suspend freight rates filed with it by Seatrain Lines, Inc., and protested by railroads operating between New York and the southwest.

The Seatrain lines are to begin operation Thursday between New York and Havana, and Havana and New Orleans. The line has two steamships, each of which will take railroad cars without unloading freight. This allows the handling of car lot freight at less cost than on an ordinary steamship.

Railroads and steamship lines opposed the plan, claiming Seatrain should be compelled to make charges commensurate with the charges made by railroads serving the southwest.

Opponents claimed that the plan really constituted making of new through rates to the southwest, although under the arrangement whereby the building of the steamers was financed they were to operate in foreign service. Promoters of the line have claimed that the fact that the first stop out of New York is Havana constituted foreign service.

1912 was the year of the schism in the Republican ranks. Conservative Republican Taft and Progressive Republican Roosevelt both ran against the Democratic candidate, Woodrow Wilson. An inevitable victory for the Democratic candidate was clearly seen almost from the outset of the campaign. The election was held amidst widespread prosperity. Crops were large and foreign trade was booming. Security prices were highest of the year in the autumn. The averages held in a narrow range between September first and the end of December. No connection is observable between the market and the election unless it be the recession which set in during December and continued throughout the next year.

Feeding Cattle Pays Farmer Well for Corn

Financial conditions in the corn belt are reported to be considerably improved as a result of the sharp upturn in the price of best grades of cattle. Farmers are taking feeder cattle, brought to the stockyards from the ranges of the west, to their own fields where they fatten them on cheap corn and then sell them at a good profit.

Farmers handling feeder cattle are finding it easier to obtain financing and several Iowa banks are reported to have large sums of money available for loans. One bank is reported to have more than $1,000,000 available for this purpose.

Good Demand for Top Grades.

Because of the good demand for top grades of cattle, farmers in the corn belt bring the feeder cattle to their farms and after 7 to 10 months return them to the stockyards. Feeder cattle sell from $4 to $7 a hundred pounds, whereas top grades bring from $9 to $10.

Last fall, for instance, a feeder steer might be purchased by the farmer at from $35 to $50. Fattened up the same steer fetches from $90 to $125.

As a result of this situation the farmer finds that corn he feeds to cattle returns him from 60 cents to $1.25 a bushel, compared with the 15 to 20 cents he gets for it in the country.

Spread in Grades High.

The margin of profit on top grade cattle is now the largest in many years. Top grade steers are now selling at $600 a carload more than they did last May. It is estimated that the advance means that about $5,000,000 more a week is now being put in the farmers' hands than last May when cattle prices were lower.

The reason for this increase in price is the shortage in cattle. It is many years since cattle production has been so low. Some two years ago when cattle prices hit the skids, raisers got into difficulties and were forced to sell out everything they had. Many of the raisers were forced out of business and the cattle shortage resulted.

GREAT WESTERN PLANS TO BUY 500 FREIGHT CARS

Patrick H. Joyce, president, Chicago, Great Western railroad, stated yesterday that because of the improvement in carloadings which has been taking place each week, he feels business is definitely on the upgrade, and has such confidence in the future that the company will purchase 300 box cars and 200 gondolas, with the possibility of buying 10 passenger locomotives. He said advantage might be taken of the opportunity to finance the purchase through the Railway Equipment Finance corporation.

Mr. Joyce stated Great Western carloadings for September, as compared with last year, were 8 per cent better than in August.

400 FORD WORKERS IN EAST STRIKE AS WAGES ARE CUT THIRD

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Edgewater, N. J., Oct. 4.—Four hundred of the 1,800 workers in the Ford Motor company assembly plant were on strike today as a result of a 33 1-3 per cent cut in wages for unskilled labor. The pay cut reduced wages from $6 for an 8 hour day to $4.

Heavy police guards were stationed about the plant throughout the day but although the strikers were gathered around the gates there was no violence. A reduced police guard remained there tonight.

Both Canadian Rails Report Earnings Gain

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Montreal, Que., Oct. 4.—For the first time in more than three years the Canadian National railways announces earnings cover the corresponding period a year previous.

The period in question is for the last nine days in September for which the C. N. R. announced today, traffic earnings were $5,233,727, compared with $4,627,021 in the same period last year, an increase of 13 per cent, or $606,706.

C. P. R. Earnings Gain.

Traffic earnings of the Canadian Pacific railway for the last nine days of September totaled $4,760,000, an increase of $908,000, compared with the same period last year, this being the second consecutive week the C. P. R. has outstripped the same period last year.

The new wheat crop moving to market, and into export channels, the fourth largest crop in the Dominion's history, is mainly responsible for the improved railway earnings.

Shipment for Week.

The board of grain commissioners announced today that Canadian wheat exports last week had totaled over 7,218,320 bushels, the largest amount for any week since 1929. It was 35 per cent of the total for the North American continent.

New York, Oct. 4.—Fewer than a score of issues had a turnover of more than 10,000 shares on the New York Stock Exchange today and a half dozen of these accounted for nearly half the day's total sales of a million and a quarter shares.

Floor professionals had the market almost entirely to themselves and as usual when trading is so slow the price changes were insignificant. The leaders worked 1 to 2 points higher during the forenoon but the trend turned downward; afternoon changes were mainly fractional.

Farm implement shares made some effort to capitalize the rally in wheat and cotton prices but none of them was able to stay very far ahead of the procession. International Harvester held about a point of its early gain. Sears-Roebuck and Montgomery Ward showed little interest in the grain market.

Rubber Stocks Down.

Similarly the rubber stocks moved the wrong way in spite of an improvement in crude rubber prices. Doubts that the tire makers would be able to maintain their recent price boosts was given as the reason for the setback to this group. Goodyear broke more than 2 points and Goodrich about half as much.

United Aircraft, which has been the plaything of the professional trader for weeks, was again tossed about in more or less spectacular fashion. The issue contributed nearly 10 per cent of the dealings. Wall street hears that some of the airlines, particularly those with fat mail contracts, are not faring so badly as other businesses.

Another feature to attract attention was United Cigar Stores, some 85,805 shares of which changed hands at a new low.

Rockefeller Issues Strong.

Three so-called Rockefeller issues, Corn Products, Air Reduction and Penick & Ford, were conspicuously strong. Street gossip has it that Air Reduction has become the especial pet of P. A. Rockefeller. Corn Products came within a fraction of its high of the year on an early spurt later cut down by realizing.

The motors were slow and talk was that the industry is not doing so well as the late optimistic forecasts.

Rails' Smaller Coal Demand Hits Mining

BY PHILIP HAMPSON.

Coal is one commodity which is dependent for its prosperity on the success of various industries and until there is a healthy business pick-up the mining of coal is not likely to be a very profitable operation. Consequently, the country need not expect much from coal as a factor in a return to a more favorable general business situation.

Thus Andrew T. Murphy, editor and published of the Black Diamond, summarized what may be expected from this basic commodity at a time when everyone is looking to improvement in the commodity markets to help restore the business picture.

Coal in losing the business of the harassed railroads has lost one of its principal markets, a point which in many cases means the difference between profit and loss. In addition the industry itself is suffering from a number of serious ailments, including over production and competition from other fuels.

Labor Situation Improves.

One bright spot in the middle west picture, as Mr. Murphy sees it, is the improvement in the labor situation which enables the coal fields of Illinois, Indiana, Ohio, Missouri and Ohio to compete with the non-union mines of Kentucky and West Virginia.

"Labor has come to the conclusion that it is best to work for a wage which will enable its employer to sell his product. With the $5 basis wage in effect, middle west coal operators hope to be able to break even and to regain some of the business lost through the inroads of cheap coal from the non-union fields.

"While the national output of coal dropped sharply as the result of the 5 months idleness in middle west coal fields, when the strike was ended prices at the close were lower than they were at the start. One might think that prices would advance, but the greatly decreased demands of the railroads and industry generally kept pace with the decline in production.

Rails Take Third of Coal.

"The railroads consume nearly one-third of all the soft coal mined and when their carloadings decline better than 50 per cent one can understand how their demand for coal declines.

"Roughly the railroads take about 30 per cent of the nation's coal, domestic heating absorbes about 25 per cent and manufacturing and industry generally take the balance. Actually the industrial use of coal has not declined as much as might be expected, the greatest part of the loss being due to the railroads.

"The coal industry has been in a depression for years, even during the prosperity peak of 1927, 1928 and 1929 for the country generally. Its prosperity began to wane following 1923 and 1924, mainly due to overproduction. Another factor for the decline was the inability of the coal operators to get together to curb production due not only to legal barriers but

DAVIS COMPANY PREPARES FOR BETTER TIMES

Several Floors Being Remodeled.

BY AL CHASE.

Foreseeing an increase in business and believing that now is the time to prepare for it while construction costs are low and the building trades need employment, the Davis company, operator of one of State street's largest stores, is in the midst of a comprehensive, modernization program, according to Arthur Davis, president. Several entire departments are being or have been entirely rejuvenated from floor to ceiling, with new lights, new equipment, modern color schemes, luxurious floorings and restful and harmonious wall and ceiling tints.

ARTHUR DAVIS. [Moffett Photo.]

"At the present time the fourth floor is in process of a complete modernization which will make it a beautiful and up-to-date setting for our women's apparel shops," said Mr. Davis. "The south room is completed.

Remodel Entire 7th Floor.

"In the north room work is now going on to remodel it into modern women's shoe and millinery departments, which will be moved up from the third floor. The seventh floor was completely remodeled for the house furnishing departments.

"We foresee an increase in business and the need of better facilities to handle larger numbers of customers, so we're taking advantage of the lower cost of materials and the need for employment to improve and beautify the Davis store. We're glad that these improvements became necessary just at this time, not only because it's more inexpensive for us, but because it gives employment to tradesmen and puts money into circulation."

Will Remodel Bank Space.

Plans for reconstruction of the former banking quarters of the Peoples Trust and Savings banks, at Michigan and Washington, into five shops were announced yesterday by Wallace G. Clark of Clark & Trainer, the principal stockholders in the corporation owning the Peoples Trust and Savings Bank building and also its managers. Upwards of $40,000 will be spent in changing the space into modern shops, Mr. Clark stated.

Plans for the alterations were made by Architect Charles Bohnsseck. The contract for the work has been awarded to the Dahl-Stedman company.

New York, Oct. 4.—The bond market moved irregularly today in a quiet session, brightened somewhat by a strong foreign section in which some new highs were reached.

A feature was improvement in Interborough Rapid Transit issues after reports that powerful groups of security holders would press their fight on the legality of the road's receivership. Heavy buying occurred in all classes of Interborough bonds, resulting in gains up to 2½ points.

Among the bonds to better their old highs were Dresden 7s, Electric Power of Germany 6½s, Rhine Main 7s, and Rhine Westphalia 6s of 1952. Karstadt 6s were advanced two points following the company's decision to postpone operation of the Nov. 1 sinking fund pending the formation of a plan or reorganization.

U. S. Issues Slightly Lower.

There were a fair supply of treasury bonds, most of which were taken at slightly lower prices. Announcement is expected within a few days of the treasury's plan for meeting the Oct. 15 maturity of certificates. Although most people believe that another certificate issue will be offered, while there is any doubt about it the market for long term issues will hesitate as it did a month ago in anticipation of the announcement on Sept. 15 financing.

Elsewhere the bond market was quiet and decidedly mixed in trend. Perhaps the outstanding alteration was a rise of 2 points in New York, Chicago and St. Louis 6s, in default since Oct. 1, which imparted an improved tone to the rail list after the group had been subjected to moderate selling.

Other Rails Mixed.

No new developments have taken place in the Nickel Plate situation, although deposits are still being received by the Guaranty Trust company. Other Nickel Plate issues held steady.

Chesapeake corporation 5s pushed forward nearly 2 points, while B. & O. issus, Erie General 4s, Rock Island 4½s, St. Paul 5s, and Chicago and North Western 4½s rallied fractionally. Weakness was apparent in some directions, notably New York Central 4½s, which recovered after an early sharp dip; Chicago Great Western 4s and Wabash 5s.

Allis-Chalmers.

I am enclosing a stamped envelope and would like some information on Allis-Chalmers stock.—Miss F. M. C.

Allis-Chalmers Manufacturing company's history dates back to 1847, when Edward P. Allis was one of the pioneers in the manufacture of flour mill, saw mill, and mining machinery. The company has since then maintained its position as the leading producer of engines and industrial machinery. In 1904 it entered the electrical equipment field, an' in 1917 began the manufacture of farm equipment.

In June, 1931, it strengthened its position in the agricultural equipment field by the acquisition of Advance-Rumely. In July, 1931, it acquired the entire electrical division of American Brown Boveri.

Unfilled orders on Aug. 31, 1932, were $6,911,000, against $7,136,000 on June 30, 1932; $7,889,000 on Dec. 31, 1931, and $13,003,000 on Dec. 31, 1930.

Bookings in the first half of 1932 were $6,562,000, billings were $7,315,000, and net loss was $1,806,000. Bookings in the first half of 1931 were $12,225,000, billings were $16,195,000, and net income was $1,006,000, or 78 cents per share.

Bookings in 1931 were $22,687,000, billings were $27,801,000, and net income was $1,256,000, or 96 cents per share. For 1930 bookings were $41,606,000, billings were $41,476,000, and net income was $3,605,000, or $2.37 per share. Net for 1929 was $4,331,000, and for 1928, $2,934,000.

The excess of billings over bookings in the last year and a half indicates that the company has had to dig into its backlog of unfilled orders to maintain volume.

On Dec. 31, 1931, current assets were $32,338,000, and current liabilities were $4,309,000. Cash assets were about $5,000,000. Net working capital on June 30, 1932, was $26,616,000, against $28,029,000 on Dec. 31, 1931, and $28,591,000 on Dec. 31, 1930.

Funded debt totals $13,996,000. There are outstanding 1,324,628 shares of no par common stock.

Dividends of 12½ cents per share were paid in May and in February, 1932. Dividends in 1931 totaled $2 a share, and in 1930, $3 a share. The dividend due July 15, 1932, was omitted.

Porcupine Northern Mining.

Please tell me what you can on Porcupine Northern Mining company. —K. O. S.

Porcupine Northern Mining company was incorporated in 1911. Its property was in Ontario, Canada. We are unable to find any data on the company since 300 shares were sold at $1 for the lot in 1923. Apparently the stock has little, if any, value.

A Foreclosure Problem.

TO THE EDITOR: In 1930 I purchased a $4,800 first mortgage from the Builders and Merchants' bank, since closed. This loan is secured by a six room brick bungalow and a brick garage. The loan is paid down to $4,300 and there is $500 due Nov. 1, 1932, together with interest. Taxes for 1929 and 1930 as well as special assessments are unpaid. The owner of the home is only working three days a week and will not be able to pay the $500 on principal and only half of the interest. Will this property be sold for taxes? If I foreclose how long will it be before I can sell the place? Will the party in possession have to pay rent?—M. A.

ANSWER: In all probability the property has been sold for taxes. However, the owner has two years in which to redeem by paying the amount of the taxes, plus the interest charge. Foreclosure procedure in Illinois is as follows: When bill of foreclosure is filed, approximately three months from that date the sale takes place. The property owner has fifteen months in which to redeem from date of sale, making a total of approximately eighteen months. You must realize the owner's financial condition is only temporary. There are today hundreds of mortgage holders who have foreclosed and the majority of homes are occupied by tenants who are paying no rent and do not even pay the carrying charges.

Also, each time a tenant moves you must decorate the interior; this is additional expense. After all, when you count up the amount of delinquent taxes, assessments, and interest together with the cost of foreclosure and the income lost for eighteen months, the property may cost you more than its value.

The buyer demand for homes is small and the majority of these buyers can only pay 10 per cent cash down and 1 per cent per month and often less. Summing up the foregoing facts we are faced with a problem that can only be worked out by you. Several home building organizations are handling similar cases in the following manner: The owner gives a quitclaim deed to the mortgage holder and in return receives a lease with option to purchase. A nominal rent is agreed upon and the former owner has the privilege of getting his property back by paying a specific price which usually includes all back interest, taxes and assessments.

This action requires the services of a good attorney to analyze the papers are properly drawn up. Before foreclosing ask yourself: What will I do with the house, and what can I do? The former owner usually proves to be not only a good tenant but he will keep the house in good condition. Regarding the options to purchase, four out of five exercise the privilege, the present financial condition being only temporary.

WHEAT AND CORN HIGHER AS TRADE LOOKS TO HOOVER

Steady Buying in Small Lots Continues.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Persistent buying of wheat and corn in small lots by commission houses and traders on the belief that President Hoover's speech, scheduled to be delivered later in the day, would be constructive, resulted in a fair advance in both grains. There was also more or less evening up on the part of the pit element. Routine news as a whole had little effect.

At no time yesterday were wheat prices below Monday's finish. The scattered buying started early and continued until near the close, with the price at the top showing an advance of around 1c. Final trades were on a slight reaction from the best figures, due to selling against offers. Net gains were ¼@1c, with July leading, the December being 54⅛@54¼c; May 59¼c, and July 60⅝c at the last.

Winnipeg Wheat Firm.

Since the aggressive support of December delivery at 51⅛c at Winnipeg started last Friday the wheat markets on both sides of the international line have been relatively small affairs.

During the last four days December wheat in Chicago has sold between 52⅞c and 54¾@54¼c, while during the same period Winnipeg has held between 51¾@51⅝c. While the declining tendency in the latter appears to the trade as having been definitely checked the market has shown no disposition to rally. This has resulted in a decided contraction in speculative operations, and the markets seem to have been affected to a greater or less extent.

In the last two months Canadian farmers have poured 150,000,000 bu of cash wheat into interior points in the three northwestern provinces, compared with 59,000,000 bu during the same period last year. The resultant hedging pressure has been a decided factor in depressing the market.

Winnipeg wheat futures held within a range of around ⅝c and closed at 51⅝c, gaining ⅛c for the day. Liverpool was ⅛@⅜c lower, with December at 56⅜c, or 2¾c over Chicago at the time. An increase of 27,522,000 bu in the world's visible supply was ignored by the trade, although the total is now 414,027,000 bu, against 432,302,000 bu last year.

Local Traders Buy Corn.

Local traders were active on the buying side of corn and disclosed a lack of pressure. Prices advanced 1⅛@1⅛c from Monday's finish and the close was ⅜@⅝c higher, with December at 28@28¼c, May 33c, and July 34⅝@34½c. The buying was based on the belief that President Hoover's speech at Des Moines, Ia., would be very constructive.

As a result of yesterday's sharp advance in futures the country was estimated to have sold as much as 300,000 bu cash corn to arrive and there were further offers slightly above the market.

Oats held within narrow limits but firmed with other trading and on commission house buying and closed ¼@⅞c higher. December was 17¼c and May 20⅜c at the last. Rye was ⅜@¾c higher, December closing at 35⅝c and May at 38⅝c.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 4.—The Goodyear Tire and Rubber company of Canada, earned enough in the first nine months of the fiscal year to cover dividends for the full year of its preferred and common stocks, it was stated by C. H. Carlisle, president, in a letter to the shareholders. Mr. Carlisle said unit sales of the rubber industry in Canada were 30 per cent lower in the nine months than in the corresponding period of 1931. He said he expected better business next year than this year.

COFFEE.

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—(AP)—Coffee was higher today on trade and outside buying prompted by the sale of farm board coffee at prices somewhat higher than were expected in trade circles. This factor offset the probability of an early opening of the port of Santos and a resumption of coffee shipments from there, which brought about a weakness at the opening. No. 7 contracts opened 4 to 15 lower and closed 5 to 11 higher. Sales 5,000 bags. Santos opened 7 to 19 lower and closed 10 to 14 higher. Sales 9,000 bags. Closing quotations: Santos—Dec., 9.38c; March, 8.73c; May, 8.45c; July, 8.34c; Sept., 8.30c. No. 7 prices follow:

COTTONSEED OIL.

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—(AP)—Bleachable cottonseed oil was quiet but the tone was steadier and prices were a little higher on covering and trade buying, influenced by the steadiness of cotton and unfavorable cotton weather. 1,191 COMPANIES PAY 205 MILLIONS IN LAST MONTH

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 4.—Although the aggregate amount of the dividends declared in September was smaller than a year ago, improvement was noted in a comparison of the revisions with those made in August. Payments reduced were only slightly higher, and those omitted were fewer than in the previous month, while both were less than in September, 1931. More declarations usually are made for the third quarter of the year, however, in September than in August, which is a dull month for dividends.

Payments ordered by 1,191 corporations last month aggregated $205,984,824, compared with 615 voting $250,104,547 in August and 1,662 making declarations of $356,304,961 in September, 1931. In the foregoing were 282 banks and insurance companies, which declared $49,385,768 in dividends in September, against forty paying $3,991,976 in August and 352 ordering payments of $70,039,626 a year ago.

81 Payments Cut.

Payments were reduced on 81 issues in September, compared with 75 in August and 112 in September, 1931, and omitted on 69 issues, against 96 in August and 123 last year, while extra payments numbered 27, compared with 11 in August and 48 in September, 1931.

Favorable announcements included 2 increased payments, compared with 6 in August and 7 in September, 1931; initial payments on 11 issues, against 8 in August and 22 in September, 1931, and resumption of dividends on 10 issues, against 5 in August and 8 in September, 1931.

Among the reductions in payments last month were Detroit Edison common, from $2 to $1.50; American Ice common, from 50 cents to 25 cents; J. C. Penney common, from 60 cents to 45 cents, and Otis Elevator common, from 37½ cents to 25 cents. Payments omitted included 50 cents on National Distillers Products common, 25 cents on Liquid Carbonic common, $1.50 on Virginian Railway common, and 25 cents on Engineers' Public Service common.

Dividends Resumed.

Dividends resumed included 10 cents quarterly on Irving Air Chute common and $1.25 quarterly on Adams Express preferred. Increased payments were ordered on New York Transit common and Devonian Oil common and initial payments on Lone Star Gas preferred and Water and Light preferred.

For the nine months ended today $2,238,610,627 in dividends has been declared by 2,831 corporations, based on the quarterly average of the number of corporations voting payments monthly, compared with $3,388,237,268 for 3,896 corporations in 1931. In the same period 1,206 payments were reduced, against 783 last year; 1,309 payments omitted, against 937 in 1931, and 227 extra payments made, against 491 last year. Initial payments were voted on 885 issues, against 166 in 1931; increased rates were made on 29 issues, against 93 a year ago, and 76 dividend payments were resumed, compared with 48 the year before.

COTTON FINISH HIGHER

Cotton had good support during a large part of the day with prices up around $1 a bale at the best. Higher cables, with Liverpool closing at 15@17 points net gain combined with reports of heavy rains over a wide section of the south and forecast for frost in the northwestern part of the belt, brought in new buying as well as active covering by shorts. Much attention was given to evening up toward the last awaiting the presidential speech. In the late trading liberal offerings by Chicago traders carried prices down with the close at net gains of 7@11 points on futures in Chicago, and 1@8 points in other markets. Spots in New Orleans advanced 5 points to 7.10c; New York was unchanged at 7.15c; Houston, 7c, and Galveston, 6.95c.

There were two crop estimates out putting the crop under 11,000,000 compared with 11,310,000 bales last month. The government report will be out Saturday next at 11 o'clock. Prices follow:
